Preface

DEAR COUSINS: Before asking you to read and give credence to these genealogical sketches of our fathers who first settled in this section, and their long and numerous lines of descendants, it is perhaps necessary, and certainly proper that I should introduce to you myself and my motives and purposes in their preparation, as well as in a general way to indicate the sources from which I have derived my information..

In the first place I will apologize for the use of the personal pronoun "I" instead of the many usual conventional paraphrases such as "the writer of these sketches," or other third personal ways of saying "I." In my first notes I tried the roundabout way, omitting the direct and short way of designating myself so as not to appear egotistic. The paraphrases became of such frequent recurrence as to become very distasteful and impressed me as stilted and much more egotistical than the plain "I," so I am going to speak direct to you as being kinsmen and esteemed cousins as you are. And those who know will not think me egotistic. In fact, I think a little more of that attribute—a little more self-assertion—would have made my life not more peaceful, but more successful, as the world counts success. I have threshed out my own opinions and hold a few of them dearer than life, but with charity and toleration for those honestly differing. Among these firm opinions are the unshakable doctrines of the triune God and the vital orthodox doctrines of Christianity as taught in the Bible and generally believed and taught by our pioneer fathers. In other matters I am willing to be influenced in large measure by the opinions of others.

And who, then, am I?

I was born in Lincoln County, N. C., on the 19th day of October, 1846, in a three-room log house on Duharts creek, about two miles west of Lowell. Two months and two days later the same year, the southern end of Lincoln County, including my birthplace, was made Gaston County, in which I was reared and where I have lived most of my life in the vicinity of the first settlements of our German fathers. My earliest recollection runs back to the time when I was two years old. At that period father built a new two-story frame house about a quarter of a mile from my birthplace and we moved into the new house, and moved the old to the new for "Ann's house." Ann was the negro slave cook given to my mother by her father. I still can see myself a very small child dressed in a madder dyed homemade checked linsey dress, standing in wonder watching the strong men push up the logs as they neared the top of the wall. And letting memory take free range it invariably turns as to a magnet to the central affection of my life—to mother; to the gentle, loving pious little woman who kept our house with so much quiet love, industry and frugality, but who, alas, in my boyhood was taken from us. I have sometimes felt her death robbed me of my youth. I was the second child and there being no girl in the family, and myself being small and not very robust, I was “mother’s girl.” I am glad to think that I either inherited or acquired her timid, modest disposition, and have had ambition to favor and please others rather than to seek honor or money for myself. I worked on the farm at a little of everything customary for the farm boy. I went to school most of the winters for about three months to the old log schoolhouse half a mile from where Lowell now stands, between Lowell and Spencer Mountain.

I developed some aptitude for books and graduated there under Miss Nancy Armstrong in the Winter of 1861-2. She was a good woman and a good teacher, and though she gave me the only whipping I ever had, I reverence her memory.

In the Fall of 1862 I entered the “Prep,” the only department at Davidson College left by the Civil War. At school as everywhere else while a boy, I was simple enough to think I had to do my best everything I was asked to do by my superiors. I remained here till May, 1864, when I enlisted with the other seventeen year old boys in Co. C, 2nd Regt. of N. C. Jr. Reserves. We guarded Duplin Cross Roads and Rock Fish bridge, and participated in the small battles of Bellefield, Va., 2nd Kinston and Bentonville. I was Sr. 2nd Lt. in a company of nearly 200 boys from Gaston and Lincoln Counties. In the Winter of 1864-5 we were mustered into the regular Confederate service and designated Co. C, 71st N. C. Regt., C. S. A., and were attached to Hoke’s Division, Johnston’s Army. We surrendered with Johnston’s Army to Genl. Sherman, near High Point, N. C., on Apr. 26, 1865. Having been a soldier, and helping on the farm through the Summer of 1865, I had about concluded that it would be going backward to turn school boy again, especially as I knew it would be a great strain on my father to pay the necessary expense. But in Nov., 1865, father said to me in his characteristic way: “Niles, you’d better gather up your duds and get back to school.” I have never ceased to thank him for that order. I graduated (A.B.) at Davidson College in June, 1869. July 1st I was at work as bookkeeper in the office of D. A. Jenkins, State Treasurer, at Raleigh, where I worked at a salary of $750 per annum till September, 1870. Mr. Jenkins several times offered to ask a raise of my salary but my work seemed so light and easy, I told him I wasn’t earning more than I got unless he’d give me more work to do.

I had a most delightful time in Raleigh and made some very pleasant friends, but seeing little future for myself there and feeling the lack of push and self-reliance, I resigned my position and determined to go west, away from the dear ones upon whom I had depended so long, where I would have to "root hog or die." Governor Holden offered me a clerkship in his office at a better salary if I would stay, but the storm then arising in governmental affairs was not to my taste, and I left in the late Fall of 1870 and went to Arkansas. I will say, though it may still be unpopular to do so, that I did sympathize with Governor Holden in all his efforts to suppress the Ku Klux outrages. He was not the bold bad man his enemies charged him with being, but on the contrary was a quiet, kindhearted, lovable man. As Governor he saw citizens, black and white, being outraged with scourgings, and murdered, to whom the law owed protection and the courts were powerless to convict the organized mobs. In the spirit of self-sacrifice he determined to protect all citizens at whatever cost necessary. In doing so he declared martial law, arrested the perpetrators, tried and convicted some of them by court martial. He broke the backbone of the secret political organizations, but gave his political life and citizenship to accomplish that result. He was impeached and removed from office for exceeding his constitutional powers in this unhappy incident in the State's history, for refusing to turn over his prisoners to the Civil Court for trial.

In Arkansas I visited around with the purpose of teaching and at the same time reading some law, till my purse was nearly empty. Somehow my country raising, assiduous attention to books and lack of independent dealing with men made me feel left-handed and a misfit in grappling with the problems of life, and I became apprehensive lest the home folks should get the laugh on my rooting ability and another call for help. That thought brought my nose to the ground in earnest. I happened to think there were thousands of bales of cotton in the fields to pick at $1.00 per hundred pounds and I felt assured of a living at least. If I couldn't get a school to suit me, I could make cotton picking suit fairly well.

But I secured a private school at Lonoke and taught there in the year of 1871. In the Autumn of that year I obtained a position as assistant in the public schools of Jacksonport, Arkansas and the following year I was Principal of this school. Meantime at nights and during vacations I read law under the tuition and lectures given to a class of young men by four or five of the older lawyers of the Jacksonport bar. In the Summer of 1873 I was duly licensed to practice law.

After a few months effort to get clients, Col. L. C. Gause, who had been elected to Congress but counted out by the Republican "carpet baggers," asked me to become his partner and take charge of his office and large practice while he fought for his seat. He was absent most of the two years contesting for his seat, and for two succeeding terms he was elected beyond contest. That connection gave me more business and responsibility than I could handle with entire satisfaction to myself, having to take up important old cases by myself, cases that had been wrangled over for years. I practiced with Col. Gause till he died and then several years by myself till the Summer of 1883. Meantime in 1878, having as I thought enough money and work to pay board and keep for two, I came back to N. C. and married Martha J. Jenkins, the daughter of my first employer.

I continued to do fairly well with my law and had good prospects for the future in 1883. My wife didn't much like the place, with its mud and frequent inundations, and I became almost sick with malaria and concluded that my health was ruined, and in an ill considered moment we decided to give up my work and prospects in Arkansas and returned to our native County in North Carolina. This was the great business mistake of our lives.

In North Carolina I have been busy enough, but my work has to a large extent been philanthropic in a small way rather than gainful. It is true for several years I worked as a laborer on my farm—my own prescription for eradicating my malaria. I assisted Mr. Geo. F. Bason for a short time with his law practice. I assisted in the building and management of the Dallas Cotton Mills until two of my friends holding County offices were defeated for re-election and I desired to retain them as citizens of Dallas, and so I resigned and turned over the management of the factory to them. About this time the Latin teacher in our struggling town school, Gaston Female College, left, and I volunteered to teach the Latin and Greek without compensation during its struggles for self-support. The Principal refused to charge me tuition for my three children and that was all my salary. This teaching for something like ten years was pleasant and interesting work, and suited my taste almost as well as any years of my life, one exception being the work of investigation and discovery connected with the preparation of this book which has been my recreation and pleasure for the last ten years.

Besides this I was for twelve years County Superintendent of Public Instruction of Gaston County at a nominal compensation, not exceeding an average of sixty dollars per annum. This paid expenses.

Of course I did not devote my whole time to the schools which were in session less than four months in the year. The teachers were poorly paid, the school fund too small and I made it my hobby that the school children should have the benefit of every available dollar to use in prolonging the sessions of their schools. When the funds increased I was urged to continue the work on a reasonable salary, but the time having come when the authorities had no trouble to get a Superintendent and pay him, I decided to retire from that work.

So I have been busy, but now at the age of 66 years, looking backward, it seems to me I have accomplished very little. It is something to feel that I have consciously injured no one and do not recall that I have ever owned a dishonest dollar, and all my life I have tried and meant to do some good. And if I can complete the publication of these family histories, and you, my cousins, shall be interested and benefited, I will feel that my life has not been altogether without worthy accomplishment. I grew up in the country home, and we talked little of ancestors and relations and I learned nothing of most of my ancestors further back than grandparents and little of them except their names. I suppose it was approaching age that carried my mind backward and made me long to pry into the past and see and know my ancestors and redeem their names and something of their history from the oblivion that has nearly swallowed them up. I have strained my mind's eye to peer into the darkness of the past and grasp the facts and circumstances relating to our ancestors for over one hundred and sixty years when they as first settlers occupied this country, then a wilderness with no habitations save the wigwam of the savage Indian. But many of these facts are irrevocably lost. If I had begun my inquiry ten years earlier, my task would have been comparatively easy. Death has wrought with a trenchant scythe, harvesting the old men and women within that time. Even yet when I have purposed to go to see some old fathers or mothers, before I can do so they slip away from me. If the inquiry were not so fascinatingly interesting to me, I would long since have ceased to make myself a nuisance to everybody whom I suspect of knowing anything that would promote my purpose. I have sometimes spent months of search and inquiry to establish a single relationship. It has been a labor of love and patience. I have interviewed thousands of men and women and have been constantly writing to all parts of the country and I think I have found relations in every state of the Union excepting possibly a dozen. I have spent days and days in the offices of the Clerk and the Register of Deeds of the various counties and in some of the State offices at Raleigh. I have made several trips to the states west of us and have searched Church and Colonial records and visited old graveyards and old homes of our fathers, and at these last I could almost expect the old folks to come out of some of the rooms and greet me in their old German fashion. I almost fancied that the still crystal spring at which they quenched their thirst or the grand old tree which refreshed them with its beauty and shade was whispering to me of their habits of life, of their days of toil and hours of rest. In short I have endeavored from every thought of possible source to get information that would be of interest concerning our old fathers and their descendants even down to the youngest, so that if a hundred or more years in the future some one following us may be interested to do a like turn to our memory, it will be an easier matter than I have found this to be.

In the beginning I thought to investigate only my own family, the Hoffmans. My mother was a Rhyne and after finding out so much about the Hoffmans, I took up that family, and so I was almost unconsciously drawn into including all of my known fathers and mothers and their families. And then I couldn't stop without taking account of my wife's families and in the inquiry I found out so much about several families from which neither myself nor wife was descended but nearly all of whom by intermarriage were collaterally related so that I concluded to sketch these families as a whole also. The following diagram will show some of our ancestral relationships:

Considering the immensity of the undertaking I do not claim the work to be full and complete, and it is to be distinctly understood that there are doubtless many errors and omissions in lists of children. They all are made upon the authority of parents, relatives, or other reliable persons claiming knowledge of the families, or from wills, etc. But I have had parents to omit a child or two, and close acquaintance to confuse the names of friend's children. I am, however, surprised and delighted at the extent of the information gained. It could not be again reproduced if my account should be lost, for many family secrets have perished with their possessors since I interviewed them.

I have most gratefully and sincerely to thank nearly every person from whom I asked information and who so patiently gave it. I should have been still better satisfied if a few others had taken the small trouble to give me the lists of their descendants after having been repeatedly requested to do so.

It is no part of my purpose to make gain from this work. I had hoped to publish it in permanent form and distribute it among my friends as a present but it has grown to such proportions that that will not be practicable and I do hope that I may be able to sell enough copies at about cost to materially assist in the publication.

I do not claim that these good old people whose memories I am trying to preserve were great in worldly pomp or show or in brilliant achievement. They were just good honest, simple common people, contented to establish families in this wilderness and support them from agricultural, mechanical or other manual pursuits. I love them the more because they were the common people, the mainstay and support of the world. They never turned the world upside down, but they did a better thing, they did their full share in holding it level. They were great in their endurance and patience, their strong commonsense, their industry and frugality, and in their conscientious rugged adherence to principle and duty as they saw it. They were great in all the homely virtues of life and in their humanity and tender consideration of inferiors. The institution of slavery gained from them no part of its exaggerated reputation for inhumanity. Their slaves were comfortably housed and clothed and fed, at a different table, the same kind of provision served to the white folks. The doctor and the mistress of the house nursed them when sick. They were treated much like the hired white man or boy only they lived apart and received no pay in money nor did they need much money. And usually the negro man had his half acre to plant for his own and Saturday evening to work it. The grown ups were seldom whipped unless they were incorrigible.

The children were corrected just as the white child. Not many of the German fathers owned slaves, but some did. Peter Eaker provided for the manumission of some of his. Great grandfather Jno. Hoffman provided that his should have a certain house to live in and his son Peter to care for them if they became helpless. Jacob Costner also made provision for his. Grandfather Jacob Rhyne allowed his men to work for themselves and pay him a small stipulated sum and in his will provided that his slaves should not be sold out of the family. My father had only four or five, and it is a day of horror to me yet when the owner of the husband of one of our women slaves sold him to the speculator to take him away. We children and mother all cried in anguish for the woman and father hastened and followed the speculator to buy her husband. He offered the purchaser a big profit but he couldn't buy him at any price. The vendor of that slave was not a German. The slaves were often taught to read by some of the whites of the family. The mother of the white family and the minister taught the negroes religion and they attended the churches of the whites and if they could be influenced they were members of the churches of the whites. I'm not defending the institution of slavery but among the German citizens of these parts the slaves were treated kindly and were free from the cruelty practiced on the large plantations sometimes in sections further south and west.

Now I want to impress upon you all the following explanations of the plan and method of these writings. I realize the great difficulty of making the relationship of so many thousands of people clear and easily grasped without much prolixity and repetition. To avoid this, I have used figures arranged in order of the generation. Possibly for the sake of brevity I have sacrificed clearness. I think, however, by close attention to this explanation you will be able to see the meaning and relationship:

The first known common ancestor is numbered 1; his children are numbered 2; his grandchildren are 3; his great grandchildren are 4; and so on down the generations. These numbers are attached to each individual, except where groups of the same generation are given in one paragraph when it is attached to the first name only; but when each individual of that group is mentioned following, the number is then attached. The numbers attached to each name mentioned for the first five generations are printed in bold face type before the name, in order that they may be more easily referred to. After the fifth generation and number (except where generations run down to the 9th, 10th, 11th, etc., when bold face type will be used to within three generations of the last) it is supposed generally there will not be so much difficulty in connecting the names, and the numbers are attached to the names wherever they happen to occur on the page. Then if you happen to lose connection look at the number of the person being considered and then look for the name of the person first preceding with a number one less. That will be the parent. For instance, if in reading you forget the parent of a number 6, and you wish to trace him back say to the common ancestor. 6 will be child of first preceding 5; 5 will be child of first preceding 4; 4 will be child of first preceding 3; 3 will be child of first preceding 2; and 2 will be child of 1, the subject of the chapter.

I have used many abbreviations also, for the sake of brevity, again sacrificing exact propriety. Most of these abbreviations are such as are in general use and not peculiar to these sketches except perhaps in the manner of their use. A few are peculiar to this writing, to-wit: (c) following a name or couple means "childless"; m. means "married"; d. means "died"; b. means "born"; s. means "single."

Again, owing to intermarriages, the same family may belong to two or more of the 17 chapters here described. As a rule I give the descendants of couples in the first chapter in which they are reached, and occurring later again, I simply refer back to first description. A few times I have deferred full description to a subsequent chapter in which they also occur, and made reference forward. This has the merit of brevity, and time saving, but more important it shows the relationships of both sides of the family.

Very truly yours,

Dallas, N. C., January 1, 1913.

August, 1915.

By the generosity and family spirit of Daniel E. Rhyne and Laban L. Jenkins, I have been enabled to associate these gentlemen with me as co-publishers of this book. I, however, assume all responsibility for authorship.

Chapter 1

HOFFMAN

SECTION I

There are numerous Hoffmans or "Huffmans" in Gaston, Catawba, Burke and adjacent counties in North Carolina. These all belong to families springing from ancestors coming to America from Germany through England, from upper or southern Germany, along the Rhine river, near or from the Palatine country adjacent to Switzerland. They were sent in English ships from England to this country to settle the English province of Pennsylvania. After remaining in Pennsylvania a very few years, they fell in with the stream of emmigration from about York County, where they settled and following the general range of the mountains, they settled among the Indians and other German immigrants on the western side of the Catawba river in what was probably at that time Mecklenburg county. The exact date of their coming I have not fixed, but it must have been very shortly before the Revolutionary war, for the reason that the tradition is distinct that in our branch of the family Jacob and John Hoffman, the two brothers, were fond of telling the trying experience of the tedious and difficult voyage across the Atlantic ocean; and John Hoffman was born in Germany in 1760.

As to the name, our set universally spell it with an "o," and the families of the other counties where not descended from ours, generally spell it with an "u," but these even are latterly inclined to spell it as do the Germans, the original ancestors, with "o." I feel sure they are all of the same race, however they may spell their names. The shipping list as given in "Rupp's 30,000" names of heads of families who came from Germany through England, numbering over one hundred Hoffmans, invariably spell the name with the "o." It cannot be denied, however, that in the mix up and change of names from German to English, the more common pronunciation was more nearly "u" than "o." And my great grandfather John Hoffman signed his will "Huffman" while his older brother Jacob Hoffman, also my great grandfather who never acquired the art of speaking and writing the English language with ease, signed his will in 1815 with German letters, "Hoffman."

The name Hoffman means "Court-man"—not, I think, in the aristocratic sense of a courtier or attendant upon kings, but rather as yard man or gardener. And true to name, in this country, they were nearly all tillers of the soil, with the added accomplishment of a high degree of mechanical skill.

With the assistance of prominent descendants of the upper set of Hoffmans, I have searched diligently to establish the connection between the two or more sets of the Hoffman family. I feel sure they belong to the same family, but on neither side can we find the clues necessary to establish the facts. Our ancestors have made no available record showing this, and we their descendants have delayed our search too long, till now the old generations have passed and even tradition is almost silenced by time. I greatly regret this narrowing down of the family to the descendants of the family of the old pioneers who settled in what is now Gaston county. The great and influential Yoder family are the descendants of Conrad Yoder and wife Catharine Hoffman, who were married about 1775. In Germany the Hoffmans have been among the foremost citizens, attaining rank in medicine, scholarship, theology and other occupations of life. It is a very common name there. Their names are found affixed to the world renowned "Protest" that gave name and existence to the Protestant churches.

In the northern states of the American union, the name has achieved distinction. In the South we are greatly handicapped in this and similar work by the fact that we have no great landmarks in the family to which we all could point and from which we might preserve a knowledge of our relationship to each other. With the disadvantage of inheriting a language foreign to that of the dominant population of their adopted country, they have in the main been content to pursue the even tenor of their way among the numerous middle class, enjoying their civil and religious freedom in peace and in willing submission to the powers that were over them.

So far as known the pioneer of the Hoffman family in this section was named Jacob, a name handed down in all the generations since. We know very little of him. We are not absolutely sure of his name, but all who have given information as to that think his name was Jacob. He settled on the eastern side of what is now Gaston county, N. C., on Leeper's creek, among the Germans who made settlements there. I have not learned the name of his wife. He lived at the junction of Leeper's and Killian's creeks, in a house later occupied by Daniel Wills, on land now owned by Wade Rutledge. There is a field on this place said to have been cleared by this pioneer.

- 1 Jacob Hoffman, pioneer, had children as follows:
 - 2 Jacob Jr., m. Elizabeth Shetley (Schattle);
 - 2 Elizabeth, m. Jesse Palmer;
 - 2 John, m. Margaret Hovis, dau. of Geo. Hovis, pioneer;
 - 2 Mary, m. John Totherow (Dettero), the pioneer;
 - 2 Hanna, m. Michael Rhyne (Rein), son of Peter Rhyne, 1798;
 - 2 Catharine, m. Chas. Glantz.

SECTION 2—JACOB HOFFMAN, JR.

2 Jacob Hoffman, Jr., married Eliz. Shetley either the daughter or sister of Jacob Shetley, so far as known the pioneer Shetley. I do not know the time or place of his birth or marriage, except that he was born in Germany. He spoke and wrote the German language. In his will made August 31, 1815, he spoke of being an old man, and died in the first months of 1816. He was a fine old gentleman, and well to do in the world. He settled, lived and died on what is now known as the Robert Rutledge place on Hoyle's creek in Gaston county, N. C., now owned by Earley Summey, one of his descendants. His dwelling was a large two-story log house, built of immense hewed logs. Mr. Rutledge replaced this house with a frame house, moving the old house a short distance and rebuilt it as a barn. It still stands, showing the doors, windows and stairway. Uncle Moses H. Rhyne, grandson of Jacob Hoffman, Jr., used to say that he and his twin sister Mary, were born in Rutledge's barn. They were born in the home of their grandparents, Jacob Hoffman, Jr., and wife, while their mother, Elizabeth Rhyne, was visiting her parents. After a useful, contented and happy life in all his relations, at a ripe age, Jacob Hoffman, Jr., died leaving him surviving, his wife, two sons and eight daughters. His wife, however, on the morning after his death, also died and both were buried in the same grave about a hundred yards east of the house, a little distance north of the spring on the hillside. For many years these graves were enclosed by a wooden fence, but in process of time they were lost sight of, the fence rotted and the thicket was cleared up and cultivated. Nothing is left to mark the spot where rest the ashes of these worthy grandparents.

When I was shown the place a crop of turnips had just been gathered from over the graves. "So passes the glory of the world," and so will pass even their names and memories if we abandon our loved ones to the forgetfulness of Time.

As a matter of interest I reproduce here a copy of said will, to wit: "In the name of God, Amen. I, Jacob Hoffman of Lincoln County and State of North Carolina, being old and weak in body, but of perfect disposing mind and memory, do make and publish this as my last will and testament in manner as follows (viz.) First, I leave unto my daughter Susan 2 cows and calves and 2 heifers, her bed and furniture, her spinning wheel and 3 sheep, her part of the dresser come out of my estate. I will unto my daughter Margaret 2 cows and calves and two heifers, 3 sheep, her bed and furniture, her spinning wheel and saddle. I will unto my daughter Anne one hundred dollars, her bed and furniture. I will unto my son Jacob all the land that I am now possessed of which is 367 acres, the wagon and win mill and one Spring colt and fifty dollars in money. I will unto my well-beloved wife Elizabeth Hoffman her living on the land, 2 horse creatures, her pick of the stock, and the rest of the horses to be sold and after my just debts is paid, I leave unto my wife all the remainder of my estate whether in stock or goods, or chattels, bonds, notes, open accounts or cash in hand during her natural life and at her death to be sold and equally divided to all my children. I will that my two youngest girls be well schooled. I will that my youngest son Jacob be well schooled both in Dutch and English. I will that my son John Hoffman and Jacob Rine Junior and my wife Elizabeth be my Executors of this my last will and testament.

In witness hereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this thirty-first day of August in the year 1815.

JACOB HOFFMAN, (Seal). (In German)

Signed, sealed and published by the said Jacob Hoffman to be my last will and Testament in the presence of us who are here present.

ALEX. MOORE, Jurat.

CHRISTIAN ROADS.

Endorsed: Executors sworn; State of North Carolina, Lincoln County, April sessions, 1816.

The within will was proved in open court by the oath of Alex. Moore, a subscribing witness thereto.

Witness: VARDRY McBEE."

2 Said Jacob Hoffman, Jr., had the following children:

3 John, m. Elizabeth Rhyne, dau. of Peter Rhyne;

3 Elizabeth, m. Jacob Rhyne 3d, son of Jacob 2d, in 1800;

3 Hanna, m. John Clemmer, son of Valentine Clemmer, pioneer, in 1803;

3 Catherine, m. Michael Rhyne, son of Jacob 2d.

3 Christine, m. Fred Shrum, son of Jacob Shrum and wife, Kitty Shetley;

3 Margaret, m. Andrew Shrum, bro. to Fred Shrum, 1817;

3 Mary, m. Wm. McAlister, 1817;

3 Susan, m. James Jenkins, 1817;

3 Ann, m. John Spencer, 1818;

3 Jacob, born Oct. 30, 1803, m. Margaret Rhyne, dau. of Daniel Rhyne.

3 John Hoffman, son of Jacob 2d, was nic-named "Laughing John" to distinguish him from his uncle and uncle's son, both named John. He won that name by his jolly good humor. He lived while in N. C. near the junction of Hoyle's creek and the south fork of the Catawba river on the east side of the river on the place now owned by the heirs of A. J. Jenkins, dec'd. Sometime in the 30's in 1800 he moved with his family to Perry county, Mo., where he was a prominent citizen and where he reared a family of eleven children, as follows:

4 Catharine, m. John Rhyne, son of Martin Rhyne;

4 Mary, m. Henry Arpe;

4 Elizabeth, m. Peter Rhyne, son of Michael and Cath. Hoffman Rhyne and her 1st cousin;

4 Sarah, m. Daniel Rhyne, brother to Peter;

4 Barbara, m. Rufus Wills, son of John Wills;

4 Daniel, m. Cath. Sipes;

4 Fannie, born 1816, died single;

4 Hanna, born 1812, and Salome, born 1820, both died single;

4 Solomon, m. Mary Pressnell;

4 Jacob, m. Mary Hovis and Sarah Sides;

4 Catharine Rhyne and husband Jno. Rhyne, moved to Ark. They had some children, among them: 5 Daniel, who married Evaline Presnell; Matilda, m. Jacob Gruner; Elizabeth. Louisa, Jno. and Jacob and Ambrose.

5 Daniel Rhyne had a son Daniel, Jr., who married ——— Foster, and these have a daughter: 6 Birdie, single.

5 Daniel Rhyne also had sons: 6 John and others.

5 Peter Rhyne, youngest child of Jonathan Rhyne, married Julia Hoffman, a neice of this writer and the only daughter of Jacob C. Hoffman, the writer's brother, who died six months after his marriage at the age of nineteen years, and before his daughter was born. They have a family of eight bright and interesting children, to-wit: Orestes Pearl; Stella, m. ——— Miller (c); Claude, Bessie, Brady, Winnie, Vera and Miles Hoffman, the writer's small namesake, not yet enjoying his first "breeches." None of these are married. Pearl, the oldest, has graduated at Lenoir College and the University of N. C., and is now prosecuting his studies at Johns Hopkins University for his doctor's degree. He has won a fellowship in that university. Stella has graduated at Lenoir College and will teach. The next, Claude, has taken a course at the N. C. A. and M. College at Raleigh, in training for a farmer. The rest except my man, too young, are attending the home schools.

Just as I am at this very place copying this for the printer, I get the news that Pearl was married yesterday (Sept. 28, 1911), to Lucile Moore, a very young lady of Stanley, in this county. I wonder, I wonder, if a fellowship at J. H. will support two.

4 Fanny Rhyne Lineberger, the third child of Elizabeth Hoffman Rhyne, died only a short time after her marriage to that good and useful man, Lewis Lineberger. She died leaving only an infant daughter which was named Fanny after its mother. Mrs. Lineberger was Lutheran, but she rests in Long Creek churchyard. A tombstone designates her grave with this inscription: "In memory of Fanny Lineberger. Died June 23, 1828, aged 18 years, 6 months and 11 days."

5 Little Fanny Lineberger grew up a beautiful and good girl, and married a distant relative, Caleb J. Lineberger. They are both still living at a very old age, he being 93 years old and as jolly as ever, and she being about 10 years younger. They should be enjoying the consciousness of a life well and usefully spent, for they have served their day and generation most faithfully and efficiently, and have been a benefit and benediction to their community and Church. Mr. Lineberger, with his father, John Lineberger, or his brother, J. Laban Lineberger, his father-in-law, Lewis Lineberger, my father Jonas Hoffman, uncle Moses H. Rhyne, and John Clemmer, raised six thousand dollars—$1,000 each—and built almost the first cotton factory in Gaston county. They did much of the building themselves. In August, 1852, they began to spin yarn in both warp and skein with only 600 spindles. The business was a success and was gradually enlarged. They also conducted a general store in connection with the factory. This factory was legally named Woodlawn, but some wag, because of its size, called it "Pin Hook," and Pin Hook was its country name. It was located something over a mile above the present large McAdenville mills. Soon after the factory was started, at a meeting of the stockholders, among other business, the management of the store was looked into. It was found that the manager was keeping no books, simply made note of accounts on scraps of wrapping paper. My father suggested that was not the best way and probably some of the others thought it a matter of small importance. So father finally said he didn't want any interest in business carried on in that style. They offered him $3,000 for his interest and he took it and went out of the business.

Mr. Lineberger and family have been almost life-long members of Lutheran Chapel Church, about two miles east of Gastonia. It was organized about 1828, and Mr. Lineberger, when a boy, helped to haul the lumber for the first church built there.

4 Moses H. Rhyne was a prominent and useful citizen of Gaston county. He lived in abundance on his fine farm near Mount Holly to a good old age. He was one of the pioneers in the cotton manufacturing industry, gold mining, and other industries. After a lingering illness with paralysis he died at his home revered and respected by all. He rests with numerous others of his relatives in the graveyard of Lutheran Chapel Church, of which he had been for many years a leading member. His descendants are among the best and most enterprising citizens of the county. His children were as follows:

4 Rebecca Rhyne, daughter of Jacob Rhyne 3rd, married Levi Hoffman. They lived on the south side of Catawba creek in Gaston county. His sons still live on portions of his farm. He was a farmer and miller. He was extremely reticent, but positive and candid in his speech. He was a thoroughly honest and Christian man. The vicissitudes and laws of war made no excuse to evade even his security debt. Though in only ordinary circumstances and coming through the wreck of the Civil war with little left except his farm and mill and under the necessity of making his living with his own labor, he struggled along and paid all his debts even after the limitations of law barred them. He lived as did his noble wife to old age. They are buried in Lutheran Chapel graveyard of which Church they were long-time devoted members. They had the following children:

James M. Davis lives near Marshfield, Mo., and has passed his four score years. He is not an educated man but is a pious intelligent gentleman, wonderfully familiar with his Bible, and as the pains and infirmities of age are making advances on him, he rejoices in the confident hope of a painless and happy future life. I, a soldier in the Confederate Army, greatly enjoyed a visit to this good old man in Sept., 1907. We slept together and didn't fight any more. They live just a little out from Madisonville, Tenn., and since I discovered them as relatives and visited them myself all the kin folks here who start westward seem to land at Mr. Kinsers. 3 Jacob Hoffman 3rd, son of Jacob 2nd, and youngest child of the family, was born in N. C., Oct. 30, 1803. He was "well-schooled," both in English and German as directed in his father's will. When he grew up he taught school for a time. For a few years after his father's death during his minority he lived with his brother "Laughing" John, who was one of the executor's of his father's will and probably his guardian. It came about that he was nic-named "Yuck" to distinguish him from John's son, Jacob. He was married in N. C. to Margaret Rhyne, daughter of Daniel Rhyne. His wife was a granddaughter of his uncle, John Hoffman. In later years, I think about 1832, with his brother John and his brothers-in-law, Henry Rhodes and Lawson Cloninger, he moved to Wayne county, Mo., and settled about three miles from Gravelton. In August, 1907, in the prosecution of this inquiry I visited this old homestead. I found many, descendants and other relatives in those parts, but only one surviving child of Jacob Hoffman 3rd, to wit: Mrs. Lavina Hovis, widow of Eli Hovis, near Buckhorn. Late in life he, with his wife and most of his family, moved again, going to Montana. He died Feb. 8, 1893, aged 90 years. His wife survived him and died Oct. 8, 1899, aged nearly 91 years. They rest in mother earth, far from the home of their childhood and kindred; he in Gallat'n Co., Montana, and she at Lewiston, Fergus Co., Montana. SECTION 4—JOHN HOFFMAN

2 John Hoffman, the son of Jacob Hoffman 1st, and brother to Jacob Hoffman 2nd, and Elizabeth Palmer, whose sketches precede this, came with his father and family from the upper Rhine country of Germany—I think from the Palatine country—along with the many German emigrants sent over by the English to settle the English colonies in America. I do not know the exact date, but they re-shipped from English port and came to Philadelphia and settled in Pennsylvania, but soon came southward and lived possibly a time in Virginia and later settled in what is now Gaston County, N. C. He was only a boy of 16 when the Revolutionary war broke out, but he was an American soldier under Col. Hambright at the battle of Kings Mountain and performed other services in occasional expeditions in that war. From an association with a neighbor looked upon as a Loyalist sympathizer, there is a tradition that he was suspected also for a time of having same sympathies, but on the other hand the evidence is clear and convincing that he fought bravely under Col. Hambright up the northern steep of Kings Mountain and was wounded there. His son, Peter Hoffman, said he was, and because of this fact he (an old man) came from his home in Arkansas to be present at the centennial celebration at the battle ground in 1880. Because of this service our old father was a great admirer of his old Colonel, and had the same verse that was on Col. Hambright's tombstone put on his when he died, though it was inappropriate because of the fact that his wife had preceded him to the grave. Miles Hoffman and Jno. Hoffman, grandsons, also testify to the service of their grandfather, and say they saw the scar made by the British bullet where it plowed through the skin almost straight across his breast. Other strong tradition is to the same effect.

Mrs. Blanche R. Pharr, of Greenwood, Miss., a great, great granddaughter of Jno. Hoffman, had Mrs. Draper, a historian of note, to search out her ancestor's history and make out application for membership in the D. A. R., and this application was approved by the D. A. R. organization, and Mrs. Pharr was admitted on the following statement of facts: "Va. Rev. Soldiers, p. 230, Soffell, p. 268—John Huffman, or Hufman, was born in Germany in 1760; emigrated to this country when a child and when still in his 'teens enlisted under Lieut. Col. Hambright, serving with him at Kings Mountain where Col. Hambright was wounded, and also in other engagements. He settled in that part of Lincoln Co., N. C., that is now Gaston Co., married there in 1785, Margaret Hovis and is recorded in census of 1790 as a resident of Morgan District, Lincoln Co., Eight Co., and as having two males over 16 yrs. of age, two males under 16 yrs. of age, and two females in his family," etc.

Soon after the war, 1785, he married Margaret Hovis, daughter of Geo. Hovis, the pioneer of that family in this section. They lived on top of the hill, a few hundred yards north of what is known as the Holland covered bridge over Big Long Creek, two miles southeast of Dallas. The large chestnut trees about the house have also died and disappeared, but the persistent aspen thicket and some of the stone and sills of the old house still mark the home spot of this worthy old ancestor.

He was a man of fine character and ability. He helped, I think, in the organization of Philadelphia Lutheran Church some time before the year 1800 and was a faithful member and an Elder of this church till his death. He was diligent in business, and a prosperous citizen, skillful in loom making and all sorts of mechanical work. He is said to have made the surveyors compass so long used by Isaac Holland and other surveyors. This now belongs to Larkin Rhyne of Dallas, and while behind the later day patterns can still be used. I have examined this old compass and think the tradition as to its maker only applies to the case in which the compass was carried, the "Jack Staff," etc. A. W. Hoffman, a surveyor and great grandson of this John Hoffman has in his possession an unregistered deed made by this John to his son John dated July 16, 1805, conveying 370 acres of land on the "north side of the south fork of the Catawba river and on the waters of said fork including his dwelling house, grist mill, sawmill, cotton gin, etc." This almost makes us claim the old man to have been a rival of the famous Whitney in the gin business. He accumulated considerable property for that day and was sometimes called "rich" John to distinguish him from the other Johns. He had large quantity of land, money and a few negroes. As was almost universally the case among our German fathers he was a most humane master to his slaves. He was also passionately attached to his wife and children, so that when his wife sickened and died his grief was inconsolable, and in his anguish he said at her grave: "It will not be long till I am brought here too." He lost his appetite, drooped and died just one month and six days later. They are buried in a grove in a private graveyard on his home place about a hundred and fifty yards north of the house. This is at present a dense thicket at the edge of the woods. Their graves are still marked by modest marble slabs, inscribed as follows:

"In memory of Margaret Huffman, died Aug. 18th, 1832, aged 69 years. I am gone unto that happy shore, Where pain and death are known no more."

"John Huffman, died Sept. 24th, 1832, aged 72 years. Adieu to all both far and near, My loving wife and children dear, For my immortal soul is fled; I must lie numbered with the dead." It is related that when Jno. Hoffman died his little pet dog, his constant companion, was greatly distressed and often went to his grave and whined and scratched at it, and died there.

He left a will probated at the October session, 1832, and the following is a copy thereof:

"In the name of God, Amen. I, John Huffman, of the County of Lincoln and State of North Carolina, being weak in body, but sound in mind and memory, but calling to mind that it is appointed for all men to die, do by these presents make this and this only my last will and testament: first I recommend by soul to God who gave it and my body to the earth from whence it came to be buried in a decent form at the discretion of my executors hereinafter appointed.

1st, I will and bequeath to my son Peter Huffman all the land I hold or own on the north side of the creek, on which I now live, including mills and mill pond. I further will unto him my negro Benjamin. I further will to my son Joseph Huffman all the land I own on the south side of said creek, Long Creek, including the improvements on which he now lives, and the Elisha Rhodes place and the seventy-four acre tract called the Woods place. I further will and dispose of my lands on the south side of the south fork of the Catawba river, including the mill and improvements called the Jonas Huffman mill, and the Hamilton place or Where Jno. Hamilton lives, including the little place where Polly Hovis lives, in short all of my land I own down there on said fork to be divided between my son John Huffman and the six sons of my son Jonas, viz: Eli, Michael, Jacob, Jonas, Miles and John, as follows: A division line to commence at the mouth of a branch called the Coll branch to run up the said branch to its head, thence straight line nearly west to the old Patent line where it crosses a steep hollow, then all on the side of said line next to Thomas Hanna's land I will and bequeath to my son Jno. Huffman, and that part on the other side of said line, I will and bequeath unto the said six boys, sons of my son Jonas Huffman, dec'd. I further will and bequeath unto the said six as before. the plantation on which Frederick Hovis now lives, but said plantation is to be rented out at the discretion of my executors. that is my executors are to be ~~the~~ sole judges when to give those boys possession of said land, and the rents of said place to be counted as part of my estate. I further will that my negro Sam and his wife Jinny live in his house under the care of my son Peter, but it is to be understood that these two negroes are not to be sold, and if they get helpless said Peter is to maintain them. And the remainder of my property not willed, to be sold and equally divided amongst my heirs after my funeral expenses and lawful debts are paid. And I further will that Daniel Huffman pay no interest on the debts he owes me. I further will that my son Joseph Huffman pay no interest nor principal on his notes but they shall be given up to him. I further appoint my sons Daniel and Peter Huffman my executors of this my last will and testament. In witness whereof I, John Huffman, do hereunto set my hand and seal this 7th day of Sept., 1832.

3 Jonas Hoffman, Sr., the son of John Hoffman, Sr., and my grandfather, was born in 1788, confirmed a member of Philadelphia Lutheran Church in a class with his future wife, Anna Maria Kastner, and others Dec. 27, 1812, married 1813, and died when comparatively young at his home on the present site of Spencer Mountain Cotton Mills in 1829. He is buried, as is his brother John in the private graveyard just a little up the hill from the mill, very close to the corner of one of the factory dwelling houses. His tombstone was still standing when I visited the place. It was about the only one in the graveyard, and it is so scaled off as to be only partially legible. Grandmother's is gone as are the rest. I was told one marble slab had been in use at one of the houses as a door step. Thus progress and business enroaches upon the silent home of the dead. I have heard nothing remarkable about the life of this dear old grandfather. He was a good, sensible, even tempered, industrious Christian man, and lived a happy contended life with his wife, a most excellent, lovable woman, surrounded by a growing family of seven sons and two daughters born to him in the space of about 16 years. He was cut down by disease in the prime of life when his oldest son was about 14 years old, and his daughters (twins) were only a few months old. His children were:

4 Jonas Hoffman, the son of Jonas Hoffman, Sr., my father, lived all his life in what was Lincoln Co., N. C., prior to 1846 and since has been Gaston County. After his first marriage to Sarah Rhyne April 21, 1842, he moved to and made his home on the farm west of Duhart Creek, of late known as the Quinn place, about two miles west of Lowell, on a tract of woodland of 140 acres without cultivated land or improvements. This, with "Dandy," his farm mare, his axe, mattock and a few farm implements constituted his start in worldly possessions and these were mainly the savings by his labor prior to marriage. He opened up the farm gradually and made his living from the cultivation of his fields with his own hands. He was a healthy and unusually energetic, temperate man, economical of necessity and prospered in a small way in all his undertakings. He had little education from the books. I have heard him say often that in school his graduation occurred when he had mastered the "Rule of Three." But by reading and thinking and observation he became a practical, intelligent and well posted man and took high rank among his neighbors as a man of fine sense and sound judgment. His first temporary house was a large one-room log house with kitchen and dining room against one side of the main room. By his industry and thrift he gradually accumulated means enough to build a five-room two-story dwelling house a few hundred yards west of the old house to which we moved in the late Summer of 1848, and the old house was torn down and moved to the outer yard of this new place immediately after and erected again without the side rooms as the residence of Ann, the old colored cook which grandfather Rhyne had given my mother. And this marks the dawn of my memories so far as I can now recall. (See Preface.) From their earliest married life and probably prior thereto, my father and mother were members of the Lutheran Chapel congregation. He was for a long time one of its Elders, I think till his removal to Dallas in 1868. He was loyal and liberal according to his means, in support of his Church and all worthy objects of benevolence. He was the friend of the people poorer than himself. Of wonderful good nature and even temper and tender hearted, he lived as near a blameless life as is possible for human nature. He was broad minded and just even to those who differed from him in sentiment and opinion. In his old age in a reminiscent mood he spoke of his earlier life and mentioned to me what he had never told, that his bitterest surprises was when he happened to catch a friend and neighbor in his corn crib carrying out a sack of his corn. The neighbor, of course, was sorry, and so was my father; but father told him he was sorry for the condition of his family that rendered such conduct in his estimation necessary—that if he had come and asked for the corn he should have had it. In spite of protest he made the neighbor put the sack of corn on his horse and take it along home. They remained friends as long as they both lived. I couldn't learn who that neighbor was. Looking upon father as a fit pattern after which to model a square life, I regret that I have not always been able to fit the pattern. As an illustration it amuses me to recall a parallel incident with a different ending which occurred to me a few years ago here in Dallas. My neighbor was a long, turkey-trotting negro man, noted for his fleetness of foot. Time: just break of day. I heard the rustling of the corn in crib and got out barefooted and in night array. I shielded myself near his way of exit and out he came with an immense sack of about three bushels of corn in ear. I accosted him and he ran, trying to carry the corn, but when I got on him he dropped his load and ran like the wind. I followed, hoping the race and the racket would cause some of the near neighbors to intercept him, but I ran against an old fence post which struck me in the groin and I turned upside down and landed on my back. I'm laughing now to think what a picture I made revolving in the air in my flapping paraphernalia. My "nigger" got away, but he never came back for his corn or his sack. I never prosecuted him.

Father allowed every man his dues to the limit and was not over contentious about his own. In politics before the war he was a Democrat, but being much attached to the Union when the storm of 1860 came up he found himself siding with the Douglas Democrats and opposed to secession. Among people the majority of whom were extremely overbearing and intolerant of that position, I think he conceded the theoretical right of secession, but felt very certain that it was bad policy. He freely conceded the right of every citizen to his opinion, but in the clash and many stinging shafts of abuse from neighbors he coolly held his own.

After the war commenced, he was entirely loyal to the new government and rendered great service to the manless families of his neighbors who were in the army. He was not an advocate of slavery, but was not an abolitionist. In conformity with the established institution of the South, he owned three or four slaves and these he often took to plow the fields for the neighboring families whose male members were in the army. In his relation to his slaves he was kind and humane, treating them very much as hirelings or children, except in social matters. He never whipped a slave except the children which he corrected as his own children, and this was extremely seldom. I think I can truly say that I never saw him use the switch in or about our home a half dozen times in my life. Yet he was obeyed without delay or question. Being over the age for an acceptable soldier he did not enter the army until the last year of the war when the age limit was raised. He was enlisted in the Confederate Navy and served faithfully on ship, Capt. Poindexter, Commander, and for a time was stationed in the Cape Fear River at Wilmington, and later at Dewey's Bluff on James River, Va. He was surrendered with General Lee's army at Apomattox. While he was at Wilmington, our company of boys were stationed at Duplin Cross Roads, now Wallace, and Rock Fish Bridge, some miles above Wilmington, and it so happened at that time I was Commissary Sergeant and went every two weeks to Wilmington for our rations, which usually consisted of corn meal and Nassau bacon. It is, at this late date now that he is dead, pleasingly pathetic that every time I went (learning that from some cause the navy was fed on wheaten bread) I cooked up my haversack full of corn bread and carried it along and divided with father. Even so poor an offering he greatly appreciated for he always liked corn bread.

After peace was made he thought the best thing for the South was to accept the unavoidable situation in good faith and make the best of a bad condition. This ranged him with the Republican party. His influence and advice was against all lawlessness and all spirit of intolerance and revenge. No one deplored more than he the terrible mismanagement and plunder of the reconstruction era in the South—the high revelry of the “carpetbaggers” in the depleted treasure halls of the Confederacy. Two or three times he was elected representative from Gaston County in the Legislature of the State and was also a delegate to the 1875 Constitutional Convention. Among many men of so much greater learning and experience, he took no leadership but he sought to accomplish the best for his people always advising moderation and conservatism. In 1868 he moved from his farm to the town of Dallas, where he indeed became a leader in all the small enterprises looking to the upbuilding of the village and county.

To get the railroad which had reached Gastonia from Chester, S. C., to Dallas, he, with two or three associates, graded the road-bed from Gastonia to Dallas and took pay mostly in stock which of course became almost worthless paper in their hands. He assisted materially in the establishment of Gaston High School in Dallas and later under the leadership of Rev. M. L. Little, (he carrying much the greatest amount of the stock of any of them), with said M. L. Little, Henry Setzer, A. P. Rhyne, L. L. Suggs, Jno. M. Rhodes, Jno. L. Rhyne, M. A. Rhyne, Moses H. Rhyne, W. A. Mauney, J. S. Mauney, David Mauney, and Ambrose Costner added to the old building a three-story brick building one hundred feet long and forty feet wide and the whole was developed into what was called Gaston Female College with primary department and it was also co-educational in the higher departments. While strictly not of high enough grade to be called a college it was a first-class high school teaching the ordinary college subjects far enough to obtain admittance to the Freshman or Sophomore classes in the best colleges of the South with French, German, music (a specialty), art, etc., such as were taught in the ordinary female colleges. They did not pretend to confer degrees, but many of the best doctors, preachers, teachers, and especially women of North and South Carolina owe their preparation for life work to this school. These men are worthy of the highest commendation, for the great work they did through the years of this college's successful existence. Their comparatively small gifts were the earnings of the toil and self-sacrifice of the givers, and involved more self-denial and consecration than the millions given by a Rockefeller or a Carnegie. The school maintained itself until about five years ago, when fearing it could not be sustained against the rivalry of the public high school established and maintained by taxes on all the people and of the numerous other schools encroaching on the territory of this school, its stockholders on receipt of about one-third the cost expended turned over the property to the Dallas Graded and High School. Everyone of these stockholders are relatives of mine except Rev. Little, and are embraced within the scope of this work if I shall be able to complete it. Though Republican in politics and subject to the odium attached to that name in this section, good naturedly he harbored no resentments and no scandal or charge of dishonesty ever attached to his name. Later in life he was nominated by the Prohibitionists for State Treasurer, but with no hope of election. He voted for prohibition whenever he had a chance—even when only three votes were cast that way in Dallas Township.

He had suffered intensely at times for several years with asthma and while pulling up weeds in the back lot next his home he fell and died before he could be carried into the house. This occurred in Dallas, N. C., on the 6th day of Sept., 1901, at the age of 81 years, 3 months and 16 days. Because there was not room left beside the graves of his beloved dead at Lutheran Chapel Church yard, at his request he is buried in the graveyard of the Lutheran Church in Dallas. A nice polished shaft of Red Maine granite marks his resting place. It is inscribed, "Hoffman. I know that my Redeemer liveth." "Jonas Hoffman was born June 20, 1820. Died Sept. 6, 1901."

A beautiful memorial window put in the church by his widow and children attests their love.

And what of the three women who walked in peace and happiness parts of the way, as it were in relays, as helpmeets and comforters to this man. They were all good, and good natured women, kind hearted, industrious and Christian women. They were keepers at home and sympathizers with their husband in all his conditions, aspirations, and undertakings. They were worthy of the man. The first was my mother. Soon after the second came into our home, I went to college and then to work for myself away from home and I only spent my vacations and short visits at home, but my experience and observations fully justify me in saying that both step-mothers were good, kindly and motherly women. If they ever made a difference between us, their step-children, and their own children, I never knew it, nor did I ever hear brother or sister hint of there being any difference. We were all treated alike, and we were all loved alike so far as we ever felt. I know no higher tribute I can pay a step-mother. The last still lives in the old hotel home in Dallas. And long and happy may she live. My mother was a small woman—weighing probably 110 pounds. It has been a life long regret to me that she had no picture taken of herself.

In my boyhood there was a common saying that the 21st and 31st chapters of Proverbs were prophecies of the fortune or lot of all the people—the day of birth corresponding to the number of the verse, the 21st chapter for men and the 31st for women. Mother was born on the 30th, and the 30th verse of the 31st chapter reads, “Favor is deceitful and beauty is vain, but a woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised.” The verse was so apt as a description of my mother that I almost had a superstitious reverence for these fortune telling chapters. Mother was a pious, tender hearted woman and loved everybody. When the two old Murrell women, inmates of the neighboring poor house, came as they often did to spend the day, she gave them as warm a welcome and got them as good a dinner as when her richest brother came. And when they were gone she gave no intimation that it wasn’t a pleasure to have them visit her, for she did enjoy having them. She liked a nice dress with a bunch of pinks, which was her favorite flower and which she always cultivated in her garden. I distinctly recall the pleasure she showed when father brought her what she said was her first silk dress. She very seldom punished us but somehow she got us to obey so that we did not often need punishment. As for myself she never to my recollection whipped me, nor did father. And only one of my teachers ever did. So fortunate was I in this respect that I suspect that everybody in authority over me was partial to me. I feel sure the dear teacher who gave me my only whipping was but the switch was not optional in her school curriculum. She never graduated a student in her school till he took this requirement. And she was nearly right.

All together then as December comes I feel that all the months have been good to me. Mother died while comparatively young and is buried in the graveyard at Lutheran Chapel Church which she loved so much. Her sons, Jacob, Monroe, Alex and my half-sister, Callie, and step-mother, Mary J., all lie beside her as well as most of her brothers and sisters nearby.

Her tombstone is inscribed as follows: Engraved open Bible and “Sarah, wife of Jonas Hoffman, Died, July 8, 1862,” (was born Aug. 30, 1823). “The last kind words and hope she gave, Upon this marble we engrave, My love to husband, children, friends be given, I hope to meet them all in heaven." Monroe's tombstone has: "In memory of Larkin Monroe, son of J. and S. Hoffman. Born Nov. 21, 1843. Died July 28, 1847."

"Alas, how changed that lovely flower,
Which bloomed and cheered my heart,
Fair fleeting comfort of an hour,
How soon we're called to part."

Also Alexander's: "In memory of James Alexander, son of J. and S. Hoffman. Born May 13, 1855. Died July 26, 1857."

Also Jacob's: "In memory of C. J. Hoffman. Born July 9, 1846. (This should have been engraved 1849). Died July 16, 1868. Yes, let it be, one look from thee will more than make amends for all the loss I sustain of credit, riches, friends."

Also sister Callie's: "In memory of Mary Callie, daughter of Jonas and Mary J. Hoffman, died Sept. 13, 1872, aged 3 years, 7 mos. and 2 days."

Also step-mother's: "In memory of Mary Jane, wife of Jonas Hoffman, born Aug. 2, 1839. Died Feby. 23, 1874, aged 34 years, 6 mos. and 21 days."

C. to Marble Hill, Bolinger Co., Mo., but about the beginning of the war they moved again and settled at Lexington, Ill., where she died in 1888, and he in 1900. Most of their descendants live in that section.

After the death of Jonas Hoffman, Sr., his widow, Anna Maria, married Ezekiel Hanks; and though her further descendants do not regularly belong at this place but rather in the Costner family to follow this, still the relationship has been so intimate and agreeable and love and esteem so mutual that I will record the Hoffman and Hanks descendants together at this place. To Anna Maria Hoffman Hanks there were born four daughters by her second husband, and these grew up and became the mothers of many respected descendants to-wit:

4 Roxanna, m. Zimri Ford; Susie, m. Franklin Abernethy; Barbara, m. James W. Kendrick; Josephine, m. Cephas Stroup.

4 Roxanna Ford with her family, prior to the Civil War, moved to what is now Balloon, Yell Co., Ark. They were good and highly respectable well-to-do citizens. They both—herself and husband—died there and are buried in the graveyard of Salem Methodist Church, of which they were members, a short distance from their home. A nice marble monument marks their resting place inscribed as follows: "Sacred to the memory of Roxanna C., wife of Z. P. Ford. Born May, 1831. Died Nov. 5, 1883. A devoted wife, a kind mother, a Christian neighbor, her children arise and call her blessed. Her husband also and he praiseth her;" and "Z. P. Ford, born June 22, 1831. Died June 2nd, 1903. An amiable father here lies at rest as ever God with his image blest. The friend of man, the friend of truth, the friend of age, the friend of youth. He was the father of C. J., E. M., J. L., J. 3 Catharine Hoffman, daughter of John Hoffman, Sr., who married Dan'l Rhyne, son of Peter Rhyne, lived, died and is buried on farm lying on the east side of the South Fork of Catawba River in Gaston Co., N. C., a little over a mile above the Hoyles bridge, which farm is now owned and occupied by Jno. L. Smith. She died in 1845 and her husband died in 1852. 4 Susan Setzer and her husband, Henry Setzer, lived across the river opposite the Dan'l Rhyne farm on a farm previously occupied by Peter Rhyne, a brother to Dan'l Rhyne. He was an old-fashioned, unpretentious man (and I hope his fashion may never change). He was a man of no great education or culture but he had remarkable common sense and good judgment. I have known few better men or citizens always ready to lend a strong helping hand to every worthy cause or unfortunate neighbor. In life pure; in business and thought without a suggestion of guile. This worthy couple had a large family of children, all girls except next to the youngest a son. They have many worthy descendants living for the most part in this section as follows:

On my visit of inquiry to Missouri in the Fall of 1907, it was my good fortune to be delightfully entertained by Judge and Mrs. A. J. F. Moser at their pleasant home at Gravelton, Mo., and I am under great obligation to them for that and for the help they gave me in getting so much desired information from that section. They are the kind of people one always wants to see again.

5 Henry Rhyne married but I think had no children. Owing to an infirmity of his mind, as we think, and under the influence of some liquor and other great irritations, he prepared himself with a pistol and attempted to return to an affray in which he had been involved. His half brother, John Chronister, attempted to prevent his return and to restrain him. In a raging passion he shot and killed his brother. I performed the unpleasant duty of assisting in his defense as his attorney. He was convicted of manslaughter and sent to the N. C. penitentiary for a term of years. It is said he made his escape and I haven't learned what became of him.

3 Elizabeth Hoffman Rhyne and her husband, Solomon Rhyne, lived near the Hoyle bridge over the South Fork of Catawba River between the creek and river, south and joining the farm of his brother, Daniel Rhyne. They lived long and useful lives, exemplary in all their relations of life. They had a large family of descendants scattered all over the South. They are buried in the graveyard of Christ's Lutheran Church at Stanly, N. C. Their tombstones are inscribed as follows: "In memory of Solomon Rhyne, born Jan. 15, 1793. Died April 1st, 1865, aged 72 years, 2 mos. and 16 days." "Elizabeth Rhyne, born June 10, 1794. Died Sept. 17, 1882, aged 88 years, 3 mos. and 17 days." Their children were:

His children were: 5 By 1st wife, Maria, whose mother died when she was quite young. This daughter was brought up by her grandmother, Stump, and later married a Mr. Cann in Ala. It is said she moved to Texas about the beginning of the Civil War. She died leaving descendants but as the rest of the family left her locality they can't inform me, nor has long search resulted in information of their names or whereabouts except that one daughter, Parmelia, married a Mr. Bishop.

3 Daniel Hoffman, son of John Hoffman, Sr., was an intelligent, enterprising, genial man of high principles of moral and Christian life. His home for a long time was on the old Yorkville road two miles south of Dallas on the place known now as the Bell place. Upon the establishment of Gaston County and the founding of Dallas in 1847, he was a prominent actor and aided much in the arrangement of the new order of things. In 1851-2 he built the large 44-room brick hotel, standing on the southwest corner of the public square and always known as the Hoffman House, he being succeeded after his death in the management and ownership by my father, Jonas Hoffman, in 1868. He and my father both died at this house. He died honored and highly esteemed by his neighbors in the year 1866 well along to his three-score years and ten. He is buried in the church yard of the Lutheran Church in Dallas, of which he was a member. In his life by appointment of the County Court he was one of the committee to allot church lots free to the principal churches of the section and this lot was given the Lutheran Church. A modest marble slab marks his grave on which is inscribed: "Daniel Hoffman, born June 21, 1797. Died Dec. 28, 1866, aged 69 years, 6 months and eight days." Three of his daughters and two sons, to-wit: Mrs. Quinn, Mrs. McKeown, Mrs. Rhyne-Davis, Fredk. and Rufus are buried by his side. His wife survived him several years and died across the river near Stanley and on account of the freshet in the river she was buried at Christ Church. The children of Daniel Hoffman were:

3 Peter Hoffman, youngest child of John Hoffman, Sr., was born in Lincoln, now Gaston County, N. C., at his father's home already described and as heretofore seen he succeeded his father in the ownership of the old home. Here he grew up, married and lived until 1851 when he moved and settled in Pope County, Arkansas, near where Russellville is now located. I visited him there two or three times during his life time. He was one of those grand rugged old men, lovable for his easy good disposition, kind heart, gentle manner, broad sympathies and upright contented life. Such a thing as trick or deceit was foreign to his nature. These, with strong convictions as to the right in the questions of his day, made up an admirable character. He died having lived over his three score and ten years on the 27th day of Feby., 1886, and is buried at Pisgah Church graveyard in the vicinity. His tombstone bears this simple inscription: "Farewell" (over clasped hands) and under "Peter Hoffman, born in Lincoln Co., N. C., March 10, 1808. Died Feby. 28, 1886" (28 is error for 27). His wife had died ten years prior to his death. Her tombstone by his side is inscribed, "Anna Hoffman, born Apr. 13, 1810. Died Dec. 5, 1875, aged 65 years, 22 days."

The following is a tribute published in The Russellville Democrat soon after his death. It will be of interest to his friends:

"In Memoriam. A simple announcement of the death of Mr. Peter Hoffman appeared in The Democrat a week ago. Will you allow a more extended notice. For the subject was certainly worthy of it, both on account of his many relatives and friends, his long residence in Pope County, his advanced age, having reached nearly four score years; and the worth and integrity of his character. Mr. Hoffman was born the 10th day of March, 1808, in Lincoln County, N. C. He moved to Pope County, Ark., and settled about three miles east of Russellville, where he remained until a short while before his death. The last few months of his life he lived with Mrs. Twigg Brown where he was visited by his children and where everything that loving care could suggest was done for his comfort. Slowly but surely his strength failed. "The almond tree had long flourished, the grasshopper was a burden, and the strong men bowed themselves," and he was at last compelled to lay him down, not sick, but the messenger had come. On Saturday, Feby. 27, he was taken with something like paralysis and the following day, the 28th of February, 1886, without a struggle or a pang he passed away. "Like the morning star which goes not down behind the darkened west nor is obscured among the tempests of the sky but melts away into the light of heaven." Mr. Hoffman was a member of the Lutheran Church in North Carolina and there being no church of that faith in this country and strong in his convictions he had united with none here, but leading a quiet and peaceable life, honorable dealings with his fellow man, and the vilest tramp never asked for bread and asked in vain. On March 1st he was carried by loving hands to his last resting place in Pisgah Church yard and placed by the side of his wife who had preceded him about ten years, and together they await the bright resurrection morn and a glad reunion in a home in that city which hath foundations and whose builder and maker is God.

Potts Station, Ark., Mch. 23rd."

He carried from North Carolina his church letter and this also will interest many friends both in Ark. and N. C. It is signed by the full church council, consisting of the pastor (that great old preacher, the Rev. Jesse R. Patterson), my father, uncle and two other kinsmen. It is as follows: "Lutheran Chapel, Gaston County, N. C., Sept. 28, 1851. To all Christians, Greeting: We, the pastor and Church Council of the congregation worshipping in the Lutheran Chapel, do hereby certify that Mr. Peter Hoffman and Ann, his wife, are members in regular and good standing in the Evangelical Lutheran Church. We hereby commend him to the care of those to whom he may apply for spiritual guidance.

SECTION 5—MARY DETTERO (TOTHEROW)

2 Mary Hoffman, daughter of Jacob Hoffman, 1st married John Dettero; who tradition says, came from Germany with the Hoffman family when a boy under contract to work six years to pay the expense of the voyage, but after arrival here he made himself so useful to his employer, that contrary to the prevalent rule now, not his wages but his time of service, was reduced considerably. But from the fact the boy was not only making himself useful to the old man but also interesting to the old man's girl, the suspicion arises that the young lady may have had something to do with it. Perhaps this Jacob remembered the gentleman of old time from whom he derived his name, who had suffered a grievous wrong and was made to do double time for his girl, and he would rather err on the side of generosity than to have this disgraceful history repeat itself. Any way, when John Totherow grew up he married the girl and made their home some where in the vicinity of Philadelphia Church on the South Fork of the Catawba River—not that the Church was there at that time, for it was not established till a later date. They reared an unusually large family of children who have scattered off mostly westward—so scattered that I have been altogether unable with most earnest search to collect anything like all the names of their descendants, especially after the second generation. Much more could be done if my health had been better and I had had more surplus means of money and time to travel and prosecute the search in the various places where they now live. Hundreds of them are in the mountains of N. C., Tenn., Miss., Arkansas, Missouri, etc. It looks as if I have the names of all the children of Mary Hoffman Totherow, the pioneer mother of the family in this section. But first, a few words about the name. It is said by the old members of the family I have interviewed, that the name when old John came over the ocean from Germany was Dettero. Now in these parts it is Totherow. In Tenn. and Arkansas it is Dethrow, or Dothrow, a curious difference. It will help to explain the transformations to remember the soft, musical slurring over of the D sound by our old German fathers and mothers. So that we are scarcely able to recognize the difference between their sounding of D and T. Then again th is pronounced in German as t and not as we sound th. Any way one of the old men of the family had a way of teaching the pronunciation of the name by saying "It's not this row, nor that row, but tother row." I shall probably write the name Totherow—not to establish that as the correct name—I think it is not, but because nearly all of the family I have been acquainted with so pronounce it. The children of Mary and John Totherow were:

3 Jonathan, m. Louisa Clemmer, daughter of Jno. and Hanna Hoffman Clemmer.

3 Solomon, m. Elizabeth Jenkins, 1815.

3 Jacob, m. Nancy Weathers (Withers), 1814. I think, daughter of Geo., brother of Elisha.

3 John Totherow, I think, moved to East Tennessee, or it may be Western N. C., as many of his descendants are still to be found in Swayne and Macon Counties in N. C. In Mch., 1913, Mrs. Dethrow or Totherow, was quite sprightly and well and had good prospects of reaching her hundredth year, but she fell and injured herself. She lingered in suffering till Mch. 24, 1913, and died at about 98 years of age. She was buried next day at the Howard graveyard near her home—universally loved and respected. They were extremely interesting and noted for their splendid weaving and their wonderful information in family history and tradition. From Miss Christine I obtained information here recorded that I think could not now be collected from any source again. I feel very thankful to these good women for their interesting help.

3 Barbara Totherow, daughter of Jno. Totherow, the pioneer, m. Dan'l Stamey, and I think they also lived in Lincoln County, but I have scant history of this family also. Among other children they had two daughters, Ann and Katie.

3 Sallie Totherow married Jacob Plonk, a son of Peter Plonk, and a first cousin of Jacob Plonk the doctor. Her children were:

3 Catherine Totherow, daughter of John, the pioneer, married Philip Rhyne, son of Jacob Rhyne the 2nd. They moved with the crowd of Clemmers, Totherow, etc., and settled in or near Monroe Co., Tenn. She was one of five drowned in the little Tennessee River by the capsizing of their boat. For her descendants see Philip Rhyne, Chapter 2, Section 2.

3 Of Margaret Dixon's life and family I have not learned, except that she had the following children in Ark.: 4 Jno., m. Margt. Smith; Catherine, m. Amos Reynolds; and Agnes, m.—.

3 Of Michael Totherow's descendants I have not obtained information.

3 And the same, I am sorry to say, of Susan Totherow, daughter of Jno., the pioneer, who married Henry Shrum. There are some indications that the last two moved to Missouri.

2 Hanna Hoffman, daughter of Jacob Hoffman, pioneer, married Michael Rhyne, son of Peter Rhyne, in 1798. This family moved westward. I have been able to obtain little information as to his life and descendants. Tradition has it that he was reckless, and it is a fact his father who had considerable property provided in his will that he should have only $1.00 of his estate.

2 Catharine, daughter of Jacob Hoffman 1st, married Charles Glance, and in 1790, when the first United States census was taken, she lived on Little Long Creek in then Lincoln County (now Gaston) about two miles east of Dallas and about the same distance from the mouth of said Creek. She is registered as the head of a family at that time from which fact I conclude that her husband was dead. Her lands adjoined that of Conrad Kinder and others. Some time later she seems to have moved, in company with her sister, Elizabeth, and Jacob Palmer to Buncombe County, N. C., in which section she still has descendants. After years of search and of uncertainty and doubt, I had given up the hope of getting any definite history of her descendants and closed my manuscript with a very meager account of her family. Since then by merest chance, I saw the name of Mr. Jesse P. Glance of Cross Rock, Madison County, N. C., and on reopening my investigation, I found that he is a grandson of Catharine Hoffman, and her husband, Charles Glance, and he furnishes to me a list of their descendants as follows:

3 Christina, married Joseph Carver.

3 Barbara, married Mallie Reeves.

3 Elizabeth, married George Debard.

3 Catharine, married James Lusk.

3 Mary, married Wm. Miller.

3 Rachael and Sallie moved away to Bradley Co., Tenn.

Rachael married ——— Jack.

3 Ann, m. John Foster.

3 Jacob, married Hannah Rodgers.

3 John Hoffman, married Mahala Wells.

3 I haven't received names of descendants of Christina Carver, Barbara Reeves, Eliz. Debard, or Mary Miller or of Rachael Jack.

3 Catharine Lusk's children were:

4 Sallie, m. Joseph Chunn, Asheville, N. C.; Eliza, m. ——— Clayton (he died and she went west); John, m. Sarah Robinson; and live in Buncombe Co., N. C.

3 Jacob Glance had three children:

4 Eliz., s.; Mary Ann, m. ——— Cooper; and lives in Oklahoma; and Viannah, m. Thos. Robinson (Texas).

Chapter 2

RHYNE

SECTION I

Jacob Rhyne (Rein) was the pioneer of this family in this section of the country. He came from Palatine section of Germany on the Upper Rhine River. Like most of our other German ancestors, he came first to England and there reshipped to America, landing at Philadelphia. He settled for a short time about York, Penn., and then came on South, making his final and permanent home in what is now Gaston County on upper Hoyle's Creek adjoining on the south the place known as the Dellinger Tavern, and later as the brick house John Smith place. I do not know the exact date of his coming. I do not find that any land at all was ever patented to him, but I think it probable that he and wife temporarily located on "Rudisill's Creek," which I take to mean Leeper's Creek, and located a large tract of land which was conveyed to "Elizabeth Rine" by Wm. Tryon, Governor, on the 28th of April, 1768, described as 600 acres on both sides of Rudisill's Creek joining Dellinger's land. But before that date there is a tradition that Nicholas Freytag (Friday), the pioneer of that family who had preceeded him and patented large tracts of land, gave him 200 acres of land to induce him to settle as neighbor to him, that the consideration named in the conveyance was two pepper-corns, that the land was measured with a grape vine, corners established and deed duly executed. After the death of the old people the same tradition has it, that it was found that there were 350 acres within the boundaries and that suit was instituted to secure the excess but failed. I think this tradition has foundation in fact, but that it was Philip Rudisill and not Nicholas Friday, that made the gift. From the official records I find that Philip Rudisill patented 520 acres of land at that place May 20, 1754. (See Secretary of State's office book 13, page 3).

In 1764 Philip Rudisill conveyed two hundred acres of this entry, "on which said Jacob Rhyne now lives" in consideration of "five shillings sterling one-half of gold and silver mines excepted," and his paying yearly one pepper-corn, to the said Philip Rudisill. I think Jacob Rhyne continued to live on his Hoyle's Creek land till his death, for it is distinctly said that he and his wife are buried at the Hovis graveyard only a short distance from the site of his old home. His son-in-law, John Hovis, succeeded to this old Rhyne home and so the graveyard was called the Hovis graveyard. However there are these indications in his will that he may have lived over in the Leeper's Creek section: One is the fact that he made a legacy to the Dutch Lutheran Church which was very near where Machpela now stands and another is that the witnesses to his will were Joseph Abernethy and Peter Forney, names later very common along the west bank of the Catawba River in that section. But this church was probably the first Lutheran Church established in this section, and the distance was not so great but that he could easily attend it and have intercourse with the citizens of that section. Jacob Rhyne's wife was Elizabeth Wills (probably Wiltz), a sister of Garrett Wills, the pioneer of that family here. Mr. Rhyne, I think was married in Germany, or at least in Pennsylvania. For while my son, Ernest, was attending Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore at my suggestion he went to York, Pa., and made some investigation to try to connect our German people here with those of the same name there. He found indeed many of our family names there still, but did not have sufficient data to connect those of the two sections. In a German Church Record of 1751, he found this entry: "Jacob Rein and frau Elizabeth, parents, child Magdalena, born five weeks before baptism. Baptised Sept. 8. Sponsor, Jacob Nees."

Our pioneer had a daughter Magdalene who was born about that date who married Adam Cloninger, and, though to more fitly designate the pair, she was also called Eve. But Mr. Cloninger in his will calls her Magdalene. This old father Rein was one of the principal contributors to the establishment of the Dutch Lutheran Church aforesaid and in death it claimed his remembrance, and love. A tradition has it that he gave to the church over thirty acres of land for its location, but if this be true it was done, I think, through his son-in-law, Adam Cloninger, for Mr. John Helderman still has in his possession a deed made by Adam Cloninger conveying to "the Dutch Lutheran Church" thirty-five acres of land. Later the church fell into disuse and neglect and even the acre of the dead grew up in a thicket of bushes and brambles. And when later attention was turned to it, others claimed the land and on account of lapse of time and technical defect in draft of the deed the land was lost. Capt. Brevard who was in possession in late years gave back the old graveyard which Mr. Helderman cleared up and enclosed to stand till perhaps another generation will take possession and turn it into another turnip patch. If our old father's grave is marked at all, it is by only a rough, unhewn and unlettered stone and no one can point to the definite place where he and his wife rest. He died in the last of 1794 or the very first of 1795. He left a will, the original of which is still preserved in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court of Lincoln County. It is signed in German and any of his descendants may there see the actual signature of this, our worthy sire. This will is in words and figures following:

"In the name of God. Amen. I Jacob Rine of the County of Lincoln and State of North Carolina being of perfect memory and sound understanding, do make and ordain this to be my last will and testament and as touching my worldly estate devise and dispose of it in manner following: First I give and bequeath unto the Dutch Lutheran Church five pounds to be paid by my executors. Second, I give and bequeath unto my wife, Elizabeth, one hundred pounds hard money, gold and silver, one stove and pot rack and all the utensils belonging to the house during her natural life and after her decease the whole to be divided equally amongst all my children. And I do appoint Adam Cloninger and Peter Rine Executors of this my last will and testament, revoking and disannulling all wills and testaments heretofore made. Ratifying and confirming this to be my last will and testament. In testimony where of I have hereunto set my hand and seal this twenty-second day of May, 1793.

JACOB REIN (Seal).

(In German).

JOSEPH ABERNETHY.

PETER FORNEY."

Endorsed: "Jacob Rhine's Will. Proved Jany., 1795. Copy given." From this three ways of spelling the name are given. The body of the will written supposedly by a lawyer spells it Rine; the endorsement by the clerk spells it Rhine; and we today spell it Rhyne. While the old man who knew, spelled it in his native language Rein, and this means "pure." Let all of us who inherit the blood of this pure ancestor strive in every event of life to illustrate our name by purity of heart, thought and conduct.

It is a source of great regret that the names of his children are not mentioned in this will, as well as that no inscribed monument marks the resting place of this worthy couple in the rustic graveyard at their home place. They are the ancestors of a long line of worthy descendants. It is hard to say with certainty what were the names and number of their children. The oldest living descendant known to me and visited by me in Arkansas, a great granddaughter now about 96 years old, and of remarkable knowledge and memory of the family, Mrs. Isabella Dethrow, thinks there were seven or eight sons and several daughters. The following seven children are undoubtedly correct, except as to the name of Mrs. Hovis, to-wit:

2 Jacob, 2nd, m. Maria Elizabeth Best, daughter of Bastian Best, pioneer.

2 Eve Magdalene, m. Adam Cloninger, pioneer.

2 Peter, m. Anne Magdalene Wills, daughter of Garrett Wills, pioneer.

2 Sarah Catharine, m. Jno. Hovis, son of Geo. Hovis, pioneer.

2 Philip, m. Hanna Hoyle, granddaughter of Peter Hoyle, pioneer.

2 Michael, m. Barbara Hoyle, sister to Hanna Hoyle, Philip Rhyne's wife.

2 Mollie died unmarried, and I have little doubt of.

2 Thos., b. 1742, m. Barbara Wise, died 1837, aged 95 years; and possibly Adam and Daniel. Of the last two I know nothing except that aunt Isabella Dethrow (Totherow) thinks her grandfather Philip Rhyne had brothers of these names but she can give me no account of them.

There was also a John Rhyne who married Nellie Lefevre in 1808, and lived near Philadelphia Church, and they were members of that church, the German record of which shows that he had a son born and baptized Feby. 25, 1809, whose name was Ephraim, and another Andreas (Andrew) baptized May 28, 1810, but he could hardly have been a son of the old pioneer unless he married rather late in life. I have been unable to locate his place in the Rhyne family.

SECTION 2—JACOB RHYNE, 2nd

2 Jacob Rhyne 2nd, was born about 1740 to 1745. He died 1825, at the age of about 85 years. His wife was the daughter of Bastian (Sebastian) Best, the pioneer of the family, and she was the granddaughter of the pioneer Peter Hoyle whose daughter, Catharine, married Bastian Best. Jacob Rhyne 2nd, with his family lived on the north side of Big Long Creek on the lower end of the land now owned by his great grandson Charles S. Stowe and about opposite to the upper side of the land of Peter Rhyne (brother to said Jacob) who lived on the south side of said Creek. The ruins of this old home and cellar and the excavation in the hill side where his still-house stood are still to be seen. He with his wife and about three children are buried in a private graveyard on his own place about half way between his house and the public road leading from Dallas to Spencer Mt. No others except the above seem to be buried there. The graves are overgrown with woods, and trees of considerable size stand on the graves. Rough stones picked up from the fields mark the heads and feet of the graves and there are no inscriptions of any kind upon any of them except one which has on it "J. R. 1825."

His children were:

3 Michael, m. Catharine Hoffman, daughter of Jacob Hoffman 2nd.

3 Martin, m. Jane Freeman (possibly nee Holland) in 1797.

3 Jacob, m. Elizabeth Hoffman, daughter of Jacob Hoffman 2nd.

3 Philip, m. Cath. Totherow, dau. of Jno. Totherow, pioneer, and Susan Chambers.

3 Adam, m. Peggy Best, daughter of Peter Best.

3 Jonas, m. Anne Kiser, in 1812.

3 David, m. Anne Carpenter, in 1816.

3 Thomas, m. Katie Rudisill, sister to Gentleman Jonas Rudisill; and Eliz. ———, in Mo.

3 Sarah, m. Samuel Withers, in 1812.

3 For Michael Rhyne's descendants see Cath. Hoffman Rhyne, page 46.

3 Martin Rhyne for several years lived near the spring on what is now the home of Charles Rhyne who is a grandson of Jacob, brother to Martin. This was afterward a part of the large tracts of land owned by Jacob Rhyne on which he lived on the north side of Big Long Creek on an almost direct line between Dallas and Gastonia. The records of Long Creek Baptist church show that he was a member of that church in the early years of the 19th century and that his wife "Ginny" was received into that church. The record of Lincoln County shows that Martin Rhyne married Jane Freeman, but some of her descendants in Mo. are pretty positive that her maiden name was Holland. Julius Holland, the pioneer of that family here, was a Baptist preacher and preached at that church in those days, but on the other hand the descendants of Julius Holland here know nothing of any daughter of Julius Holland. I have thought Mrs. Rhyne may have been born Holland, and was a widow Freeman when Martin Rhyne married her. He later moved to Cape Girardeau Co., Mo., and settled near Daisy. This must have been somewhere about 1825 to 1830. For a time he seems to have moved to Macoupin Co., Ill., where he has descendants still living. But he must have returned to Missouri for he is buried near Daisy. He has the following children:

4 John, m. Catharine Hoffman, daughter of "Laughing" Jno. Hoffman.

4 Josiah died unmarried in 1900, age 92 years.

4 Jacob, b. 1819, m. Caroline Fuller, b. 1822, in Ill., and moved to Ark.

4 Jonas, m. Jennie McCormack; Eli, Hosea and Levi, all d. s.

4 Martin, m. ——— Jones, in Macaupin County, Illinois.

4 Jane, m. Peter Smith, son of Wm., son of Peter and wife Hanna Best.

ttlemire lived in southwest Ill. and for a time in California and Oregon, so that Mr. Settlemire's descendants are scattered over the West. Mary Settlemire's children were:

Settlemire was an influential and wealthy citizen and a potent factor in the upbuilding of southern Ill. The following obituary notice from The Mt. Vernon Daily News will give a partial history of this good man and show in what high esteem he was held:

"David Orr Settlemire was born in Cape Girardeau Co., Missouri, March 24, 1827, and the year following his parents emigrated to Brighton, Green County, Ill., ten miles from Alton. Mr. Settlemire was raised in Brighton, Ill., on a farm until he was 17 years of age. In his seventeenth year he left home to serve an apprenticeship at the cabinetmaker's trade in Carlinville, Ill., where he worked three years. He then gave up the cabinetmaker's trade and commenced working at the carpenter's trade which he continued until 1858, at Brighton, Bunker Hill and Giles pie as contractor. His last work in this line was a large flouring mill at Giles pie, Ill., for himself. He operated this flouring mill until 1861 when he sold the mill and engaged in the grain business in connection with merchandising at that place until the Fall of the year 1866, when he purchased property in Litchfield and the following year, erected his present beautiful home and the grain elevator now known as the O. K. Mills, it being the first regular grain house and elevator kept in operation there throughout the year. In that year, 1867, he removed his family to Litchfield and has been a resident of that city ever since. In 1870 he sold his elevator to J. B. L. Keating and built the 'Wabash Elevator,' and equipped it with a grain dump of his own design for unloading and handling grain; it being the first one used in the State, consequently attracted much attention and admiration and succeeded in revolutionizing the methods of handling grain. In 1871 he built the Harvel elevator and with Maj. Robt. McWilliams, laid out the town of Harvel, Ill. In 1873 he built the elevator at Mt. Olive and six years later bought and remodeled the elevator at Morrisville.

"On March 20, 1876, Mr. Settlemire was elected president of the Litchfield Car Mfg. Co., which had just made an assignment on March 3 to M. M. Martin as assignee. Mr. Settlemire managed the business for the assignee until August, 1877, when the property was sold for the benefit of creditors. The property was purchased by Mr. Settlemire, who then organized the Litchfield Car and Machine Co., becoming the president of the company, which position he continued to hold until 1889 when he sold out his interest in the company and retired from the presidency. Mr. Settlemire then organized the Mt. Vernon Car Mfg. Co., putting up a much larger and more complete car manufacturing plant and becoming the president of the company in which position he continued until his death. The plant at Mt. Vernon employs 1,000 men and has an output of over five million dollars worth of work annually.

" * * * * On Nov. 29, 1849, he was married to Sarah J. Adams who survives him, as also his two children: Geo. L. Settlemire and Mrs. W. C. Arthurs of Mt. Vernon, Ill. Mr. Settlemire was a life long member of the Presbyterian Church and a very liberal contributor to the same. * * * * Because of age and infirmity, Mr. Settlemire has largely for several years, desisted from the active direction of the company's business, leaving that work to the capable management of his son-in-law, W. C. Arthurs, vice-president, who is thoroughly acquainted with every detail of the business, and whose able management of late years is a guaranty that the death of Mr. Settlemire will in no wise interfere with the continued operation of the plant as heretofore.

"The funeral will occur at the family home in Litchfield Saturday afternoon at 2.30. The shop employees will attend in a body from here, and numerous other friends in this city will doubtless be present."

5 I have not learned the history or descendants of Jane Shore, the sister of Mr. D. O. Settlemire.

3 Jacob Rhyne 3rd, married Elizabeth Hoffman, daughter of Jacob Hoffman 2nd. They lived on the north side of Big Long Creek, directly south of Dallas. He was a prominent, influential man of fine sense and business ability. He owned a very large quantity of land and quite a number of slaves to whom he was most humane. They were very kindly treated and cared for. Most of his men servants hired themselves and did pretty much as they pleased inside the law. He never sold a slave and he made a provision in his will that none of them should be sold out of the family. I have often talked with some of these slaves since emancipation. They always spoke of their old master with the utmost respect and veneration and the tears often came into their eyes as they thought and talked of him and his youngest son, Jno. Jonas Rhyne. He was born in 1777 and was married in 1800. His wife survived him five years and died when she had lived three days longer than he. Though members of Philadelphia Lutheran Church, they are buried side by side at Long Creek Church yard where marble slabs stand in their memory. The inscriptions are: "Sacred to the memory of Jacob Rhyne, who was born Jan. 19, 1777. Died June 10, 1849, aged 72 years, 4 months and 21 days. Ye sons of men, a feeble race, Exposed to every snare, Come, make the Lord your dwelling place, O come and trust his care. Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord."

"Sacred to the memory of Elizabeth Rhyne who was born the 6th day of Feb., 1782, and departed this life the 30th day of June, A. D., 1854, aged 72 years, 4 months and 24 days."

3 David Rhyne was the seventh son of his parents without older sisters and hence was "Dr." supposed to have natural curative powers in some infantile diseases.

3 Thomas Rhyne, eighth son of his parents, Jacob Rhyne 2nd, and Maria Elizabeth Best, married Katie Rudisill, a sister of "Gentleman" Jonas Rudisill. It is said while in this country they lived on Little Long Creek not far from its junction with Big Long Creek on the place now owned by W. S. Robinson, once the Cox place. After three sons were born this couple disagreed and separated. He went west and settled in Southeast Missouri and married again. His second wife was named Elizabeth, but in spite of the fact that I have corresponded with her grandchildren at Alley and Seventy-Six, Mo., and written to one daughter still living I have been unable to obtain the family name of Thos. Rhyne's second wife. Some of my correspondents thought her a Hoffman and some thought it was Oshy. Since writing above I am told the wife of Thos. Rhyne was Elizabeth Pressnell, sister to the wife of his son Emanuel. The N. C. branch of the family entirely lost sight of Thos. Rhyne and had no hint of his whereabouts or his new family. His first wife also married again the second time to Michael Harmon and she reared not only her three Rhyne sons but a family of Harmons in N. C. The North Carolina Rhynes of this family still live in various sections of N. C. and S. C., and also the Harmon family I think in large part live in Iredell Co., N. C., while the second set of Rhynes of this family are scattered in Mo., Ill. and other western sections. Mrs. Sandlin, the only surviving child of Thomas Rhyne, lives at Cross-town, Mo. For eight or ten years I sought diligently for information of Thos. Rhyne who was brother to my grandfather, Jacob Rhyne. As seen I have not a full account of the family yet, but sufficient to give to friends who care to pursue the matter further a good start to complete the list. If when I was visiting in this section I had known the above I might easily have completed it.

3 Sallie (Sarah) Rhyne was the only daughter of Jacob Rhyne 2nd, among the foregoing nine children. She married Sam'l Withers, the son of Elisha Withers, who was an American soldier of the Revolutionary War. She lived just about a mile east of Long Creek Baptist Church. in the graveyard of said church. Nice marble slabs mark their graves with following inscriptions: "Samuel Withers, born Feb. 18, 1791. Died Oct. 25, 1855," and "Sallie R. Withers, born Mar. 18, 1793. He owned a number of slaves. He died and is buried in a private graveyard near his residence. His wife survived him many years and is still remembered for her ability to run the farm and business and care for her family. She, too, is buried with her husband. Marble slabs mark their graves inscribed as follows: "In memory of Peter Rhyne who died July 8, 1828, in the 74th year of his age." "Anny M. 3 For Michael Rhyne's descendants I have sought in vain.

3 For Elizabeth Hoffman's descendants, see John Hoffman, page 17, et seq.

3 Peter Rhyne, son of Peter, Sr., lived in the bend of the South Fork of the Catawba River about 3 miles northeast of Dallas on what is known as the Setzer place. He was a member and regular attendant of Philadelphia E. L. Church. After his first wife died some of his daughters had grown up and married here he moved west but having investigated diligently and though his daughters and sons-in-law still lived here I got no trace of his new home nor any of his family except those remaining in this country. These had entirely lost sight of him, strange as that seems. Their children so far as I can learn were:

4 Anna, b. Mch. 5, 1812, m. Sam'l Redman, 1829; Mary Margaret, b. Aug. 15 and baptized Oct. 10, 1814, married Julius Holland (she was known as Polly); Dan'l, baptized Mch. 12, 1817, and Elizabeth, baptized 1819. These figures are from records in German of Philadelphia Church. I think there were others, Joseph, Jacob and still others. There was one daughter, Elmina, who married Solomon Hoffman, son of John Hoffman 2nd. I rather think Elmina was a second name for Elizabeth, above mentioned. These all moved away and dropped out of sight and knowledge except Elmina Hoffman and Polly Holland whose mother, the wife of Peter Rhyne 2nd, was Catherine Best, daughter of Jacob Best, son of the pioneer, Bastian Best.

4 Elmina Hoffman's children: See Solomon Hoffman, pages 65.

4 Polly Holland and her family lived on the south side of Big Long Creek above White & Jenkins' mill. They were most excellent people, uneducated but noted for their kind dispositions, frugal habits and absolute honesty and exemplary lives. They are buried at Long Creek Church, one mile east of Dallas. Their monument bears these inscriptions: "Julius Holland, born Jan. 20, 1813. Died Aug. 11, 1894, aged 81 years, 6 mos and 21 days." Mary M. Holland, wife of J. Holland, born Aug. 15, 1814. Died Jan. 15, 1898, aged 83 years and 5 months." Polly Holland's children were: 5 Franklin, m. 3 Simon Rhyne, youngest son of Peter Rhyne 1st, lived on the old home place of his parents. He was very inactive, being low of stature and abnormally fleshy weighing, I suppose at least 300 pounds. He was, however, a pleasant man and the very kindest of men. He owned several slaves who scarcely knew they had a master, so indulgent was he with them. He died May 8, 1860, aged 61 years, 8 months and 22 days. He is buried with his father and mother at the old homestead. He left only two children:

4 Sylvanus and Lettie. Sylvanus went to Miss., and I think, died unmarried. Lettie died single on the old home place I think.

SECTION 6—PHILIP RHYNE

Philip Rhyne, son of Jacob Rhyne 1st, was born 1760. He married Hannah, the daughter of Michael Hoyle and granddaughter of Peter Hoyle, the pioneer. He lived on Little Long Creek about three miles west of Dallas on land lying on both sides of the creek now belonging to L. A. Thornburg. His land included the shoal on the creek at which he conducted an iron forge. He died comparatively young and is buried on the hill near the shoal north of the creek at a private graveyard. His tombstone is wonderfully preserved, apparently new and the inscription is as distinct as when put up. The inscription is: "In memory of Philip Rhyne who departed this life Dec. 9, 1803, aged forty-three years." His wife survived him about seventeen years. In 1807 she married Jacob Stroup, a widower, with children and an iron worker. I think she had no Stroup children. She died here in 1820 and is buried by the side of her first husband. Her tombstone has this inscription: "Hannah Stroup who departed this life Aug. 2nd, 1820, aged 57 years." About 1825 Jacob Stroup with his children and grandchildren, the children of his daughter, Katie, who had married Philip Rhyne's son, Jacob, and had borne five children and who had separated from her husband and returned to her father's house, moved to Habersham Co., Ga.

Philip Rhyne left a will which is in words and figures following: "In the name of God. Amen. I, Philip Rhyne of the County of Lincoln and State of North Carolina, being of sound mind and memory, considering the frailty of this uncertain world, do make this my last will and testament, that is to say after all my just debts and funeral charges be paid, I give and bequeath to my loving wife, Hannah Rhyne, all my estate both real and personal until my children come to age of maturity, that is to say my son, Michael Rhyne, and my son Jacob Rhyne, then the said estate to be equally divided among them, share and share alike, and if it should happen that my said wife, Hannah Rhyne, should marry again before the children come to the age of maturity, then the said estate to be sold and my said wife, Hannah Rhyne, to have her third arising from the sale thereof and the remainder to be put out on interest for the use of the children until they come to the age of maturity.

"Lastly, I do hereby nominate and appoint my trusty and well beloved Peter Rhyne" (his brother, L. M. H.) "executor to be my true and lawful executor for the purpose herein mentioned. Given under my hand and seal this Feb. in the year of our Lord

One thousand seven hundred and ninety-seven. Hanna Rhyne.
Signed and declared in Philip Rhyne, L. S.
the presence of us.

John Palmer, Jurat.

Jesey (his -O- mark) Palmer, Jurat."

2 Philip Rhyne had three children to-wit:

3 Michael, m. Barbara Withers and Peggy Hoyle; Jacob, m. Katie Stroup (1810), daughter of his step-father, Jacob Stroup, and Sallie Hope, daughter of Henry Hope. The other child of Philip Rhyne was a daughter who died in girlhood, and whose name I have not learned.

3 Michael Rhyne was known in this country as "Constable Mike," to distinguish him from several others of that name. He married Barbara Withers, a daughter of Elisha Withers, an American soldier of the Revolutionary War, and after her death he married Margt. (Peggy) Hoyle, his cousin, daughter of John Hoyle, his mother's brother. He had ten children by each wife, nearly all grew up and raised families. One unusual thing in his family was that he had a son by each of his wives named John. Mike Rhyne lived on Little Long Creek above his father's home, possibly a portion of his father's land now owned by Peter P. Costner. About 1830 Michael Rhyne moved to London or Blount Co., Tenn. So we find some of his older children remained in N. C., and have descendants here. Most of the others of the older set went to Arkansas and have numerous descendants in Logan Co. and elsewhere. I think most of his second set of children were born and raised in Tenn. where numerous descendants are to be found. One daughter by his first wife, Isabella, who married Silas Dethrow or Totherow, is still living (1911), and happy at Ellsworth, Ark., at the age of about 96 years. I visited her and got much interesting and valuable information. She is a fine old lady. I also received a group picture of herself and four succeeding generations which I reproduce in these pages. Michael Rhyne died and is buried near his home in Tenn. His children were:

4 Anne, m. Burrell Hoyle, her step-mother's brother; Disy, m. Jno. Crawley; Eliza, m. Robt. Holland; Vardry McB., m. Polly Trailor and Josephine Brown; Albert, m. Glafry Farrar; Isabella, m. Silas Dethrow; Michael, m. Martha Cook; Jno., m. Hattie Neely; Marvel, m. J. S. Sadler; Caroline, m. ——— Martin; all by first wife; and by second wife: Laban J., b. 1829, m. Evaline H. Johnson; Lavina M., b. 1831, d. s.; Mary L., b. 1834, d. s.; Rebecca A., b. 1836, m. Cooper C. Bumgardner; Eli, b. 1839, m. Frances Fields; Letitia, b. 1842, m. Theodore Brewer (c); Jno. P., b. 1845, moved from Tenn. to Iowa and married ———; Martin, b. 1847, went from Tenn. to Little Rock, Ark.; Elisha W., b. 1849, m. Elizabeth McInturf; and another d. s., I think.

4 Anne Hoyle's children: 5 I haven't been able to get particulars but she had sons, Peter and Jonas and daughter, Katie, and others. But see Burrell Hoyle, Chap. 7, Sec. 3.

4 Disy Rhyne-Crawley's children: 5 Allen, Fanny, Margt., Disy; Minerva, m. James Millen; Alberry moved to Miss.; and Jasper. I cannot learn further particulars of these except that Minerva Millen had a son, James Montgomery, and a daughter, Zoe, and Fanny had a son, Charles E. Rhyne, who is an industrious farmer, near Dallas. He married Laura Day and has the following children: 6 Augustus, Wm., Maggie, Fannie, Lucy and Haywood.

4 Eliza Holland, daughter of Michael Rhyne, and her husband, Robert Holland, son of Jesse Holland, lived in Dallas and both died here. She had the following children: 5 Martha, m. A. B. Rhyne; Ann, d. s.; Julius, m. Ann Rhyne; Wm., m. Juletta Hoffman and Fanny Jenkins; Jane; Augusta, m. Jno. G. Lewis (c).

5 Martha Rhyne's children: 6 See A. B. Rhyne, page 24.

5 Julius Holland's children: 6 See Ann Holland, page 138.

5 Wm. Holland's children: 6 By 1st wife see Juletta Holland, page 66. None by 2nd wife.

5 Jane Holland left one son, James Holland, m. Obe Kirksey (c).

4 Vardry McB. Rhyne lived in Tenn. He had no children by his first wife but by second wife he had two sons: 5 Jno. and Michael. I have not obtained further information of this family.

4 Albert Rhyne, Michael Rhyne, Marvel Rhyne and Jno. Rhyne and their sister, Isabella Dethrow, all lived in and about Logan County, Ark.

5 Eliza Jane Gallaher's children: 6 Mary, James A., Menona and Robert. 6 James A. Gallaher is a promising young lawyer at Fort Smith, Ark.

4 Isabella Dethrow's children: See page 110, Silas Dethrow.

5 Cora Hickman's children: 6 Michael B., Jno. R., Horace, Burt, Harvey and Irene.

5 Jno. Rhyne's children: 6 Marvel B., Myrtle, Aubrey and Newell.

5 Wm. B. Rhyne is clerk and recorder of Logan Co., Ark., but has no children.

4 Jno. Rhyne was a Methodist minister. A worthy, sensible rugged old man when I heard him preach once in Jacksonport, Ark. I then had no idea that he was a relative of mine and I have always regretted that I did not get to speak to him. His children were: 5 Adaline, m. James Cochrane; and Lizzie, m. Geo. S. Evans.

5 Adaline Cochrane's husband is prosecuting attorney for his Judicial District in Ark., and since writing this he is now judge of said District having been elected in Sept., 1914. They live at Paris. Her children are three interesting young ladies: 6 Pearl, Mary and Nellie.

5 Lizzie Evans has one daughter: 6 Grace.

3 Jacob Rhyne, son of Philip Rhyne 1st, in 1810 married Katie Stroup, who was the daughter of Jacob Stroup, his mother's second husband. Jacob Stroup had four or five children by a first wife. Jacob Rhyne and his wife, Katie, lived together several years until five children were born. Unfortunate disagreement arose between them and they separated—presumably divorced. She returned to her father's home and he went to Georgia and married Sallie Hope who also was from Gaston Co., then Lincoln Co. After the death of Hannah Rhyne-Stroup, Jacob Stroup with his daughter, Katie Rhyne, and her five children, and I think with his other children, moved to Habersham County, Georgia. Later he moved to Bartow County, Ga., and engaged in the iron business. Jacob Rhyne and his second family lived also in Georgia but further south. After long search I have been so fortunate as to get trace of the two separate families of Jacob Rhyne—neither of which knew of the existence of the other. I am led to believe that both branches of his descendants are eminently worthy and respectable people. As my information came to me with the purpose of publication I feel that I violate no confidence in publishing one letter from each branch of the family, showing something of the movements and history of each branch.

From Jno. C. B. Rhyne, a good citizen of Waleska, Ga., and a grandson of Jacob Rhyne, I have this information:

“Waleska, Ga., Dec. 28, 1909.

Mr. L. M. Hoffman,
Dallas, N. C.

Dear Sir:

“Your letter received. I will answer as best I can. It seems that you know most as much as I about those old people. In part you are mistaken. In others you are right.

“Caty Rhyne and Jacob from some cause separated as man and wife. I suppose they separated in N. C. from the fact that I have heard my father say that his uncle Mike and Aunt Barbara Rhyne tried to get them to live together as man and wife after they had separated. Any way it is a fact that Jacob left the country and was never heard of by them. It is true as you say they lived in Habersham County near Clarksville. Jacob Stroup moved from there to Bartow County and run an iron furnace. Here it was Jacob Stroup died. I cannot give you any dates. It was close to Stamp Creek. Caty had a brother, Ben, and there was an Adam and a Moses Stroup, but I cannot tell you how the last two names were related to Jacob Stroup. Perhaps you know. I do not mean to cast any reflections on my grandparents; nevertheless I have told you the truth about their separation. After the death of Jacob, Caty moved on a farm on Shoal Creek near Waleska. Here Caty lived and raised a highly respected family. They were among the best families of the country. Caty died Feb. 11, 1876, being 83 years and two months old. As to there being five children you are right. Hanna Rhyne who married a Hapton, so my older sister says. I do not know anything about them. Jno. P. Rhyne, my father, died on Feb. 21, 1875. I have already told you whom he married, being born July 16, 1811. Ann Rhyne, m. Henry Burns and in middle life they moved to the State of Texas. I do not know any thing about them now, only she has a daughter, Mrs. Carrington, who lives at Moultrie, South Georgia. Elizabeth Rhyne, m. Robt. Moore who was by trade a smith and followed the iron works. He died at Stamp Creek, Bartow Co. Aunt Betsy, as we all called her, moved on joining farms of my father. She has a son, J. A. Moore, who lives there now. She (Betsy) died a few years past living to a good old age. Jacob the youngest (of Caty Rhyne's 5 children—L. M. H.) also lived and died near this place. He raised sixteen children, being married twice—8 by his first wife and 8 by his second. (I suppose he was following in the footsteps of his uncle Mike.—L. M. H.). His first wife was a sister to my mother and there are several of his first wife's children living in this county. His second wife was Eunice Darr. After the death of Jacob the mother with the most of the children moved to Eastland Co., Tex. I have told you as best I can about those old folks and in conclusion I want to ask you if you know this. I have heard that there was a legacy left in that country for those Rhyne children as you have already intimated. In what did it consist? Please tell me about this in your next letter as you intimated you would write again. I will be glad to give you any information I can. Yours Respectfully,

J. C. B. RHYNE

P. S.—I have a Dutch Bible or German of my grandmother's which has some dates in it, 1760, but as yet I have not found any one who is able to read it, being written in Dutch."

I have failed to get the Bible or its written contents. As to legacy and bearing on other facts I refer to the will of Margaret Hoyle, grandmother of Jacob and Michael Rhyne. See Chap. 7, Sec. 3, Michael and Margt. Hoyle.

The following is a copy of a letter received from Rev. H. W. Rhyne, a Baptist minister and most excellent man, a son of Jacob Rhyne and Sallie Hope, living in Adelaide, California:

"Adelaide, Cal., Sept. 21, 1909.

L. M. Hoffman,
Dallas, N. C.

Dear Sir:

"Your letter of the 14th at hand. In reply I will give you all the information I can regarding the travels of my father.

"My grandfather, Philip Rhyne, died and my grandmother, Hannah, married a man by the name of Strout.

"My father, Jacob, married Sallie Hope. Her parents objecting to their marriage, they left North Carolina on horseback, going to Georgia where they were married. I am the fifth child. My first recollection is of Upson County where we lived near the Flint River on what was known as the Alabama Road. We lived about three miles from the Double Bridges on the stage road between Virginia and Alabama. This was about 1830. Father then moved to the Chickasaw Nation in Mississippi in 1839. About 1842 he died being about fifty-three years old. At that time there were six children younger than myself living. My oldest brother married a White. One child, a boy, was born to them. He married a Hill. They also had one boy who was killed in the war. My second brother married a Guillotine. They had four children when he died. She then married a Grammer.

"My oldest sister married a Guillotine, a brother to the other mentioned. They also had four children when she died. He was killed in the war. My third brother remained single. He died in Louisiana. My second sister married a Deaton from North Carolina. They moved from Mississippi to Louisiana and I have no knowledge of them since then.

"My third sister married a McClum. As to their family I know nothing except that they lived in Alabama.

"My fourth sister married Wm. Grammer. She is now living in Texas. My two youngest brothers, Jacob and Marion, are living in Texas, and it was from Jacob's son you received your information. I married a Johnson in Itawamba County, Mississippi. We had five children—two girls and three boys. From Mississippi we came to California in 1870. All my family came with me. My oldest son married a Jiner in Mississippi. He is living here in California and has twenty-seven grandchildren.

"My second son, Henry, married Nellie Kitchen. My oldest daughter married Dan Sinclair and my second daughter married Julius Barden of North Carolina. My third son married a Bethel.

"Then I married a Brown of Alabama. There are five boys and two girls in my second family. My youngest son is now living with me. I have given you all the information I thought to be necessary and know to be correct. I am confident you are mistaken about my father's marrying a Stroup. He was never married but the once. When he died his oldest child was twenty-five, so it would have been impossible for him to have married and been the father of five children before he married my mother.

My father had but one brother. He was older than father and his name was Michael. If I can give you any further information I shall be glad to do so.

Very truly yours,

H. W. RHYNE."

3 The five children of Jacob Rhyne, son of Philip Rhyne, by his first wife were: 4 Hannah, m. ——— Hapton; Jno. Philip, m. Eliza Pitts; Mary Ann, m. Henry Burns; Elizabeth, m. Robt. Moore; and Jacob, m. ——— Pitts and Eunice Darr.

4 Of Hannah Hapton's children, I have learned nothing.

4 Jno. Philip Rhyne's children: 5 James A., married and has children living at Marianna, Fla.; Mary C., Martha A., Artie E., Elmina, Victoria, Hosea B. who lives at Jasper, Ga., and Jno. C. SECTION 7—MICHAEL RHYNE

2 Michael Rhyne, so far as I can learn, was the youngest son and child of Jacob Rhyne 1st. He married Barbara Hoyle, the sister of his brother Philip's wife. His home was on Big Long Creek about two miles west of Dallas. He owned a large tract of land on both sides of the creek. After his death his son Jacob became the owner of the portion lying south of the creek and his son, Christy, of that on the north side which last contained the old home of his father. Michael Rhyne is reputed to have been about 85 years old and died in 1852. He is buried at the private graveyard near his old house now owned by Robt. G. Hoffman and his wife who is the great granddaughter of Michael Rhyne. The marble slab marking his grave bears this inscription: "In memory of Michael Rhyne who died Nov. 11th day, 1852"; and by his side that of his wife bears this: "In memory of Barbary Rhyne who died June the 20th day, 1831"; and as bearing on the age of Michael Rhyne, the tombstone of his son, Jacob Rhyne, in the same graveyard has this: "Jacob M. Rhyne died May 22nd, 1866, aged 72 years, 7 mos. and 18 days." Those of Jacob Rhyne's wives: "In memory of Elizabeth Rhyne" (my mother's sister.—L. M. H.) who died Sept. 30, 1849, aged 37 years, 9 months and 3 days," and "Anne R. Rhyne, wife of Jacob Rhyne, died Nov. 5, 1894, aged 72 years, 7 months and 13 days."

Michael Rhyne was a member of Philadelphia Lutheran Church. He had the following children:

- 3 David, married Catharine Withers, 1807;

SECTION 8—THOMAS RHYNE

As to the relationship of Thomas Rhyne to the foregoing Rhyne family, I find since making this investigation there is some difference of opinion. Those I have heard speak of the matter on our side of the family thought and said that Thomas Rhyne was also a son of the pioneer, or rather the assertion was that he was brother to my great grandfather, Jacob Rhyne the 2nd.

I don't think I ever heard any one say in direct words that they knew of the common ancestor, Jacob Rhyne 1st. On the part of those descendants of Thos. Rhyne whom I ever asked about the relationship I got the reply that we were distantly related without pretense of knowing just how distant or how related at all. Thos. Rhyne, if a son of Jacob Rhyne 1st, was either the second or first born. He lived on Stanley Creek several miles distant from most of the Rhynes, but I think his land joined that of Adam Cloninger whom I had supposed was his brother-in-law. He married an English speaking wife and was more nearly associated with the English than perhaps with the Germans. In other words I think he was a little out of the German nest and to some extent more quickly imbibed the English ways and thoughts. I have found that among our old fathers' relationships more distant than first cousins were lightly thought of. Mrs. Juletta Pegram, an intelligent woman, always thought the relationship was distant. She is a granddaughter of Thomas Rhyne still living and some of her family think there was no relationship at all between them. Dan'l. W. Rhyne of Miss., whose father was Simon Rhyne, grandson of Peter Rhyne, of our side and whose (Dan'l. Rhyne) mother was a granddaughter of Thomas Rhyne, never heard of his father and mother being related, though both were Rhynes, and that is, I believe, all the evidence I have obtained on the side of no relationship. On the other side we have the same familiar names, Jacob, Daniel, Michael, Jno., etc., in both families—not at all conclusive evidence. John Rhyne, brother to Simon above mentioned, told me that Simon and his wife were 2nd cousins. Lt. Robt. D. Rhyne while sheriff of Gaston County always called me cousin but that may have been political pleasantry. He was a brother to Mrs. Pegram above mentioned. Our old family prophets, Eli Withers and Vinie Baldwin, of wonderful family traditions and recollections always said that Thos. Rhyne was a brother to their grandfather, Jacob Rhyne 2nd, according to tradition there was only two or three years difference in the birthdays of Thos. and Jacob Rhyne 2nd. Uncle Jonathan Rhyne and uncle Miles Hoffman who lived to be very old men took the same view of the matter. I might mention other indications but I will not pretend to decide definitely. I don't suppose anybody will quarrel or seriously dispute about such a matter, but as I had always understood all the Rhynes here belonged to the same family, I went ahead and collected what information I could about the whole tribe and I will continue to record the genealogical history of the family of Thomas Rhyne as I have obtained it, without pretending to decide the matter for any body else and even admitting that there may be doubt about it.

I think Thos. Rhyne was born in Germany. He was an intelligent, industrious man—a saddler by trade and accumulated lands and property very fast—notwithstanding the tradition that when he first came to this country he so little understood the currency of the country that he thought the people paid him too much for his saddles and returned part of the price. He lived until 1837 and died at the age of 95 years. He is buried in the private graveyard on his home place now occupied by the family of his grandson, Albutres Rhyne, recently deceased. He left a large number of worthy descendants. His wife was Barbara Wise. His children were:

3 Sallie Rhyne Hoyle with her husband Adam Hoyle moved to Georgia. They lived and died at Decatur, Ga., and are buried in the cemetery there. After considerable search there without guide I failed to find their graves. They were prominent people in that section. They owned large landed estates and a number of slaves, but the descendants have scattered in all directions and their name and memory are almost lost at their old home. Some of their descendants live in Atlanta, but have meagre knowledge of their old parents, and, I felt, little cared to give information to me a stranger. However from many sources I have what I think to be a correct list of the names of the children of this couple. See Adam Hoyle, Chap. 7, Sec. 4. According to my information Sallie Rhyne was the second wife of Adam Hoyle and her children were: 4 Thomas, d. s.; Andrew, m. ———; Elizabeth, m. Chapter 3

1 Adam Costner was the pioneer of the Costner family in this section of the country. When first he came to America, and to the south from Germany, the name was spelled "Kästner" with the broad sound of the "a," making the name not much different in sound from the later and present spelling. I regret very much that I have been unable to ascertain the family name or even the Christian name of his wife. These, like most of the other German fathers, who settled here, came from the upper or southern Rhine country of Germany. Following a current of emigration from that country, started many years before by the religious persecutions of the Protestants, who were given refuge in England by Queen Anne, they went from Germany to England. The English Government desirous of settling their colonies in America with a good class of citizens sent them in their ships to Pennsylvania. I have no means of knowing just when that was, but tradition has it that they did not live in Pennsylvania many years but following the general range of the mountains they moved from about York County, Pennsylvania, following an Indian trail and came to N. C., which was then pretty well settled east of the Yadkin River. These pushed on beyond the settlements, crossing the Catawba River probably at Tuckasege ford, and still pressing on through the wilderness westward crossed the South Fork River at or near Friday Shoals and set up their Ebenezer a short distance below the Friday Shoals and above where Philadelphia Church stands on the west side of the river which home and surrounding lands still remain the goodly heritage of their descendants. At that time which must have been from 1750-53, or perhaps a little earlier, the country was an unbroken forest occupied by the Indians and abounding in wild animals of all kinds, game and fish. Jacob Costner, son of Adam the pioneer, purchased land from the State by patent dated 1753, and that is the earliest grant of land I recall that was made to any one in that section. I did not find any earlier grant noted on the records of the Secretary of State, nor did I find any grant to Adam Costner the pioneer, though it is said he entered and owned large tracts of land in that community.

These and the other German pioneers, I think, dwelt in peace and friendship with the native Indians. They had probably learned in Pennsylvania, the happy effect of kindness and justice upon the disposition of the natives. The records of the colonial days show that at times these old pioneers in obedience to the call of the State went on various expeditions against the Indians at a distance but I have no evidence of their making any trouble in this community. However in this I might be mistaken. Michael Rudisill, one of the old fathers of that day, left his wife and little children surrounded by the Indians and made a visit back to Pennsylvania. And it is said the Indians were kind to them. These pioneers were Lutheran people and soon set up a place of worship. It was known as Kastner's Church. Philadelphia is the successor of Kastner's. I have been unable to fix the date of the organization of this church, though I have exhausted all probable sources of information. I have been able only to rescue a fragment of the old German records from 1809 forward several years. Jno. Smith conveyed the land where Philadelphia Church now stands to the congregation in 1798. The earliest grave in what is now used as the cemetery of the church is that of our good old pioneer. A marble slab stands bearing this brief inscription: "Adam Costner, died in 1767." There is no mark or sign of the grave of his wife. So far as I can find his children must have come with him. So far as known they were:

2 Peter, m. Mary Magdalene Dellinger, sister to Henry Dellinger, and to Margaret Dellinger, wife of Michael Hoyle.

2 Jacob, m. Elizabeth Brooks Hoyle, widow of Jacob Hoyle, whose maiden name was Brooks.

2 Andrew—thought to have died single. I think it probable that he had a family but I can't trace him. May 2, 1775, he bought 300 acres of land on Lick branch from his brother, Peter, and adjoining Peter and the Laboon land.

2 Thomas was the fourth son of Adam Costner. He married Jennie Lowe.

2 Margaret, who married John Hoyle, and,

2 Mary who married Philip Rudisill, were the daughters of Adam Costner, the pioneer. There may have been other children.

SECTION 2—PETER COSTNER

2 Peter Costner, I have been led to think, was the oldest son of Adam Costner, but it may be Jacob Costner was older. Peter Costner was a good man, an honest man of high standing and influence and owned considerable property. He lived on Lick Branch near the Laboon or Pasour Mt. In 1774 he appears on the record of Tryon (Lincoln) County as one of the bondsmen on the official bond of his brother, Jacob Costner, as Sheriff of said County.

He also in 1779, with his brother-in-law, John Hoyle, was administrator of his said brother Jacob Costner's estate.

He died June 20 or 21st, 1780, and I think was buried at his home place but his grave is not marked nor did I find any one who knew its exact location.

Peter Costner's widow survived him many years. She lived until 1840 and is buried on a farm belonging now to one of the Ormands, I think, on Upper Long Creek, not far from Bessemer City.

2 The children of Peter Costner were as follows:

3 Adam, m. Susan Rudisill, daughter of Philip Rudisill, pioneer;

3 Adam Costner lived to a great age. He, too, is buried at Philadelphia graveyard. His tombstone is marked "Adam Costner, died Nov. 29th, 1858, aged 89 years and 9 days." I think his wife had died much younger. There is a grave, not by the side of Adam Costner, but nearby, with this inscription: "Susan Costner, died Dec. 5, 1822, aged 45 years." I suppose this was Adam Costner's wife. Adam Costner's children were:

4 Jonas Deck was a good man and useful citizen, living on Little Long Creek about a mile northeast of Dallas where he ran a saw and grist mill. He and his wife and son, Eusebius, are buried in the Lutheran graveyard in Dallas. Their gravestones are inscribed as follows: "In memory of Jonas Deck who departed this life April 16, 1871, aged 68 years, 4 months and 18 days. Remember friend as you pass by, as you are now so once was I, As I am now so you must be. Prepare for death and follow me." "In memory of Lavina Deck, wife of Jonas Deck, born Jan. 17, 1814, died Oct. 24, 1881, aged 67 years, 9 months, 7 days." "In memory of Eusebius Deck who departed this life Nov. 22, 1871, aged 29 years, 1 month and 28 days. Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God."

Her tombstone has this inscription: "In memory of Catharine P. Costner who departed this life Feb. 15, 1871, aged 90 years, 4 months and 8 days. Watch therefore and be ye also ready for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh."

SECTION 3—JACOB COSTNER

2 Jacob Costner, son of Adam Costner, the pioneer, married Elizabeth, the widow of Jacob Hoyle. Her family name was Brooks. Jacob Hoyle was the oldest son of Peter Hoyle, the pioneer of that family in this section. Jacob Costner was a man of force, means and influence. He entered a large tract of land on the South Fork of the Catawba River, and received a patent therefor Aug. 30, 1753, one of the very earliest grants in this immediate section. "In 1769 he was in the first list of Justices of the Peace to keep the peace in the newly established County of Tryon, and by virtue of his majesty's commission under the great seal of the State he took the oath of a Justice of the Peace and his seat on the bench April sessions, 1769" (A. Nixon). As an officer he probably, under subsequent orders of Gov. Tryon, administered the oath of allegiance to his brothers and neighbors. "He remained an active member of the County Court until July Term, 1774, when it is recorded 'Jacob Costner, Esq., came into Court, produced a Commission under the hand and seal of his Excellency Josiah Martin, Governor, dated 3rd day of June, 1774, appointing him Sheriff of Tryon County, who took the oath by law appointed for qualification of public officers and repeated and subscribed the test and took the oath of Sheriff and entered on the duties of his office.' His bond as Sheriff bears date 27th July, 1774, is in the sum of one thousand pounds sterling money of Great Britain. The bondsmen were Jacob Carpenter, Michael Rudisill, Peter Eaker, Jacob Howe, Adolph Reep and Peter Costner. He served as Sheriff during 1775. In 1776, independence having been declared he espoused the cause of his country and accepted a Major's Commission in the Tryon Regiment. He died the next year." (A. Nixon).

"During the year 1775 the province of North Carolina, ever in the van of early patriotic movement formed 'associations' throughout her territory mainly as tests of patriotism. The county of Cumberland formed an association on the 20th of June, 1775. The county of Tryon (embracing Lincoln and Rutherford) formed a similar association on the 14th of August following which was signed by the 'Committee of Safety' and ordered to be signed by every freeholder of the county. Among the 48 signatures may be conspicuously noticed those of Wm. Graham, Chas. McLean (who at one time commanded the Lincoln Regiment), Fredk. Hambright, * * * Jno. Walker, Jacob Forney, * * * Thomas Espey, Andrew Neal, Joseph Neal, Jno. Dellinger, Geo. Dellinger, Joseph Hardin, Jacob Costner, Valentine Mauney, Peter Sides, Joseph Kuykendall, James Coburn,

HON. AMBROSE COSTNER

Promoter of Gaston Female College and other benevolent and industrial enterprises. Lincolnton, North Carolina.

James Miller and others, all true Whigs and worthy representatives," etc. (Hunter's Sketches of Western N. C., page 324). Jacob Costner and his wife crossed the South Fork River in a wagon going on a visit and to mill and on returning the river had risen. They attempted to cross and were borne down the river and drowned. They are buried in the Philadelphia graveyard. The only inscription on their tombstones is as follows: "Jacob Costner died Jan. 16, 1779." "Elizabeth Costner died Jan. 16, 1779." Here again is a discrepancy as to date of Jacob Costner's death. Mr. Nixon says 1777. It may be the 9 on the tombstone is an error. But on July 22, 1779, Peter Costner and John Hoyle, administrators of Jacob Costner deceased, returned an inventory of sale of said deceased estate amounting to £9,099, 12s, 10d, which might indicate the later date.

2 Jacob Costner and his wife, Elizabeth, left the following children:

3 Jacob, m. Elizabeth Rudisill, daughter of Philip Rudisill, pioneer.

3 Michael, m. Anna Barbara Rudisill, sister to Jacob's wife.

3 Elizabeth, b. May 4, 1769, m. Jonas Friday, Mch 18, 1790.

3 Jacob Costner was a man of property and influence. He owned a number of slaves but such was his indulgence toward them, they were rather a burden than a help to him, and with characteristic German kindness and humanity he left them by will to his wife to be cared for and this she conscientiously did to the end of her long life but didn't consider it much of a kindness to her. Jacob Costner 2nd, died Jan. 16, 1820, on the 41st anniversary of the death of his father and mother and on the day after the 55th anniversary of his own birth. He left no children, but after providing for his widow who survived him many years he left the residue of his estate to the children of his brother, Michael. He also is buried with his father at Philadelphia graveyard and his tombstone bears this epitaph: "Jacob Costner was born the 15th day of Jan., 1765, and died the 16th day of Jan., 1820." "Elizabeth Rudisill, the wife of Jacob Costner, was born May 24th, 1766. Died April 29, 1869. Aged 102 years, 11 mos. and 5 days." So reads her epitaph beside her husband.

3 Michael Costner lived on the land inherited with his brother, Jacob, from their father. There seems to have always been great love and harmony between these brothers. The location of the home of Michael Costner was on the upper part of the Jacob Costner land in the identical house lately owned and occupied by his grandson, Michael Henry Costner, lately deceased, while his brother, Jacob, lived near Philadelphia Church near the present residence of Lemuel Thornburg whose wife is a descendant of the Costner family. Michael Costner was also a man of high standing and character but did not live to be old. His sepulchre is also with his fathers. His tombstone bears this simple inscription: "Michael Costner was born Mch. 12, in the year of our Lord 1767, and died on the 14th day of June, 1821." Anna Barbara Rudisill, wife of Michael Costner, was born on the 28th day of Feb., 1769, and married Michael Costner Nov. 12, 1787. Died 1829. She was 60 years, 5 mos. and 11 days old. She is buried by her husband. The children of Michael Costner and wife, Barbara, were:

4 Jacob, m. Anna M. Rudisill, daughter of Henry Rudisill, Sr.;

4 Elizabeth, b. Dec. 25, 1790, m. Henry Rudisill, nephew of Henry, Sr., and son of Jno.;

4 Katie, b. Jan. 28, 1793, m. Jacob Plonk;

4 Anna Maria, b. Jan. 14, 1796, m. Jonas Hoffman;

4 Jonas, b. Jan. 15, 1799, m. Susie Hoffman, daughter of Jno. Hoffman, Sr.;

. 4 Michael, m. Amanda Townsend;

4 Anne, m. James Elmore.

4 Jacob Costner, son of Michael Costner, was a good, pious man and a model citizen. He lived about two miles north of Dallas, near P. A. Summey's, on the plantation he bought, it is said, from John Clemmer who moved to Monroe County, Tenn., in 1827. After the death of Jacob Costner the place became the property of his daughter, Louisa, and her husband, Col. Wm. G. Morris, who still live on the southern side of the place with their son-in-law, Sam'l T. Wilson. Jacob Costner was born Aug. 17, 1788. Anna M. Rudisill, daughter of Henry Rudisill, Sr., was born March 12, 1791, and these were married Dec. 13, 1810. They lived happy, honorable and useful lives passing their allotted span of three score and ten years, reared a large and influential family, and through these and their other good works left a strong impress and influence for good. And their works follow them. Jacob Costner died Mch. 19, 1862. His widow remained ten years longer till June 26, 1872, when she, too, departed in peace to the reward of the faithful. They, too, rest with the fathers in Philadelphia graveyard. The inscriptions on their tombstones are as follows: "Jacob Costner, born Aug. 17, 1788. Died Mch. 19, 1862, aged 73 years, 7 mos. and 2 days. Whilst in this tomb our father lies. His spirit rests above, In realms of bliss it never dies, But knows a Saviour's love." And "Anna M. Costner, born Mch. 12, 1791, married Jacob Costner Dec. 13, 1810. Died June 26, 1872, aged 81 years, 3 mos. and 11 days. As you are, once was I, and what I am, that you must be. Prepare for death and follow me."

4 The children of Jacob and Anna Costner were: 5 Emanuel, m. Catharine Wills; Katharine, born Apr. 25, 1813, m. Solomon Lineberger; Elizabeth, b. July 25, 1815, died single; Mary, b. Mch. 21, 1817, d. s.; Jacob, b. Feb. 18, 1819, d. s.; Michael Henry, b. Jan. 26, 1821, m. Lavina Rudisill; Barbara, b. March 28, 1823, m. Jacob K. Rhyne; Ambrose, b. June 14, 1825, m. Catharine Malinda Quickle; Lavina, b. July 13, 1828, m. Jacob Rhyne, son of Solomon Rhyne; Louisa, b. April 18, 1831, m. Col. Wm. G. Morris; and an infant died in infancy.

5 Emanuel Costner's wife was the daughter of Jno. Wills, the noted cabinetmaker of his day and a granddaughter of Garrett Wills, the pioneer of that name. She was also the grandniece of Elizabeth Wills Rhyne, the mother of the Rhyne family in these parts. They moved to Wayne County, Mo., and settled near Coldwater. I have been unable to get any reply to my letters to members of his family—he himself being dead—but I have received account of the family from others acquainted with them. I visited in that county in prosecution of my search at Greenville and Gravellon, but being in some haste and turned in another direction and having some account of them, I did not go to Coldwater section. I judge that Mr. Emanuel Costner, like the families he left in N. C. was a good man and liberal, useful citizen. One of his old neighbors, a kinswoman of mine, sings his praises for his furnishing herself and brothers and sisters books so they could go to school and learn to read and write.

5 Emanuel Costner's children so far as learned were: 6 Albert M., living at Coldwater, m. ——— Oliver; Rufus, m. Mary Weber; Ambrose; Sarah, m. Simpson Sutton; Jacob, s., killed in the Union Army in the Civil War. 6 Albert M. Costner's children: 7 Minnie and others—names not learned. 6 Rufus Costner was said to live at Ledford, Okla. 5 Ambrose Costner who has just recently died was one of nature's noblemen—a most lovable man, of born dignity, without the slightest suggestion of egotism, a straightforward, candid man whose voice and bearing compelled confidence. He was a gentleman of fine intelligence, temper and judgment. He had held many places of honor and public trust and always with the utmost fidelity to duty and credit to himself. Most of his life was spent on his farm near Lincolnton but after his wife died he spent his remaining days in the town of Lincolnton. The good Lord gave him neither poverty nor great riches but an abundance for the comfort of himself and family and he always found means to lend a helping hand to others in need and to materially assist in all the charitable work of his community. He was one of the founders of Gaston Female College and without ostentation or intolerance he was a staunch supporter of his church and all its enterprises, the church of his fathers—the Lutheran Church to which he was devotedly attached. He died in 1911, aged about 86 years and is buried beside his wife in Salem Churchyard in Lincoln County. His children are: 6 Mary A. E., d. s., 1861; Wm. A., m. Sarah E. 4 Anna Maria (Mary) Costner, daughter of Michael Costner, and wife Barbara Rudisill, was born Jan. 14, 1796, was confirmed a member of Philadelphia Church Dec. 27, 1812, in a large class of catechumens among whom was my grandfather, her future husband. And soon after in 1813 these two were married. She was my grandmother, a lovely old lady, of whom I have delightful memories. She was the idol of her grandchildren. She is not buried at her mother church but rests beside her first husband whom she had buried a stone's throw of their home up the slope of the foothills of Spencer Mountain on the river side. They lived on the site of Spencer Mountain Cotton Mills. Her husband's small tombstone is disfigured and her own small marble slab has disappeared the result of greed and irreverence for the dead. I cannot recall the date of her death. For her numerous descendants, see Jonas Hoffman, page 69, et seq.

4 Michael Costner lived near Landers' Chapel in Gaston County, N. C., at one time. He was born in 1803. It is said he went west but I think he or some of his children returned to N. C. I have been unable to get a systematic account of his family. It is said he had about ten children. I have learned the names of only five of them, to-wit: David went to Mississippi with Fred Lineberger, but is said to have returned to N. C. and settled in Cleveland County where he has descendants. Jonas, m. Jane Ballard. They lived for a time at Lincolnton and then I am told moved to Georgia and he was killed by train in Atlanta. There was also one son, Michael, who was said to have lived at Long Shoals. One daughter, Barbara, m. Henry Veitch, a Federal soldier just after the close of the Civil War; and one daughter, Margaret, had a son Lee, when she moved west. There are many Costners in Cleveland County. I think these are certainly descendants of the aforementioned ancestors but as a general thing they claim to be "no kin to those in Gaston County." And also I have been unable to ascertain their places in the family.

4 And notwithstanding my great grandfather, Michael Costner, had a daughter Anna Maria (my grandmother), his youngest daughter and child was named Anne who soon after marrying James Elmore moved to Southeast Missouri. They settled in Perry County near the line of Cape Girardeau County. This was about 1830. Their names were on the church roll of Philadelphia Church of 1829 and opposite their names is written "removed." They lived in Perry County where they first settled until 1847. Then they moved two miles across the line into Cape Girardeau Co. where they remained till 1852. They then moved to Texas and settled first in Grayson County, and in 1859 they moved to Cook County and lived there until 1864 when the Indians raided their home and burned it. They then moved to Pilot Point in Denton County and lived there till death. The greatest part of the family surviving live in and about this place still. James Elmore died in June, 1865, and Anne Elmore, his wife, died four years later. They had born to them eight children, five sons and three daughters. Two of the daughters died in infancy and the rest grew up, married and had families. These eight children were born from about 1830 to 1847 and were:

5 Jefferson Franklin, m. Mary Eddleman;

5 Martha Jane, m. N. Wilson;

5 Dr. A. Marion, m. Harriet T. Dirickson and Martha Wilson;

5 James Oliver, m. Mary Akers and ——— Triplett;

5 Jno. P., m. Lizzie Burriss;

5 Jasper DeKalb, m. Sarah Conklin;

5 Jefferson F. Elmore had children as follows: 6 Sarah, m. J. R. Sipes, Pilot Point; Cordelia, m. Martin Inman, Slidell, Tex.; Laura, m. Jno. D. McAdams; Victoria, m. Robt. Stelzer (c); Franklin, m. Edna Holt; Elba, m. Susan Darnell; and Gordon, m. Sarah Buchanan. 6 Sarah Sipes is still living, her husband dead. They have a number of children but I have written her and others at Pilot Point but get no information. I have to thank Dr. A. M. Elmore of Dallas, Texas, for his readiness and kindness in furnishing the information I am giving. 6 Cordelia Inman and husband raised only two children who are both married and have children. I couldn't get the names. 6 Laura McAdams had two children, Carl and another a daughter, name not learned. 6 Victoria Stelzer died soon after marriage and left no children. 6 Franklin Elmore has two children, names not learned. 6 Elba Elmore's children: 7 J. P. and Elba. 6 Gordon Elmore's children: 7 Harry.

5 Martha Jane Wilson's children: 6 Alice, m. G. V. Harrison. 6 Alice Harrison's children: 7 Ora, m. Bud McKinney; Mosley, s.; Audrian, m. Maude Elder; Mattie, s.; Victoria, s.; and two others. 7 Ora McKinney has two children.

5 Dr. A. M. Elmore is a prominent physician of Dallas, Texas, now about 70 years old. I do not personally know him but his letters take hold of one and make me feel that he is a good sensible man and a splendid gentleman. His children are as follows: 6 Ed E., Genl. Agent of Kansas City Southern R. R. at Houston, m. Stella Barringer; Kate, m. Rev. Frank Naylor (Meth.), Perry, Okla.; Ida, m. Jno. T. Alexander, Ardmore, I. T.; J. V., m. Sarah Elliott (c); Helen, m. ^{W.}J. F. Whitehurst (~~X~~); Clarence M., single, 24; and three died in infancy. 6 Ed E. Elmore's children: 7 Bettie, Ed and James. 6 Kate Naylor's children: 7 Marion for her grandfather. 6 Ida Alexander's children: 7 Frances Fay 17, Floe 15 and Elmore 13. Mr. Alexander on attempting to board a train fell under the wheel and crushed his foot so that he died. This happened about 5 years ago.

5 James Oliver Elmore lives in New Mexico. His children are as follows: 6 Jas. and Wm. by 1st wife; and a daughter by last.

5 Jno. P. Elmore lives at Pilot Point and has large family of children and grandchildren.

5 Jasper DeKalb Elmore's children: 6 Names not learned. A daughter, married a Mr. Phinney and he had one other child.

3 Elizabeth, daughter of Jacob Costner, and wife, Elizabeth, was born May 4, 1769. Jonas Friday, son of Nicholas Friday, and his wife, Mary Rudisill (nee Ramsaur), was born Sept. 15, 1766. They were married Mch. 18, 1790. Nicholas Friday, Sr., was the pioneer of the Friday family and owned a very large tract of land lying on both sides of the South Fork including the Shoals and what is now Harden Cotton Mills. When he died in 1789 these lands fell to his two sons, Jonas and Andrew, Jonas receiving that part lying east of the river and Andrew the part on the west side. Jonas Friday and his wife, Elizabeth Costner, lived I think at the old Friday homestead where Ambrose Costner now lives, about a quarter of a mile east of Harden Mills. Jonas Friday did not live to be old but like his father died at the age of 45 years. He is buried in the old Friday home graveyard a very short distance east of the residence. His tombstone bears this inscription: "In memory of Jonas Friday who died Oct. 28, 1811, aged 45 years, 1 month and 15 days." Elizabeth his wife survived him many years until 1840 when she died and was laid to rest by the side of her husband. They are buried in the old Friday Home graveyard, their graves being marked with stones inscribed as follows: "Jonas Friday, born Mch. 19, 1793, and died June 16th, 1850." And "Mary M. SECTION 4—ANDREW COSTNER

2 Andrew Costner, son of Adam Costner, the pioneer is thought by the Costner family generally to have died unmarried, but I have found no one who can tell me anything with certainty about that or much else concerning him. I find Costners living in Cleveland County and Rutherford County, in N. C. These may be descendants of this Andrew Costner, but I think some of them are descendants of David Costner the son of Michael Costner, and Amanda Townsend his wife. This Michael was a son of Michael Costner, Sr., and his wife, Barbara Rudisill. Some of these Cleveland and Rutherford Costners too, I think, were descendants of "Stiff" David, son of Thos. Costner, the Revolutionary soldier. They were mixed up with the Hoyles of that section who are the descendants of Jacob Hoyle and his wife Elizabeth Brooks, who afterward became the wife of Jacob Costner, Sr. (and he was the brother of this Andrew). I have not had the opportunity to thoroughly investigate the origin of these Cleveland Costners. Andrew Costner lived I think in the neighborhood of his brother Peter. I find that on May 2, 1775, he bought from his brother Peter a tract of three hundred acres of land, "on the west side of the South Fork on Lick branch," beginning at a whiteoak, Laboon's corner. The Laboon entry was 300 acres lying not far north of Little Long Creek and I think became a part of the Pasour land. The Pasour mountain in the early days was called Laboon mountain. Also as we have seen, the Linebergers and Costners intermarried, and John Lineberger, who married Elizabeth Costner, the daughter of Peter Costner, Sr., had two sisters, Mary and Susan, who married Jacob and Adam Kinder, and these with many others moved to Southeast Mo., where I found numerous Kinders and some of the descendants of these intermarried with Costners in that country. So I think it probable that Andrew Costner had a family and he or his children went to Missouri also. One Andrew Costner lived there where I found descendants of Kinders and Costners near Bessville, Mo. Mrs. Mary Bowman, a descendant of both these families, an aged lady of fine memory gave me the history of this Andrew Costner. Thos. Costner had a son Andrew, but Thos. was not married until 1785, and the Andrew above spoken of could not have been his son. I thought that our Missouri Andrew was Andrew, Sr. I confess when I heard of this old father in Mo. I was so pleased that I had discovered Andrew, Sr., after so long and distant search that I hastily concluded that I had found Andrew, son of Adam, the pioneer. But on reflection after coming home I felt that the line backward was probably too long to be reached by my discovery. And from correspondence with Mrs. Bowman, I learned that her grandfather, Andrew Costner, lived until 1867, and though he was 93 years old he could reach back only to 1774 for his birthday, while his supposed father, Adam Costner, died in 1767, seven years before he was born. The grandchildren of Adam Costner, pioneer, were born along from 1764 to 1780, except the children of Thomas Costner, who seems to have married later in life being probably the youngest and so far as any of the family knows, neither Peter nor Jacob Costner son of Adam had any son named Andrew. The only grandson of Adam Costner known by the name Andrew, was the son of Thomas Costner. So I think it is nearly proved that my discovered Andrew must have been the son of Andrew, Sr., especially when we take into consideration the fact that Andrew Costner above found went from N. C. to Mo. with Jno., Jacob, Adam and Conrad Kinder who all lived in this immediate vicinity. A remarkable story attaches to Andrew Costner 2nd (I will call him). I do not doubt its truth for my informant, Mrs. Bowman, knew her grandfather well and was at his funeral and is a woman of fine character still living with her son-in-law, Hon. Marion Welker, at Bessville, Mo. The story is this: "He heard his own funeral text announced and read. It happened this way: His sons-in-law, Henry and Israel Kinder, had both died and a day was appointed to preach their funeral sermon. The old man in his distress and feebleness expressed a premonition that he would not live to hear the sermon. On the day appointed the congregation assembled out doors. He sat leaning against a tree and just after the text was read he fell back against the tree dead. After the sad interruption the minister proceeded and preached the funeral sermon of all three of them." He lived in one of the small fertile valleys in Bolinger Co., Mo., a mile south of Bessville. The railroad runs through the farm now owned by Mr. Marion Welker, who is a prominent citizen and married the daughter of Mrs. Bowman. She is the granddaughter of Andrew Costner and of Jacob Kinder.

3 The children of Andrew Costner 2nd were: 4 Nancy, m. Henry Kinder, son of Jacob Kinder and wife, Mary Lineberger; Fanny, m. Israel Kinder, brother to Henry Kinder; John, m. Nancy Bailey (c); James, m. Jane Smith; Henry, m. Ellen Ervin (c); Mary Ann, m. David Hanks.

5 Mahala Zimmerman's children: 6 Sarah, m. Wm. Kitchens (c); Elmira, m. Adolphus Gibbs. 6 Elmira Gibbs' children: 7 Ervin, Roswell, Etta, Myrtle, Nora; and Geo., d. s.

4 Fanny Kinder has one son, Jacob, s.

4 James Costner moved further west and was lost sight of.

4 Mary Hanks moved from that section and was lost to relatives. I should have said that Andrew Costner's wife was Sallie Smith. "

SECTION 5—THOMAS COSTNER

2 Thomas Costner, the son of Adam Costner, the pioneer, was born in York County, Penn., in 1747. He was an early patriot and in 1776 served in Capt. Joseph Hawkins' Company, and in 1781 served in Capt. Wm. Moore's Company. He was married in 1785" (A. Nixon). He married Jensie Lowe. I think he lived on the upper waters of Big Long Creek in what is now Gaston County, N. C. In July, 1773, he purchased from James Hemphill 302 acres of land on "south side of the South Fork on a branch of Long Creek, beginning at a hickory, Wm. Froneberger's corner," etc., granted Hemphill Mch. 28, 1775. He died in 1835, aged 88 years. He drew a pension for his services as a soldier in the American Revolution. He had children to wit:

3 John, m. Barbara Carpenter; David ("Stiff"), m. Peggy Rudisill, daughter of Philip Rudisill, the pioneer; Henry; Andrew, m. Sallie Smith; Frederick, m. Fanny Wise; Thomas, m. ———; Mary, m. David McIlwaine; Joseph, m. ———.

4 Absalom Costner also had a second wife, Fanny Pinner, whom he married in 1836. I have no account of his descendants.

4 Peter Costner lived in Loudon or Monroe Co., Tenn. His children were: 5 For children by 1st wife, see Elizabeth Costner, page 135; and by 2nd wife: 5 John, m. Susan Davis; Wm.; Rachael, m. Geo. McKelvey and Jno. Shirk; Robt., m. Sarah Elkins; Gilbert, Gilmore and another; and by 3rd wife: Jessie; Chas., m. Katie Brown; Vinie, m. Michael Hickorn; Margt., m. Newton Elkins; Wm., m. In 1851 he married Margt. Rice and lived with her and raised six more children. She died in 1862 and in 1864 he married Nancy Brown and raised seven more children. He lived with her till 1903 when he died near Loudon, Tenn. I think his last wife still lives. That makes Peter Costner a very old man but so it was told to me.

4 Joseph Costner also had a second wife, Mrs. Eliz. Huffstetler, nee Jenkins, daughter of Smith Jenkins. His children were: 5 For first wife's, see Susan Costner, page 160; and by 2nd wife: Eusebius, m. Mary Murphy; and Jno., d. s.

These six sons went to the Confederate Army and only two returned. This family moved to Cleveland Co., N. C., and their descendants I think constitute a great portion of the Costner family in that section. I ought to have a detailed list of the younger generation but want of leisure has prevented me from visiting that section. I am not quite sure that the following are the descendants of this 6 John Costner, son of Dan'l, but I think these are his descendants: 7 Dan'l, m. Siby Hayes and Nan Grigg; Andrew, m. His comrades say of him that he was not unusually bright but that he was unusually brave. On one occasion his command was ordered to charge the enemy entrenched on a hill. The Federals scattered in confusion and Bell leading in the rush did not notice that his command had halted in the enemy's abandoned position but went on after an officer in the rear of the rout. He overtook his man and ordered him to surrender. The officer said he couldn't surrender except to an officer. Bell swore at him and said he'd blow out his d—d brains if he didn't surrender quick and proceeded to execute his threat. He took his prisoner back and meeting some officers as he approached headquarters they told him they'd take the prisoner. He said, "No you won't; if you want to go get you one, there's plenty of them over there (pointing in the direction the enemy had gone.) You shall not have mine." He had a daughter, Sarah, who married K. J. Kennedy, a good citizen living near Kings Mountain. He may have had other children but I have not learned of them.

SECTION 6—MARGARET COSTNER

2 Margaret Costner, daughter of Adam Costner, the pioneer, married John Hoyle, son of the pioneer, Peter Hoyle. She raised a family of thirteen sons and daughters, and for her wonderfully large list of descendants, see Chapter 7, Hoyle Section: 4 Jno. Hoyle.

SECTION 7—MARY COSTNER

2 According to the best information I have been able to get amounting, I believe, to a certainty, Mary Costner was another daughter of our old father, Adam Costner. She married Philip Rudisill, one of the pioneer brothers of that family. She lived on what is now known as the Black place on the east side of the South Fork River about half way between the Hardin Cotton Mills and High Shoals. She reared a large family also. For her numerous descendants I refer to Rudisill Chapter 4, Section 2, Philip Rudisill.

RUDISILL

SECTION I

I have been unable to learn the common ancestor of the great Rudisill family in this section. As usual with the German settlers tradition has it that the North Carolina branch of the family was founded by three brothers who came from Germany through England to Philadelphia and settled at or near York, Pennsylvania, and later moved southward to Va. and North Carolina. I presume and think it is true that usually the father of the family accompanied the sons or brought them to this country. As a matter of fact, there were Rudisill descendants in this section of North Carolina who were sprung from four brothers and possibly, even probably, some of the sisters may have come as the wives of some of the other immigrants of that day but I have learned of none such. One of the brothers came from Pennsylvania leaving his children there except a daughter, Hannah, who married Henry Dellinger and so left no descendants of the Rudisill name, and this probably gave rise to the tradition that there were only three brothers. In fact I think there were only three of the brothers who came here but another brother was represented by a son named Jonas. This absent brother was also Jonas and his wife was Elizabeth Moul, of York, Pa., and I think he never came south. The brother who did not propagate the Rudisill name was Yerrick or Yorrick, or I think still more probable Terrick, a corruption of Dietrich. I think the y, as in the first spelling, was meant for a "T" as some make T. Then I think it safe to say the common Rudisill ancestor was ——— Rudisill, and that his children so far as learned were:

2 Philip Rudisill, who married Mary Costner, daughter of Adam Costner, the pioneer;

2 Michael who married Eve Dellinger, probably a sister to Henry Dellinger;

- 2 Terrick or Dietrich, who married ———, in Pennsylvania;
2 Jonas who married Maria Elizabeth Moul, in York, Pennsylvania, 1754.

SECTION 2—PHILIP RUDISILL

2 Philip Rudisill settled on what is now known as the Black place between the Friday Shoals and High Shoals in what was then Anson, now Gaston County, N. C., on a large tract of 520 acres of land extending from the river eastward across Hoyle's Creek, granted to him May 20, 1754. A part of this grant he conveyed to Jacob Rhyne, the pioneer of that family, as described in the beginning of the Rhyne Chapter 2. On August 4, 1792, Philip Rudisill executed his will. He gave 20s to the poor. To Mary, his wife, he gave a negro boy and half of his estate. To Michael, his brother, he gave all his wearing clothes. To his daughter, Elizabeth, half of all his estate. Mary Rudisill, his wife, was made sole executrix. Witnesses were Jacob Rign, Jacob Simmerman and Jacob Shotley. He died soon after that time and is buried at Philadelphia graveyard. His tombstone bears only the inscription: "Philip Rudisill, died 1794." I found no grave of his wife. The children of Philip Rudisill and wife, Mary, were:

3 Elizabeth, m. Jacob Costner, son of Jacob 1st, son of Adam, pioneer;

3 Barbara, m. Michael Costner, son of Jacob 1st, son of Adam, pioneer;

3 Catharine, m. Jacob Best, son of Bastian Best, the pioneer;

3 Mary, m. Frederick Hovis, son of Geo. Hovis, pioneer;

3 Margaret (Peggy), m. David Costner ("Stiff");

3 Susie, m. Adam Costner, son of Peter, son of Adam Costner, pioneer;

3 Michael, m. Mary Carpenter;

3 Philip, m. Elizabeth Lau, daughter of Philip Lau (Lowe).

3 And possibly "Wirely," Wiley, though this may have been a son of Philip Rudisill's brother, Michael. I think not. Wiley Rudisill was guardian for Elizabeth Costner (Friday), and John Fullenwider was surety on his bond and on same day that letters of guardianship were issued to him, Jno. Fullenwider became the guardian of Elizabeth Costner's brother, Michael, and Wiley Rudisill was his surety. On Sept. 25, 1794, just after the death of Philip Rudisill, Wiley Rudisill and Mary Friday, the widow of Nicholas Friday, and Jonas and Andrew Friday, sons of said Mary Friday, conveyed the above 520 acres of Philip Rudisill's home land excepting the 200 acres sold or given to Jacob Rhyne, to Henry Rudisill who was the son of Jno. Rudisill, deceased, and Jno. Rudisill was a son of Michael Rudisill, a brother to Philip. Mary Friday was the daughter of Derrick Ramsaur who had married a Rudisill who died and she then married Nicholas Friday. I am not certain but from all this and other circumstances I infer the following facts: 1st, that Jno. Rudisill was the first husband of Mary Friday, and Henry Rudisill was the son of Mary Friday. 2nd, that Wiley Rudisill was a son of Philip and interested in his lands. I think it probable that Wiley Rudisill had no family. Further as to Wirely Rudisill, see Section 5 of this chapter.

3 Elizabeth Costner and her husband had a number of negro slaves which he willed to her and required her to keep them her life time, though they were no profit to her and she lived to be within a few days of 103 years of age. Further, see Elizabeth Costner, page 241.

3 For Barbara Costner's children: 4 See Michael Costner, page 241, et seq.

3 Catharine (Katie) Best with her husband, Jacob Best, lived on the east side of the South Fork River, below the Hoyle's bridge on the land now owned by her great grandson, Luther Lineberger. She did not live long nor did her husband. They are buried on their home place near the house. She left three daughters:

4 Catharine, m. Peter Rhyne, son of Peter Rhyne, Sr.;

4 Ann, m. John Wills (cabinetmaker), son of Garrett Wills, pioneer.

4 Elizabeth Lineberger and family lived near the present town of Lowell in this county and near the shoals of the South Fork River where he and his sons and others built the Woodlawn Cotton Mills commonly nic-named "Pin Hook." She and her husband were most worthy, good Christian people and both lived to a good age. They, too, are buried in a private graveyard near their house. There was a rock wall enclosing their graves which I am told in the hands of the stranger has been torn down and their graves desecrated and neglected. She had children as follows: 5 Alfred ———; Jacob, m. Sallie Lewis; Jonas, m. Sine Cannon and Sarah Lineberger; Caleb, m. Mary M. Rhodes and Fannie Lineberger; Miles, d. s.; Mary Selena, m. Dr. J. F. 4 Ann Wills and family moved to Cape Girardeau Co., Mo., and settled near Daisy. I found numerous descendants in that neighborhood. One son of John Wills was still living at over 80 years of age when I was there. He lived on a farm adjoining that on which his father lived. Jno. Wills, Sr., was noted as the maker of fine furniture—a splendid mechanic and a fine mathematician. It may be noted as a fact but not an uncommon one in that day that the three daughters of Katie Rudisill Best married husbands closely related to each other. Jno. Wills' sister, Anne Magdalene, being the mother of Peter Rhyne, and his sister, Eve, the mother of Jno. Lineberger. Ann Best was born Aug. 22, 1792. Jno. Wills was born Apr. 18, 1784. They were married in 1809 and moved to Mo. in 1833. They died sometime between 1840 and 1850. Their children were:

5 Dina, b. May 12, 1810, m. Abram West, 1830;

s.; Adaline, m. ——— Elliott. I have their descendants no further.

5 Drury Wills lived near Daisy, Mo., on a farm adjoining those of his brothers, Jno., David and Jacob. He was noted for industry, energy and capacity for work. Before the Civil War he owned slaves. When about 80 years of age his legs failed him so that he could not walk without crutches. He did not lose his spirits but was accustomed to say that he could have worn out two pair of legs. His health was otherwise good and he could read without glasses till a short time before his death. He fell and broke one of his legs from the effects of which he lingered and died at the age of ninety years. His children were: 6 Minerva, m. Jno. Smith; Jackson, m. Emiline Penny; Grover S., m. 5 Diana Wills' first husband was Jacob Rudisill, who was the only child of Jno. Rudisill, son of Michael, pioneer, (except a daughter who was very deaf and died single). She became the second wife of Henry Rudisill, also a great grandson of Michael Rudisill, being son of David, son of Henry, son of Michael. For descendants of Diana Rudisill by her first husband, see Jacob Rudisill, page 247. Their children by 2nd husband were: 6 Jacob Henry, m. Priscilla J. Conrad; Julia, d. s., at 14 years of age; and Lewis E., m. Minnie F. Conrad.

6 Jacob Henry Rudisill is a merchant at Liberal, Mo. In the Fall of 1907 I went to see this family but to my great disappointment I found that they had just buried the old gentleman who had survived his wife some time, and Jacob H. happened to be absent on business. I found his family who were very kind to me and gave me further information and also a picture of Diana Rudisill and her husband, Henry Rudisill. This family spells the name Rudisaile. 6 Jacob Henry Rudisill's children: 7 Henry R., m. May Fast; and Ann M. E., m. Luther Lipscomb. 7 Henry R.

5 Rufus Wills' children: 6 See Barbara Hoffman Wills, page 19.

5 John Wills, Jr., son of John Wills, Sr., lives near Daisy, where I visited him in 1907. He is fine looking, pleasant faced genial, old gentleman and active though over 80 years old, and the last survivor of his father's ten children. He lives in plenty and comfort on a good farm with some of his children still at home. His children are: 6 Franklin, s., in California; Drucilla, s.; Albert, s.; Reuben, m. Mary Robinson; Mary, s.; Robt., s.; and three others died young. 6 Reuben Wills has one small child.

5 Mary Welker had six children, two of whom single, with their parents, died many years ago. The other children of Mary Welker were: 6 Belzie, m. Jno. Hinkle; Scena, m. Henry Eddleman; Jno., m. Lucinda Coffey; Wills, m. Mrs. Clara Sadler nee Moore. 6 Belzie Hinkle's children: 7 Robt., Lewis, Allie; Frank, d. s.; Effie, m. ———; and others. 6 Scena Eddleman's children: 7 Jno., s.; Christian, m. Barbara Fulbright; Wm., m. Louisa Fulbright; James, s.; Ella, m. Amaziah Hoffman; Sarah, s.; Mary, m. Joseph Winkler; and Augustus, s. These children married of Scena Eddleman all have small children. 6 John Welker's children: 7 Wm. and others. 6 Wills Welker's children: 7 Oswald, Mary and others.

5 Jacob Wills, the youngest child of Ann Best and husband Jno. Wills, was born in N. C. as were all his brothers and sisters. He was only a year and a half old when the family moved to Mo. His father died when he was eight years old. He well remembered playing in the shavings of his father's work shop. His father was a famous workman and specimens of his workmanship are still to be found in this country. There is a combination bureau—book case and desk which he made for Robt.

Alexander which is still in use and fair condition in the house of J. R. Lewis in Dallas, whose wife is a descendant of Anne Magdalene Rhyne, a sister to the maker of the furniture. For beauty of finish it will compare favorably with the beautiful factory-made furniture of this day and far excels in durability. Jacob Wills' mother died when he was 17 years old, and two years later he married Catharine Welker, who died some weeks after the birth of her fifth child. Several years later he married Elizabeth, daughter of Peter Smith and Peggy Hope, his wife. Elizabeth Smith was also the widow of Cameron Smith who died without issue. Peter Smith above was the son of Peter Smith and his wife, Hannah Best, the daughter of Bastian Best, pioneer. Until about 17 years of age she lived with her parents on the east side of Hoyle's Creek in Gaston County on what is now known as the Henry Rhyne-Logan Brown place. Then they moved to Cape Girardeau County, Mo. They lived near Daisy. Here Jacob Wills died Oct. 2nd, 1906, at the age of seventy-five years. His widow survived him and now lives at Oak Ridge with her son H. H. Wills. I visited her and her son there in 1907, and was most kindly entertained by her and said son who is the proprietor of a good Hotel, the Central, in that town. She gave me much information in my searches. To Mrs. Iva Brune, the youngest child of Jacob Wills, I am especially indebted for gathering most of the facts and names of the descendants of John Wills, Sr., here given. Fourteen children were born to Jacob Wills and his two wives, to-wit: 6 Martha, m. ——— Seitner, Pierce, m. Nancy Hinkle; Marion, m. Jane Smith; Wm., d. s.; James, m. Lena Sadler. These all by 1st wife, and by 2nd wife: Mary, m. Marion Wills; Chas., d. s.; Walter, m. Sadie Currie (c), (in Washington State); Geo., m. Nettie Rutherford (c); H. H., m. Mellie Hartle; Belle, s.; Jane, d. s.; Iva, m. 3 Philip Rudisill, son of Philip Rudisill, was a blacksmith. Some of his implements are still in existence in the neighborhood of his old home on Clark's Creek in Lincoln County, N. C. About 1786 he sold a tract of land near the Friday Shoals and near his father's place and bought from Michael Potts 250 acres of land on the east side of Clark's Creek one mile east of Ramsaur's land and about same time he bought 163 acres more from John Gross, I think in same vicinity. He lived and died here. He and his wife are buried at the private Ramsaur graveyard near the South Fork River on land now owned by Thomas Ramsaur. The inscriptions on their tombstones are: "Sacred to the memory of Philip Rudisill who departed this life May 6, 1812, aged 57 years. The busy scene of life is closed, The body laid in calm repose, The happy soul has gone to rest, Reclining on his Saviour's breast." "In memory of Elizabeth Rudisill, daughter of Philip Lau and wife of Philip Rudisill, who departed this life Oct. the 6th, 1824, aged 59 years and 29 days." SECTION 3—MICHAEL RUDISILL

1 Michael Rudisill, one of the brother founders of the family here, as were also his other brothers, was born in Germany. We do not know the date or place of his birth or much of his life in the old world. We can say in general that our German fathers all came to this country from the upper Rhine section of Germany. That means the Palatine country and the neighboring sections near Switzerland. When a boy in his play-fighting age he received from a playmate by accident a very severe wound from the enemy's artillery in the form of an arrow which struck him in the eye and deprived him of half his vision. Nevertheless he was a worthy and successful citizen-pioneer among the Indian arrows of his new home in America. Some time about 1750 he came to North Carolina from his temporary home in Pennsylvania and settled on Leeper's Creek about four miles from Iron Station just below the old Hamerschold's iron furnace. The country was then an unbroken wilderness but occupied by the Indian natives, with whom he and his family lived in peace and friendship. So much so was this that having business back in Pennsylvania, he left his wife and children in their midst and made the visit. He brought back some seed wheat which was propagated and kept on the farm and neighborhood for over the succeeding hundred years. Mr. Rudisill acquired a very large body of land on both sides of the creek, portions of which were later acquired by his son-in-law, Jacob Link, and by other members of his family. Portions of his plantation are still occupied by his great grandsons, Jno. and Luther Rudisill. As heretofore stated, he and his brothers, Philip and Terrick Rudisill, —spelled then by mistake I suppose "Rudisealy," bought or entered land from the State, May 20, 1754. This was about as early as any entry of land in this section. Michael Rudisill's entry was dated May 17th, but these three patents or notes thereof are registered together in the office of the Secretary of State in Book 13, pages 2, 3 and 4. His entry was described as 200 acres, beginning "at a black oak about two miles from his brother Philip's land. This must have been somewhere in the neighborhood of Iron Station and could not have been his home on Leeper's Creek. I think it probable that the entry of Terrick Rudisill was at least part of the Dellinger tavern land, or as known in later days, the Brick House Jno. B. Smith place, or "Magnolia." Henry Dellinger married this pioneer's daughter and his only child that came south with him. After a long and useful life of service to God and mankind he and his wife ended their work in opening up and building up this goodly section of the new world. The time of his death has not been definitely learned. It was some time between Aug. 4, 1792, the date of the will of his brother Philip, wherein he was made a legatee, and the last of 1793, when partition was made of some of his land between his sons, Henry, Philip, Jacob and his grandson, Henry, the son of Jno. Rudisill, deceased. He and his wife are buried in a private graveyard on his home farm. His son Henry and his family are also buried there. To somebody's shame no marble or stone commemorate the life of this noble old couple of our ancestral family. The children of Michael Rudisill were:

- 3 Henry, m. Catharine Friday and Saloma Seitz (Sides);
- 3 Philip, m. Elizabeth Johnson in 1788;
- 3 Susanna, m. John Derr (Darr);
- 3 John, m. Mary Ramsaur, daughter of Terrick Ramsaur (?)
- 3 Jacob, m. Susanna Hoyle, daughter of Michael Hoyle;
- 3 Catharine, m. Jacob Link;
- 3 Hannah, b. 1758, m. Rev. Jno. Godfrey Arndt (Pioneer Lutheran);
- 3 Elizabeth, m. Matthias Davault;
- 3 Dorothy (Dolly), m. John Early, 1798;
- 3 Barbara, m. Conrad Cansler.

3 I think John, not Henry, sons of Michael, was the oldest child. Henry was probably about the youngest. But as I have written Henry first in the foregoing list I will pursue the regular order. Henry succeeded to his father's home place. In the earlier period the English law of primogeniture seems to have prevailed among our German fathers, but later there arose almost a custom, to say the least it was a common practice, to leave the ancestral home to the last born son. The first wife of Henry Rudisill was Catharine, daughter of Nicholas Friday. She died young and is buried in the home graveyard. The inscription on her tombstone is: "Sacred to the memory of Catharine Rudisill. Died 1791, aged 31 years and 7 months." After this Henry Rudisill married a widow, Salome or Susanna Sides (Seitz). She lived until 1829 and is buried at same graveyard. Her inscription is: "Susanna Rudisill died 1829, aged 57 years. Henry Rudisill himself died and is buried by his wives. His inscription reads: "Sacred to the memory of Henry Rudisill. Was born February 17, 1760. Departed this life August 28, 1834, aged 74 years, 6 months and 11 days." He had a large family of children, to-wit:

5 Elizabeth Stroup's husband, Israel Stroup, was also a Confederate soldier. In character, industry and in the art of attending to his own business—not meddling in others—he was a great citizen. Sturdy, rugged, honest and religious in his unobtrusive way he was of the very salt of the earth. He has recently died, esteemed and mourned by all. 5 Luther Rudisill's children: 6 Jones; Oscar, m. Bertie Rhyne (c); Ollie May, m. J. B. Dellinger (c); Ruth; Bertha, m. Ed Killian; Inez, Minnie, Max, Herbert and Thomas. 6 Bertha Killian's children: 7 Ruth.

3 Philip Rudisill, son of Michael Rudisill, lived on the east side of the South Fork River near the line between Gaston and Lincoln Counties on the place now known as the Harrell place. His children were: 4 John, d. s.; Michael, d. s.; Jacob, m. Sallie Hovis (c); Philip, m. Mary Ann McMillan; Susan, m. Jacob Hovis; Eva, m. Jno. Mosteller; Anna, m. Jno. Stroup; and Geo., d. s.

4 Philip Rudisill's children: 5 Dr. Robt. Young Rudisill of Summerville, Ga., born and raised near Fingerville, S. C. He was educated in the schools of Spartanburg Co., S. C.; studied medicine, and graduated from the South Carolina Medical College at Charleston in 1855 and moved to Chatooga Co., Ga., in April, 1855, for the practice of his profession, where he prospered and made a reputation until the beginning of the Civil War, when he entered the Confederate service and served throughout the war as surgeon with the 6th Ga. Cavalry under General Forrest and later under General Wheeler. He surrendered with Gen. Joseph E. Johnston's army at Greensboro, N. C., and returned to Georgia and resumed the practice of medicine in which he was eminently successful and also became a leader in his community in all the activities and politics of his section. He has often served in the Georgia Legislature and when recently heard of he was still living, over 80 years old, but a Senator in the Legislature of his adopted State. He was twice married: first to Eliza Agnes Knox, by whom he reared three children, a daughter and two sons. The daughter (name not obtained) was a graduate of Rome Female College and married W. M. Henry, who for twelve years was Judge of the Rome Judicial Circuit. Dr. Rudisill's older son, C. C. T. Rudisill, is a graduate of the University of Ga. and of the Atlanta Medical College, and of a Polyclinic School in New York. The younger son's name is Leon DeVerde, and manages the farming interests of the family about three miles from Summerville where they have lived since the war. Dr. Rudisill, some years after the death of his first wife, was again in 1899 married to Mrs. Mary Eliza K. Scott. They have no children. This wife was born near Bethel Presbyterian Church in S. C., and is a sister to Prof. W. S. Kendrick of the Atlanta School of Medicine and is a relative of our good old citizen of Gaston Co., W. D. Glenn. The wife of Philip Rudisill and mother of Dr. Rudisill was a daughter of Capt. Hugh McMillan of Spartanburg, S. C., and her mother was Jane McDowell, a daughter of Robt. McDowell. Mrs. Henry, daughter of Dr. Rudisill, died leaving five children, the oldest a son (no name) is a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy and is a 2nd lieutenant in the U. S. Army. The second, a son, pursuing his studies in the medical department of Vanderbilt University. The third, a son, now at the preparatory school for the U. S. Military Academy. In addition to these sons Mrs. Miller left a daughter, a graduate of the State Normal College for girls at Athens, Ga., and a younger daughter at home in school.

Dr. Rudisill is an intelligent, successful and interesting gentleman. I visited other friends in the town of Summerville but I was in such a rush to make my tour in a specified time that I made the mistake of not visiting him three miles out of town, thinking I could get what information I needed by letter. And that is where I miscalculated. I received one very pleasant letter giving above information but after that he dropped me completely. With my most urgent and persuasive solicitation I have not been able to provoke a response of any sort. He evidently could have supplied much further information of his own and his father's family. I do not, as you see, even get the names of his own children and grandchildren except his sons.

I do not know any of the brothers or sisters of Dr. Rudisill or their descendants, if there be such. But as I have said, Dr. Rudisill is getting old and is busy with his own business.

4 Neither have I learned the descendants of Eva Mosteller, who is also reported to have lived in S. C.

4 For the descendants of Susan Hovis, see Jacob Hovis, page 192, et seq.

The McMinn's settled near Castor, 18 miles northeast of Greenville, Mo. The Earneys went further west and the family here have lost sight of them. I have no information from either of these families as to their descendants except that Mrs. McMinn had a daughter, Jane, who married ——— Kittrell, and lived near Williamsville. She also had a son, Alexander, probably about Poplar Bluff, Mo.

4 David Derr was a Baptist minister in these parts but moved to Ala. and some of his children were in Ark. Among these children were sons named Pink, Michael and Hosea.

Margt Terry, at Forrest City, Ark., 1908; Anna D. and Sarah E., twins, b. 1883. Anna D. died 7 months old; Sarah E., m. Orville Gillette, 1903. 5 All of Jno. C. Darr's children are by 1st wife. He was a gallant Confederate soldier in the cavalry service—much in Mo. He is growing old and health impaired but he has wonderful spirits and wit. I am spelling this family name here Darr not Derr, as we have it in the family here, partly because I think Darr is probably the old spelling and especially because Mr. Jno. C. Darr of Atkins, Ark., who has given me this information about his branch of the family dislikes the new way so much. 6 Emmett L. Darr's children: 7 Mary A. and Emmett L. 6 Jno. E. Darr's children: 7 Jno. E., Jr. 6 Sarah E. Gillette's children: 7 Jewette Elizabeth, Alvin Leonard and Cath. P.

3 John Rudisill, I think, was probably the oldest son of Michael, the pioneer, and married Mary Ramsaur, the daughter of Dietrich (Terrick) Ramsaur, the pioneer of that influential family in this section. He died young and I think his widow married Nicholas Friday (Freitag). His children were: 4 Henry, m. Elizabeth Costner; and Catharine, very deaf who died young. For Henry Rudisill's descendants, see Elizabeth Rudisill, page 247.

3 Jacob Rudisill, son of Michael Rudisill, married Susanna Hoyle, daughter of Michael Hoyle and granddaughter of Peter Hoyle, the pioneer of that family in this section. They lived about three miles southwest of Dallas on the south side of Big Long Creek adjoining the home place of Michael Rhyne whose wife was his wife's sister. His children were:

4 Catharine, s.; Aaron, m. Fanny Clemmer; John, m. ——— Blackwood; Abigail, m. Joseph Mendenhall; Margaret, m. John Davies; Ann, m. Robt Bell.

5 Lorenzo Bell had no children. He lost an arm in battle in the Confederate Army. For a while he lived in Florida and was treasurer of his county.

5 Sonora Bell had one son: 6 Edgar Ward Bell.

3 Catharine Link lived adjoining to the plantation of her father, Michael Rudisill, on Leeper's Creek. I think her home was part of the original plantation of her father. 5 Lawson Link's children: 6 There were eleven children of Lawson Link—all living except the oldest daughter and there are sixty-one grandchildren and twenty-three great grandchildren. Henry G. Link of Charlotte, N. C., is a son of Lawson. He has children, one named Ruth and one Jessie V., m. Jno. B. Goodwin, and that's about all I have been able to get of that branch of the family. Indeed I feel that with the full information of the Cath. Link family within easy reach, I have made a very imperfect job here for want of the ability to interest those upon whom I have called or written for help.

4 David Link's children: 5 Sarah, m. Jno. Cline (c); Barbara, m. Abel Sigman; Eve, m. Virgil Huntley (c).

5 Barbara Sigman's children: 6 Mary, m. ———, and has one child.

I am under great obligation to Mr. Amidas C. Link for information most courteously given and for the loan of a rare old book, "Rupps' 30,000"—a list of German emigrants to this country. I have no account of the descendants of Eliz. Aikin, Cath. Raby, Emma Fry and Sophia Abernethy.

Catharine Hoffman and family is said to have lived in Kansas City, Mo., and to have had the old Michael Rudisill Bible, for which I have vainly searched for years. Mrs. Hoffman was reported living not long ago, but I have failed to elicit any answer to requests for information. There are probably a large list of descendants in the West. 6 A. 3 Hanna Rudisill, the daughter of the pioneer, Michael Rudisill, married the great pioneer Lutheran preacher, the Rev. John Godfrey Arndt. He served his Lord, his Church and his country faithfully. It is said that he was an ardent patriot in the Revolutionary War, while his wife owing to some bad treatment received by one of her brothers from some patriot (?) neighbors was not so decided in favor of her nearby patriot neighbors. She and her husband rest under the Lutheran Church at Lincolnton. A marble slab against the eastern wall of the church in his memory is engraved with the emblems of his adopted country, the spreading eagle, the "E. Pluribus Unum," etc., and inscription in German: "John G. Arndt, d. 9th July, 1807, aged 66 years, 6 months and 28 days." She lived many years longer. 5 John B. Smith, the son of David Smith, who was so helpful and accommodating to me in the preparation of these notes, has recently died. A good man called to rest and reward. He was born Nov. 26, 1827, and died Feb. 2, 1906. He is buried in the Dellinger graveyard on the farm occupied by his wife's great grandfather, Terrick Rudisill, her grandfather and grandmother, Henry Dellinger and his wife, Hanna Dellinger, daughter of said Rudisill, and by David Smith, Jno. B. Smith's father, and by said Jno. B. Smith himself, the greater part of his life. The worthy ancestors are nearly all buried in the same graveyard. Mr. Jno. B. Smith was an intelligent man, a surveyor, a useful citizen, a kind neighbor of unostentatious bearing and habits, and of fine Christian character, and a devout lover of his ancestral Lutheran Church. He was especially noted for his fine memory and his wonderful store of family historical facts and traditions. He was a delightful man, of whom as nearly as possible of any other man I ever knew, it might truthfully be said: "He was an Israelite in whom there was no guile." His children were: 6 Theodore; Eugenia E., m. R. E. Lineberger; L. Gustavus, a physician; Robt., Anna; Ada, m. W. M. Atwater; Ida, Edgar J., Tennyson; and Alice died when four years old. 6 Eugenia E. Lineberger's children: 7 Lester, Wm., Barnett, Lida, Adrian and Eugenia Marie. 6 Ada Atwater moved to Arkansas and I think has one or two small children.

5 Eliza Hannah Roueche reared her family in Salisbury, N. C. Her children were ten in number, to-wit: 6 Mary Frances, d. s.; Richard Francis, m. Mrs. Ruff nee Lowder (c); James Lafayette, m. Mary J. Clarke, Oct. 15, 1869; Sarah Elizabeth, d. s.; Peter David, b. Feb. 24, 1849, m. Cora M. Ide, b. June 26, 1852, and married Feb. 6, 1870; Jno. Patrick, b. Feb. 4, 1852, m. Margaret C. Taaffe, Feb. 22, 1887, and died Dec. 3, 1908; Eugenia Elizabeth, m. J. H. Lewis (c); Joseph X, s.; Henry Sebastian, d. s.; Frances Rebecca, single.

6 James Lafayette Roueche's children: 7 Jas. L., d. s.; Anne, d. s.; Maggie, m. Walter Cutting; Pride, d. s.; Daisy, s.; Sarah, d. s.; Jno., s.; Mamie, s.; Lily, d. s. 7 Maggie Cutting's children: 8 Loyd, Elmer, Mary, Margt., d. s.; and Elizabeth, s. 6 Peter David Roueche's children: 7 Mary Eliza, b. Jan. 12, 1871, d. s.; Frederick Francis, b. May 6, 1872, m. Sarah Gurlie, Aug. 1, 1906 (c); Agnes Helene, m. L. W. Harris; Julia Hortense, b. Sept. 21, 1876, d. s.; Cora A., b. March 16, 1879; David Ney, b. Dec. 28, 1880, m. Blanche Thomas, June 2, 1901; Henry Bernard, b. March 15, 1883, m. Effie Morton, Oct. 26, 1909; Joseph A., s., b. Oct. 24, 1885; Mary Z., b. Oct. 30, 1887, m. Walter F. McCanless May 29, 1908; Leo J., b. June 8, 1890, s.; Sarah E., s., b. Aug. 14, 1892; Frances J., s., b. March 19, 1895; Geo., b. Jan. 15, 1897. 7 Agnes Helene Harris' children: 8 Mary, d. s.; Peter H., d. s.; Lucian, Margt. N., Raymond M., Wm. L. 7 David Ney Roueche's children: 8 Milton J., Thos. N., Cora E., Jno. F. 7 Mary Z. McCanless has one son: 8 Walter F.

6 Jno. P. Roueche's children: 7 Genevieve C., b. Feb. 10, 1888; Hortense E., b. Dec. 9, 1889; Bernadette M., b. June 22, 1892; Teresa, b. Nov. 3, 1894; Agnes, b. June 15, 1897; Gertrude, b. Apr. 25, 1899; Lawrence A., b. Jan. 20, 1903; Jno. F., b. Nov. 7, 1906. Jno. P. Roueche died Dec. 3, 1908. Peter David Roueche was engineer or conductor on the railroad and a few years ago he was so seriously mangled in a wreck that his life at one time was despaired of, but he recovered, at least so far as to get up most of the above information of his family. The above names clearly indicate that Francis Richard Roueche was a Frenchman. He was born Sept. 30, 1814, in Alsace, at Angest, Canton of Fontaine, Arrondissement of Belfast, Department of the Haut Rhine in France. He was married to Eliza Hanna Smith July 22, 1838, in Lincoln Co., N. C., by Robert Williamson, Esquire. He died in Salisbury, N. C., May 19, 1861. Eliza Hanna Smith was born June 18, 1819, at Magnolia Grove, Lincoln County, N. C., but soon after marriage she went to Salisbury where she lived with her husband until his death and remained a widow there until her death which occurred in Salisbury January 29, 1900. The following commendatory notices were published in the papers: "Mrs. E. H. Roueche died at 12 o'clock Monday, January 29, 1900, after lingering on her sick bed for five months. Mrs. Roueche was in the eighty-first year of her age. She leaves six children, Messrs. Richard, Jno., Peter and Joseph, Mrs. Lewis and Miss Fannie Roueche. The funeral took place from the Catholic Church Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock and the interment was made in the Salisbury cemetery. The many friends of Mrs. Roueche who have been solicitous about her will be pained to learn of her death. The family have the sincere sympathies of the community." "In memoriam. Today at the Catholic Church the obsequies of the late Mrs. E. H. Roueche were celebrated. The deceased was born in 1819 in Lincoln County, N. C., the daughter of a good family. Her marriage to a Catholic became the circumstances which led to her change of faith, but her perseverance, for many years, as the first and only member of her communion proved that conviction, not convenience, had brought it about. Left a widow early in middle life she made Salisbury for nearly half a century her home and the large concourse of the best citizens that gathered to do her the last honors, showed the esteem her sojourn in our midst had gained. As a woman distinguished by integrity, truth and sterling intrinsic worth as a Christian, without ostentation or narrow bitterness, as a mother who combined within herself a man's strength of character with a woman's gentle power of persuasion, she nobly carried out in her life God's design and fulfilled every just requirement of human society. To sum up her life, no words can be more appropriate than those used by her pastor describing it as consisting not in doing extraordinary things, but in doing ordinary things extraordinarily well. May her memory live long with her friends, and may her children and children's children add with just pride her name so stainless, so honorable into their pedigree to serve them and their posterity as a model well worthy of imitation."

Eric Erson was a most gallant and brave soldier in the Confederate Army. He first commanded a company of the 52nd N. C. Regt., some of whom were from Gaston Co. I have often heard them speak in terms of great praise of him for his bravery, and his kindness and consideration for his men. They fairly worshipped him.

4 Mary Cansler's children: 5 Mary, m. Caney Lowrance. I have not obtained the descendants of Mary Lowrance. (See Henry Cansler, Chapter 15.

3 Elizabeth, daughter of Michael Rudisill, the pioneer, married Devault (Matthias, I think). She did not live long after marriage. I am told she left no children. She is buried at the graveyard of the old Dutch Lutheran Church, near Macpelah Presbyterian Church in the southeastern part of Lincoln Co., N. C. She is one of the very few beneficiaries of the generosity of the old Adam Cloninger who donated the 37 acres of land to the church of which the graveyard is the only remnant left, and of Jacob Rein, 1st, who by will, gave five pounds to this church. Her grave is marked by a modest slab on which these lines are inscribed: "Sacred to the memory of Elizabeth Devault who departed this life Nov. 9, A. D., 1798, aged 32 years, 11 months and 2 weeks.

How loved, how valued once, avails thee not
To whom related or by whom begot,
A heap of dust alone remains of thee
'Tis all thou art and all the proud shall be."

3 Dorothy (Dolly) Rudisill, daughter of Michael, the pioneer, married John Early in 1798, but after years of search I get no trace of them or their descendants. There are some indications that they went west to Mo. and then further west and lost sight of their relatives here. I feel sure that is a fact.

3 Barbara Rudisill, daughter of Michael Rudisill, married Conrad Cansler. I have been unable to get exact and positive information as to Christian name of this man. On fairly good proof I had concluded that it was Philip W. Cansler, the pioneer and founder of that family in this section. He lived on Leopards or Leeper's Creek at the mill still standing and used between the lands of Michael Rudisill and Rev. Jno. G. Arndt. The older living members of the family with whom I got in communication assented to that proposition and thought it was correct. Philip W. Cansler spoken of above is buried in a private graveyard on sawmill tract. He died in 1804. His wife is buried by his side, but her gravestone gives no information of even her name. But it is a fact that Philip W. Cansler's will calls his wife "Uly," and I think it is proven that Philip W. Cansler did marry Uly Devepaugh. My first conclusion was therefore wrong—unless Uly Devepaugh was a second wife. When he made his will he made provision for a change of the provision for his wife in case she should marry again, which is a slight indication that she might have been a second wife and younger than himself. I—acting on the assumption that Barbara Rudisill was the mother of the Cansler family and so the Cansler family would come into the scope of my work—have prepared some notes to give a sketch of that family in full, as if all were related to me. Later information is to the effect that she married Conrad Cansler. (See further, Chapter 15—Cansler.).

SECTION 4—DERRICK RUDISILL

2 The Rudisill who first lived at the Henry Dellinger place, one of the pioneer brothers of the Rudisill family here, came from Pennsylvania to this section with his brothers, Philip and Michael Rudisill, whom we have just written of. I do not know his wife's name or anything of her. It is said that he had raised his family in Pennsylvania and left all his children there except his daughter, Hanna, who came South with him. This daughter married Henry Dellinger. I know of none of the other children of this old pioneer except one whose name was John who after the death of his father by deed conveyed his interest in his father's land to Henry Dellinger, his brother-in-law. Unfortunately this deed and other papers bearing the name of this old pioneer has been lost—so that even his correct name is not certainly known. Our historian, Jno. B. Smith, who recently died and who lived on the farm of this old Rudisill and was so well versed in family lore and tradition, could not give his name. Dr. Augustus Smith who possesses many of the characteristic qualities of his good father, John B. Smith, was under the impression that his name was Wolfgang. I find at the time his brothers, Philip and Michael, were entering land from the Government, May 20, 1754, he also entered 200 acres "beginning at a black oak, being a corner of Philip Rudisill's land." When it is considered that Philip Rudisill's entry of 520 acres was on Hoyle's Creek just below the Dellinger-Smith place, of which the Rhyne-Hovis land was a part as heretofore detailed and that this Rudisill was the first owner of the Dellinger tavern place I think we may reasonably infer that this 200 acre entry covered at least a part of this place. In this deed the name of the grantee is written Yerrick—or rather I should say the name is so written in the notes of the entry in the office of the Secretary of State of N. C. I haven't been able to find the patent itself. To my mind this spelling looks more Irish than German. The favored name in German is Dietrich—and a common corruption of this into the English is Derrick, and a corruption of this caused by the soft sound of "D" in a German mouth was Terrick, and I think that the scribe who made those notes meant to write the name in this form but made the stem of the "T" extend below the line, like "Y." So I am concluding the old father's name was Dietrich, corrupted into Terrick. Dietrich Ramsauer, the pioneer of that name, was known as Terrick, and in the early day the name Dellinger here was spelled Tillinger. Terrick (then) Rudisill died and is buried at the private graveyard on his own land now known as the Dellinger graveyard. His grave is near a pretty steep hill as it rises from the bottom lands. This is still pointed out, but is marked only with a big rough stone with no inscription at all on it. It is said Mr. Rudisill himself selected his burial place there because he thought on that hillside no one would ever want to cultivate the land. But that hill side is now a very fertile thicket and offers temptation to the farmer. As I have written, Terrick Rudisill's only child who accompanied him south, married Henry Dellinger, the son of Philip Dellinger. There was also a "Martin Tillinger" who sold 200 acres of land on Leeper's Creek to Michael Rudisill Jan. 14, 1767. Eve, wife of Michael Rudisill, Margaret, wife of Michael Hoyle, and Mary Magdalene, wife of Peter Costner 1st, I think were all sisters of Henry and Martin Dellinger. There was a tradition that Eve Rudisill's father did not remain in America but went back to Germany. This might have been Martin Dellinger above. There were reports later that he died in Germany leaving a considerable estate, but for some reason our younger people here could not prove their relationship and failed to receive anything from the estate.

Mr. A. Nixon, who is the Clerk of the Superior Court of Lincoln Co., N. C., which included Gaston County prior to 1846, and as such Clerk is the envied custodian of the records of this section of the State since 1768 when Tryon County was established, and who makes good use of his constant access to such records and of his spare time to search out and publish the interesting historical facts of that distant past, after the death of our esteemed friend, John B. Smith on Feb. 2, 1906, published a pamphlet sketch: "In Memoriam John Barnett Smith." On account of its interesting character and its appropriateness at this place, thanking him for permission not asked for, I take the liberty to copy the following extract here:

"Dellinger—Michael Rudisill married Eva Dellinger. Jno. B. Smith lived at the Henry Dellinger place; he has related to me much of his history and that of this historic place, some of which runs as follows: This was the home of Henry Dellinger prior to the Revolutionary War and afterward until the town of Lincoln was founded. This place, Magnolia, is situated on the Tuckasege road six miles from Lincoln. Before the Revolutionary War when the old Tryon Court House was near Cherryville, a road from Beatty's ford to the Court House crossed the Tuckasege road at Henry Dellinger's. Henry Dellinger's residence stood at the intersection of these two roads just east of, and between J. B. Smith's brick residence and the spring. The Tuckasege road has since been changed and now runs west of the house. That part of the Beatty's ford road has been discontinued many years, but the tracks of both old roads are clearly visible today. Being a man of large means and living at a public place, he kept house for the entertainment of the public. At that time such houses were known as ordinaries and were licensed by the Court. In the Court record of April sessions, 1775, I find this entry: 'It was ordered by the Court that Henry Dellinger have license to keep ordinary at his now dwelling house he complying with the act of Assembly in the case made and provided who proposes for security John Ritzhaupt and Nicholas Friday.' In 1779 Tryon County was divided into Lincoln and Rutherford Counties, the old Court house falling in Lincoln County but too far west for the convenience of the public. The Courts were then held for a few years at Nicholas Friday's on the South Fork. They were next held at Henry Dellinger's. At January sessions, 1784, it was ordered that the jail of said County should be Henry Dellinger's spring house until the end of April sessions, 1784. The place dug out for the foundations of the spring house is visible today. It was a small building, the lower story rock, upper, logs. In the lower story the landlord kept his liquors, the upper was used for a jail. Some of the prisoners escaping from the spring house at April sessions, 1784, it was 'ordered that the sheriff of said County make use of a room in Henry Dellinger's house to be strengthened for the purpose of a common jail till the public buildings in said County are completed.' Mr. Smith preserved the heavy iron hinges of the jail doors. The next term of the Court was held at Henry Dellinger's. The Court minutes read as follows: "State of North Carolina. At a County Court of Pleas and Quarter sessions begun and held in and for the County of Lincoln at Henry Dellinger's on the first Monday in July, 1784, before Robert Alexander, William Graham and John Moore, Esq.' The Courts continued to be held at Henry Dellinger's until the town of Lincolnton was established. The Courts were first held at the Court House in Lincolnton in October, 1786. Henry Dellinger's second wife was reared in the city and wearied of country life. So yielding to her inclination he was the first to purchase a lot in the new town of Lincolnton. He owned and occupied the lot on the northwest square now known as the Robinson block. He is said to have erected the first house built in the new town. Henry Dellinger made frequent trips back to Pennsylvania, taking with him a drove of cattle and bringing back with him in return liquors for his cellar and goods for his store.

After the death of his first wife, who was a Miss Rudisill, he wooed Mrs. Smothers, a widow, then living in Pennsylvania. According to tradition she was a great lover of coffee. Her objection to wedding and accompanying Mr. Dellinger was the fear that in the far off South in the wilds of Western North Carolina she would not be supplied with her favorite drink. This the ardent lover quickly overcame by promising her all she wanted—a promise he faithfully kept. His neighbors frequently discussed his expensive bargain and she filled an untimely grave from excessive use of coffee."

3 Hannah Rudisill, daughter of Terrick Rudisill, married this Henry Dellinger. I haven't at hand the date of her death. She is buried at the home graveyard. After her death Henry Dellinger married a widow—a Mrs. Smothers or Smoller. He died February 15, 1820, at the home of his son-in-law, Peter Mosteller, who had married his daughter, Mary, by his second wife and lived near Long Shoals in Lincoln Co. He was 80 years old. Hannah Dellinger's children were: 4 Michael, m. Christina Wills, daughter of Garrett Wills, the pioneer Wills, and Barbara Lineberger, daughter of Capt. Lewis Lineberger, pioneer; Martin Dellinger, m. ——— Englefinger; Jacob, m. Sallie Smoller, his father's step-daughter; a daughter, m. Michael Reep.

4 Michael Dellinger's children: 5 Henry, m. Susie Link; Michael moved away and died unmarried; Elizabeth, m. Jno. Brown; these by first wife; and by 2nd wife: Lewis, m. Elizabeth Hines; David, m. Ann Hines. These Hines women were sisters to Dan'l Hines.

5 Henry Dellinger, son of Michael, moved to Ill. Is said to have had no children.

5 Elizabeth Dellinger Brown, daughter of Michael Dellinger, m. Jno. Brown. Miss Clarissa Brown, who has recently died, had in her possession a number of fragments of German writing, among them one a record of her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Brown's birth, and a beautiful prayer made in her name on the occasion of her baptism. I procured this paper and this is the translation: "In the year of Christ, 1789, the 29th of June, my daughter, Elizabeth, was born into the world. Lord, give thy blessing on all my ways and take me thy tender child into thy protection and grace. Make me clean in the bath from all my guilt and sin. Write me into the number of thy people, that I one time may appear as a bride before the throne of thy grace with the promised crown which there is promised to thy saints." She and her husband were most excellent people and she doubtless wears now the crown promised to the saints. Her children were: 6 Mary, m. John P. Hovis; Joseph, s., and went to the Mexican war, and after the war was over, on his way home, he got as far as Asheville, N. C., where he became ill and died; Rebecca Clarissa, d. s., at a good old age; Jno. A., m. Susan Reel. 6 For Mary Hovis' children: 7 See Jno. P. Hovis, page 192. 6 John A. Brown's children: 7 Geo., m. Jane Finger; Eliza, m. O. M. Howard; Mary S., s.; Martha C., m. Wm. D. Quinn; Luella, m. Ellis Rhyne; Anne, m. Monroe Hallman; Luther, s.; Lola, m. SECTION 5—JONAS RUDISILL

2 Jonas Rudisill, a brother to the pioneers, written of in the three preceding sections of this chapter, lived in York Co., Pennsylvania, and his wife's name was Mary Elizabeth Moul. There is no current tradition or other evidence found by me indicating that he ever came south. He most likely had more children there than we have heard of in this section. He probably had daughters and other sons who did not leave Pennsylvania, but remained with their father. The only children we have account of which I consider fairly proved to be brothers and sons of Jonas Rudisill and wife of Pennsylvania were: 3 William, m. Miss Vaughn; Jonas, m. Susana Clark, of Mecklenburg County, N. C.; John, m. ———; and Philip, m. ———. Of these Wm. John and Philip bought land in Rappahannock County, Virginia, situated on Hughes River. These all have descendants in that section. As all the information about these so far as the descendants of Wm. Rudisill are concerned is contained in a letter received from a grandson, James A. Rudisill, 80 years old, probably it will be less subject to mistakes if I copy the letter here instead of trying myself to interpret and rearrange it to remove any uncertainties in the relationships. The letter is: "History of the Rudasill Family. The first Rudasills to come to Va. were three brothers, named William, John and Philip. They bought land in Rappahannock Co., situated on Hughes River. William married and raised a family of three sons. Their names were: William, John and Philip. William married a Miss Vaughn. He raised seven children, three sons and four daughters. Their names were Lucy and Nancy who died single. Betsy married Mr. Joe DeFristoe. They raised three sons. Their names were: Charles, Edmund and William. Charles went south and died single. Edmund went to West Point, N. Y., as a student. He married and raised one son who lived in Washington, D. C. He was teaching in a large school there, when he died several years ago. His mother lived with him in Washington. She died there. Mr. Joe DeFristoe died on his farm in Rappahannock Co. William died on his farm single. Fanny married David Rittenour. They raised five children, three daughters and two sons. The daughters names were Catharine, Evelyn and Keziah. Catharine married a gentleman from Md. Evelyn married Mr. Corbin from Rappanhannock Co. Keziah is still single. The sons, whose names are Bosten and Connor, are single. John Rudasill married and raised three children, two daughters, Mary and Lucy, and one son. Mary married Mr. John H. Rittenhour. They went to Pa. to live. Lucy married Mr. Wm. Hopper. The son went west. Mildred married Philip Rudasill. They raised seven children, four girls and three boys. Two of the boys went to Texas to live. Two of the girls married and went to Texas to live. One of the girls, Lucy, married Mr. Swartz who has a large woolen mill near Sperryville, Culpepper Co. They raised some children, but I don't know how many. One girl married Mr. Britton Bolden. They raised some children. One girl, Virginia, married Mr. James Doyle of Culpepper Co. Jacob Rudasill, married Ellen M. Hawkins of Culpepper Co. They had eight children: Geo. W., the eldest child, died when 12 years old. Caroline, the oldest girl, married Mr. Peter Weaver of Rappahannock Co. They have no children. James A. Rudasill married Sarah E. Carpenter of Madison Co. We raised nine children, five sons and four daughters. All of whom are living. The boys are Chas. M., who married Henrietta V. Larkens of Rockingham Co. They raised three children, one daughter, Bessie Irene, who married Dr. C. F. Ross of Morgantown, West Virginia, and two sons, Jessie Larkens and Chas. Lewis. Harry E. married Mary H. Liddy, nee Wagner, of Chicago. They have one son, Louie, and live in Chicago, Ill. Wm. A. and Lucien A. live at Orange, C. H., and are engaged in mercantile pursuits. Dan'l J. who is a doctor lives at Kingwood, West Va. Mamie J. married W. B. Lacy of Madison Co. They have four children, two girls and two boys. The girls are Leslie Lee and Kate. The boys are Harry and Louie. Kate I. married C. M. Thomas of Madison Co. They have three children, two girls and one boy. The girls are Merle and Sarah. The boy is C. M., Jr. Nellie Bird married Joseph Tanner of Madison Co. They have one son, Herman Clyde. Dena married J. P. Bickers of Madison. They have two children, James William and Catharine.

Wm. Frank Rudasill married Miss Catharine Smith of Culpepper Co. They raised three children, two of whom are living. Perry, the eldest, married a Miss Herndon of Culpepper Co. They have three children and live in Washington, D. C. Effie, married a Mr. Tansill of Culpepper. They have children and live in Md. Wm. Frank died the 24th of July, 1909. His widow survives him. She lives at Winston Station, Culpepper Co. Jno. G. Rudasill died single. Sarah married Wm. Partlow of Rappahannock Co. They raised fourteen children. Alpheus Rudasill married a Miss Newby. They had two children who died young. Alpheus and his wife are dead. Thaddeus Rudasill married Miss Margaret Jones of Culpepper Co. They have no children. Louis Rudasill married Miss Rittenhour. They had five children, three girls, Catharine, Bettie and Susan. Catharine married Mr. James Fogel of Rappahannock Co. Bettie married Mr. Henson of Md. Susan is single. Wm. Rudasill married Miss Jolie Hudson of Rappahannock Co. They had four girls and three sons. Philip Rudasill married and raised three boys and one girl who married Mr. Evans Bragg. They had four girls and one son. Philip's sons, Robert and John, went west to live."

If I gather this right it is a good account of the descendants of Wm. Rudasill, son of Wm., one of the Virginia pioneers, but we have nothing of the descendants of John and Philip, sons of Wm. Rudasill, pioneer, nor of John and Philip, co-settlers and brothers of Wm. Rudasill, Sr., but I think the information valuable as showing where any one interested may get trace of such omitted descendants. I might have done that myself but some of my inquiries were not answered and I had so many similar conditions that I think I haven't done my best in this one. It will be observed that the Virginia Rudisills spell their name Rudasill. The Missourians spell theirs Rudasaile and Carolinians Rudisill.

3 Jonas Rudisill, son of Jonas Rudisill, Sr., of York. Pennsylvania, and his wife, Mary Elizabeth, came south also and instead of stopping with his brothers in Virginia pushed on further south as his uncles Philip, Michael and Terrick had done years before. He came a young man and unmarried. Later he married Susana Clark, youngest daughter of Wm. Clark of Mecklenburg County and he settled near his wife's home in the fertile region of Steele Creek Presbyterian Church in Mecklenburg County. This was some years after the Revolutionary War. I think he lived here all the rest of his life. He became a Presbyterian—his wife's church—and died, leaving a large, influential and highly respectable family of descendants in that vicinity and in Tenn., Arkansas and other western sections. A grandson of Jonas Rudisill, Jr., Samuel A. Rudisill, of Arkadelphia, Arkansas, still living, 75 years old, writes of the history of his father's family: "There were three brothers came from Germany to the United States, Wm., Jonas and John. William settled in Virginia; John in Pennsylvania, and Jonas in North Carolina and had four sons and six daughters. Names of sons: William, Jonas, John and James. Names of daughters: Mary, Margaret, Harriet, Susan, Ann and Amanda." Comparing this with the letter of James A. Rudisill, the grandson of Wm. Rudisill, brother of Jonas Rudisill, Jr., who settled in Virginia, which letter has just been copied hereinbefore it will be seen that James A. Rudisill has overlooked Jonas Rudisill in N. C., and Sam'l A. Rudisill has likewise overlooked Philip Rudisill, one of his grandfather's brothers who settled in Virginia. This is not to be wondered at—as in those primitive days of travel and mail, brothers even lost correspondence with brother and sister.

I count myself extremely fortunate in having secured through Mr. W. L. Gallant of Gastonia, a descendant of this old father, a copy of the record from the old family Bible and I consolidate and here copy this record and the prefaced certificate of Mr. C. A. Neagle, also a descendant: "I the undersigned certify that this is a true and correct copy of the Rudisill family record as contained in my grandmother's Bible, now in my possession. This Bible is dated A. D., 1813, which makes it quite old. The print is still bright and clear and the writing in the record is perfectly plain. The book is bound in brown sheepskin. I prize it highly as a relic of my ancestors. My mother is the only living member of the Rudisill family as here recorded.

C. A. NEAGLE, Springfield, Mo., June 28, 1891."

And just here I will digress to say that the old German ancestors here had great reverence for their Bibles and there are still some very fine old Bibles to be found. The earlier and better ones that I have seen had no blank family records. But it was the custom to write the record on loose sheets and keep it in the Bible. Many of these records have been lost. I have searched faithfully for years for the family Bible of Michael Rudisill, the pioneer, which contained the family record. This, if written with the particularity of this of Jonas Rudisill's family, I would consider a great prize. But of Jonas Rudisill this is the record: "Jonas Rudisill, son of Jonas and Mary Elizabeth Rudisill, of Pennsylvania, York County, was born July 16th, 1767, and was married to Susannah Clark, youngest daughter of Wm. and Susanna Clark of North Carolina, Mecklenburg County. I haven't learned the names of the consorts of the above nor their descendants except of Mrs. Mary M. Williamson who so kindly sent me this information.

5 Mary M. Williamson's children: 6 Hattie M., b. March 12, 1862, m. W. H. Taylor, Dec. 6, 1881; Jno. S., b. Dec. 22, 1863, m. Edna Rudisill, July 18, 1893; Maggie R., b. Dec. 15, 1865, died May 11, 1889; Lula M., b. Aug. 27, 1868, m. Rev. B. B. Thomas, Sept. 10, 1892; Nich. B., b. Jan. 18, 1873, m. Myrtle Nailing, Nov. 22, 1894. 6 Hattie M. Taylor's children: 7 Willie May, m. R. G. Lane. 6 John Williamson's children: 7 Wallace, Mary and Martha. Mr. W. B. Williamson died July 9, 1897. Mrs. Williamson still lives, near Raleigh, Tenn.

Since writing the above I have, through the kindness of Mrs. Sue Gallant Robinson, seen cards from Mr. Geo. R. Prowell, a historian, of York, Pennsylvania, in which he states that Jonas Rudisill served in the American Army in the Revolutionary War and "Jonas Rudisill died intestate Sept. A. D., 1799, leaving to survive him a widow, Elizabeth, and the following children: Juliana intermarried with Michael Arnold; Philip Rudisill —; Elizabeth Rudisill intermarried with Wirely Rudisill; Jno. —; Suzanna, married Chesterly Gipe; Jonas —; Jacob —; Rosina, married Jacob Hoffman; Anna Mary, married John Mease."

This makes a small discrepancy but may give a clue to the detached Wirely Rudisill and a connection with the Hoffman family in Pennsylvania. The following also is a copy of a letter from said Geo. R. Prowell relative to the elder Jonas Rudisill of York, Penn.

"Dec. 17, 1912.

"To whom it may Concern:

"This is to certify that Mrs. S. A. Robinson of Gastonia, N. C., is a lineal descendant of Jonas Rudisill, a soldier of the Revolution. Jonas Rudisill was married June 11, 1754, at York, Pennsylvania, to Maria Elizabeth Moul, according to a church record book in possession of the Historical Society of York County.

"During the Revolution, Jonas Rudisill served in Captain Simon Copenhafer's Company, First Battalion, York County Associators organized in 1775 by Col. James Smith, who in 1776 was chosen a delegate in Congress and signed the declaration of Independence. In the summer of 1776 the First Battalion formed a part of the First Regiment of Flying Camp which Regiment was commanded by Col. Michael Swope of York and was composed entirely of York County troops.

"Swope's Regiment took part in the battle of Fort Washington and the other engagements around New York City. When Washington retreated across New Jersey Col. Swope with the rest of the Flying Camp took part in the battles of Princeton and Trenton and remained in the service two months longer than the term of their enlistment which was for six months. The printed muster roll of the company in which Jonas Rudisill served is found on page 263, Powell's History of York County, a copy of which is now in the library of Congress at Washington. The original muster roll containing the name of Jonas Rudisill and his battalion is now in the Archives of the Historical Society of York County.

"Jonas Rudisill died intestate in Sept., 1799, leaving to survive his widow, Maria Elizabeth, and several children including Jonas Rudisill second, another ancestor of Mrs. S. A. Robinson.

"Maria Elizabeth Rudisill, wife of Jonas Rudisill, died at York in 1803. If any further data is needed to prove the eligibility of Mrs. S. A. Robinson to the D. A. R., it can be readily furnished.

Very respectfully yours,

Chapter 5

BEST or BESS

SECTION I

Sebastian (Bastian or Boston) Best was among the very first of our German fathers who came from Germany to Pennsylvania through English ports and thence to Western North Carolina and settled in this immediate section, then Anson County, afterwards Mecklenburg, Tryon, Lincoln and now Gaston County. He found the country an almost unbroken wilderness inhabited by Indians, with whom he got along usually in friendly terms. Though of one generation later he preceded the pioneer, Hoyle (Peter), by a short period of time. He was a young man and unmarried. His first location was on Leeper's Creek, on land which he later obtained from the Government. From the records of the Secretary of State I find that patent was made to him from the State, dated May 15, 1754. The land is described as: "300 acres of land on the branches of Leeper's and Killian's Creek, being the place where he now lives." His Christian name was commonly spoken Bostian or Boston, a corruption of Sebastian—the first a being pronounced with the broad sound. After he located his land and built his cabin, he felt the need of a helper, and he made a visit back to Pennsylvania with a view of looking out and bringing back a wife. On his way he met the Hoyle cavalcade coming from Maryland to North Carolina also. Young Miss Katrina Hoyle to him looked quite winsome as she rode up on horseback. He directed them to his house and told them to occupy it till he returned and he would assist them in looking out a desirable place for their home. When he returned the Hoyle family chose the fertile land on the west side of the South Fork of the Catawba River three miles east of Dallas—still known as the Hoyle place. Mr. Best and Catharine Hoyle made terms and were married. He moved his domicile and settled just across the river opposite the Hoyle home. His house is said to have stood on the right of the road going east about half way between the Hoyle bridge and the old house now known as the Oates' Home. Mr. Best and his sons afterward owned large tracts of land extending probably from this place down the river to the mouth of Big Long Creek.

I think Mr. Best lived to be an old man. He is said to be buried with his wife in a private graveyard on his farm near the residence of the late Luther Lineberger, one of his great grandsons. No mark of his grave, nor any tombstone shows his resting place, nor that of his wife. He had thirteen children, to-wit:

- 2 John Best, married ———;

- 2 Jonathan, m. ———;

SECTION 2—JOHN BEST

2 John Best's wife's name was given to me as Katie Slinkard, and his son, John, married Katie Slinkard. I fear a mistake has been made here, and I hesitate to write Katie Slinkard as the wife of John Best, Sr. Jno. Best, Sr., as did the majority of the sons of our pioneer Best, moved to Southeast Missouri, and there are very many Best descendants in all that section. Near Bessville, in Bolinger County, I found a grandson of John Best still living. SECTION 3—THOMAS BEST

2 Thomas Best, son of the pioneer, Boston Best, served for some time as a soldier in the American Army of the Revolutionary War. He was enlisted in Capt. Allen's Co., 2nd N. C. Regt., in 1777, for the war in the American Revolutionary Army. He served faithfully until the 17th of Feb., 1780, when he disappeared and was never afterward heard of. His friends think he was lost or captured and died. He was reported as a deserter on the records.

SECTION 4—JONATHAN BEST

2 Jonathan Best, son of Boston Best, pioneer, at an early date moved from North Carolina to Alabama or Miss. We have scant account of his descendants—some of whom live in Ala., some in Miss. and some in Ark. So far as learned his children were: 3 Eben, m. ———; and lived at Marshaltown, Ala.; Elijah, m. Nancy Gaines and lived in Miss.; Jonathan, m. ———; Bijah, m. Juda Mason, Newport, Ark., and there were some daughters left in Ala. and Miss.

3 I have no account of the descendants of Eben Best except that he had one son named John in Ala.

3 The above is all the information gained of Elijah and Jonathan Best, Jr., and the daughters of Jonathan Best, Sr.

3 Bijah Best had the following children: 4 Wm., m. Elizabeth Petty, Elizabeth Young, ——— Sharpe, and two other wives; Berry O., m. Narcissa Stephens; Joanna, m. Jos. SECTION 5—PETER BEST

2 Peter Best, son of Boston Best, the pioneer, was married to Christina Whittenburg, Oct. 13, 1779. I think she was the sister of John Henry Whittenburg, whose wife, Mary Hoyle, was his mother's sister. She may, however, have been his first cousin, the daughter of said Whittenburg. He was afterward married to three other wives as heretofore stated. He had at least fourteen children who grew up, married and had families, most of whom moved west, principally to Southeast Mo. I am unable to designate the mothers of any of the following children of Peter Best, except, I think, Elizabeth was probably the daughter of his wife, Christina, and perhaps her only child. The known children of Peter Best were:

- 3 Elizabeth, m. Geo. Spencer in 1798;
- 3 Peter, m. ———, and went to Missouri;
- 3 John, m. Mary Summerow and moved to Missouri;

- 3 Margaret (Peggy), m. Adam Rhyne;
- 3 Sallie, m. Peter Hovis, son of Geo. Hovis and her 1st cousin;
- 3 Boston, m. Mary (Polly) Carpenter.

3 Only late in my investigation have I found any account of Elizabeth, daughter of Peter Best, and I have not had time to get further particulars. I think her husband was a brother of John Spencer who married Ann Hoffman, and I think she has descendants about Gastonia and in the southern part of Gaston County, N. C.

SECTION 6—DANIEL BEST

2 Daniel Best, the son of Boston Best, the pioneer, I think lived in the neighborhood of his father and brothers on the east side of the South Fork of the Catawba River not far above the Spencer Mountain Shoals. In 1794 he married Mary Rhodes who was, I think, the daughter of Fredk. Rhodes, the pioneer of that family in this section. They moved west with the great part of the Best and Rhodes families and settled in Southeast Missouri. They had a family of children but I am sorry to have to report that I did not find any of these nor get definite information concerning them.

SECTION 7—CHRISTIAN BEST

2 Christian Best lived on Big Long Creek near what is now known as the White & Jenkins' Mill, where some of his descendants still live. He was married to Elizabeth Hoyle, daughter of Michael Hoyle, and granddaughter of the pioneer, Peter Hoyle, in 1796. I think he died in Tenn. His wife became weak in mind but lived to a good age. She is buried with her fathers in the graveyard on the Michael Hoyle farm on the north side of the creek. This graveyard is now overgrown with large pine trees. Their children were:

3 Michael, m. Fanny Costner, daughter of "Stiff" David Costner; Samuel, b. 1799, m. Mary Rhyne, his 1st cousin, daughter of his mother's sister, Barbara Hoyle, who married Michael Rhyne, and Charlotte Hovis, nee Pasour; Susan, m. Hugh Jenkins and David Friday; Emanuel and Martin both went to Mo.; Anne, m. ——— McClelland and lived in Iredell County, N. C., and I think another daughter married Eli Matheson and lived at Hayesville, Clay Co., N. C.

3 Michael Best moved to East Tennessee and was a prosperous citizen living on his fine farm on the river in Blount or Loudon Co. He had a family of children but in later years the Best family here have lost sight of his descendants. One of his sons was a Methodist preacher.

Cason Perkins; and Sallie, m. Silas Scott.

4 Katie Lineberger-Cox's children: 5 None by 1st husband. Soon after marriage her husband, Ezekiel Lineberger, was at work cutting lumber to build his house. A tree fell on him and killed him. She had two daughters by her second husband: 5 Mattie, m. I. F. Lineberger; and Mary, m. Wm. Rose, Cabarrus Co., N. C.

5 For Mattie Lineberger's children: 6 See I. F. Lineberger, page 238.

5 Mary Rose's children: 6 Cephas D., m. Rosa Miller; Hallie, d. s.; Ben I. and Frank A. 6 Cephas D. Rose has small children.

4 For Rachael Costner's children, see Jacob Costner, page 103.

4 Malissa Davis still lives in Kansas. Her children are: 5 L. H., m. Sarah Lemmons, and have children in East Tenn.; John, m. Carey Staley; Mary, m. W. S. Ramsay; Margt., m. Oscar Herbert; Jennie, m. W. J. McNally; Newton, m. Ethel McIntyre.

5 L. H. Davis' children: 6 Lula, m. John Summitt; Rich, m. ——— Roberts; Robert, Lily and Bertha.

5 John Davis' children: 6 Walter, Amy, Anna and Edward.

5 Mary Ramsay's children: 6 Lily, m. Fred Braugeter and has one son: 7 Harold.

5 Margt. Herbert's children: 6 Lizzie and Robt., both married.

5 Jenny McNally's children: 6 Rand, Frank and Mary.

5 Newton Davis' children: 6 Henry and Dorothy, small.

4 I think Lanira Perkins had no children.

4 Sallie Scott's children: 5 Not learned.

3 Peter Smith, Jr., son of Hannah Best-Smith, lived on the east side of the South Fork River and east of Hoyle's Creek on the farm now known as the Henry Rhyne place, later owned by Mr. Logan Brown. He, too, moved to Southeast Missouri and lived in the neighborhood of Daisy. One daughter, Elizabeth, and a large number of descendants live in and near Oak Ridge. He had the following children: 4 Paul, m. Mary Wills; Nancy, m. Wm. Green; Henry, m. Josie Wills (c); Hannah, m. Mack Mahew, John Lawson and John Hicks; Elizabeth, m. Cameron Smith and Jacob Wills; Susan, m. Lewis Blair.

4 Paul Smith's children: 5 James, m. Frances Roberts (c); Henry, d. s.; and Edward, d. s.

4 Nancy Green's children: 5 Maggie and Lenora, both married and have children.

4 Hanna Mahew-Lawson-Hicks' children: 5 Maggie, m. ——— Clark; Katie, m. ———; Tine, m. David Smith (c); Elizabeth,

m. ———; Roburtus, m. ———; all these by 1st husband; none by Lawson; and by Hicks: Polly, m. ———.

5 Maggie Mahew Clark had one child which died young.

5 Katie Smith had one child: 6 Paul.

5 Elizabeth Mahew ——— had three children and Roburtus Mahew had three daughters: 6 Ruth, etc.

4 Susan Blair's children: Gus, m. ———.

4 Elizabeth Smith-Wills had no children by 1st husband. For children by 2nd husband, see Jacob Wills, page 277.

In conclusion a word as to the spelling of the name. In this country and in Missouri the name is called and spelled Bess. At other places I find the name spelled Best. In the earlier record here the name was Best. I have so written it herein unless from habit I may have accidentally written it Bess. I think that was originally the true name.

2 I have not learned whether Bastian Best, Jr., was married and had children or not nor what became of him.

Since writing the above further investigation and research convinces me that as tradition has it the pioneer Best came to this section earlier than I had supposed. It is true his lands were patented to him in 1754—lands were occupied for years before the patent issued—and in Colonial Records of N. C., Volume 4, page 1039, it is stated that Bastian Best filed petition for patent April 17, 1750. And the same authority, Vol. 22, page 281, shows in "the Spanish Alarm," 1748, Philip Rudisill, Peter Hoyle, Michael Rudiseele, Peter Eaker and others were enrolled as militiamen in Capt. Dry's Company. Mr. Best, as we have seen, preceded Mr. Hoyle, who became his father-in-law. Tradition has it that Peter Hoyle and family crossed the ocean in 1838 and lived in Pennsylvania two years, then near Fredericktown, Md., for seven years and came to N. C. in 1747, while the historical sketch quoted in the introduction to the Hoyle Chapter says he crossed the ocean in 1741, lived in Maryland three years and came to N. C. in 1744. These dates are probably approximately correct.

H O V I S

1 George Hovis (Howis) was the pioneer and founder of the Hovis family in this section of N. C. He also came from Germany through England, and Pennsylvania to N. C. and settled on the west side of the South Fork of the Catawba River in the point or angle formed by said river and Big and Little Long Creeks, on the land and perhaps on the spot where the late Lewis Flowers lived. This land was opposite to the Best land on the east side of the river. The pioneer, Boston Best, was his brother-in-law—their wives being sisters. This land was also adjoining and in the near neighborhood of the pioneer, Peter Hoyle, his father-in-law, and of his wife's brothers, John and Andrew Hoyle. This land was of considerable extent, reaching a good distance up both river and creeks. A part of it was conveyed by Geo. Hovis to his son, Frederick Hovis, who lived there a good many years until he sold it and moved to Lincoln County, Tenn. He conveyed the land to John Hoffman whose wife was Margaret Hovis, his (Fred's) sister and John Hoffman and his said wife were my great grandparents. John Hoffman in turn after several years sold this land to John Hovis, also a son of Geo. Hovis. So that this spot was indeed the cradle of the Hovis family in N. C. I do not know the resting place of these old pioneer Hovises but I think they died at this home and are probably according to the custom of the times, buried in the bosom of their new-found and newly established home.

Lawson Hovis was in Mexican War in 1st Miss. Cavalry, and in the Confederate Army and killed at Gettysburg. I have been able to trace their history no further.

3 Of the descendants of Solomon Hovis and George Hovis, sons of Andrew Hovis, who moved away, I have learned nothing.

3 Daniel Hovis had these children: 4 Sidney, m. Sarah Bynum; Rufus, m. ——— Keener (c); Andrew, m. ——— Skinner (c); Bettie, s.; Nancy, m. ——— Bynum.

4 Sidney Hovis had one son, Wm., and Nancy Bynum had children.

3 Polly Chapel had three children before she married Chapel, to-wit: 4 Rufus, s.; Christian, s.; and Ellen, m. Wm. Martin. These all left and went to Ark. Polly Hovis Chapel lived on the old Hoffman tract of land embracing a very small piece of ground and a cabin put up for her. She later lived on Catawba Creek near the Jameison Robinson place. She died in this country and her children went west. She had one son by Mr. Chapel: 4 Joseph, m. ——— McAlister; Eli Chapel was our neighborhood itinerant shoemaker, a good workman but not an altogether model man. His weakness was an ardent love for intoxicants. But he was extremely talkative and pleasant to us small children. He was a bald-headed Yankee. I never got away from the impression of merriment, his slick hairless head made upon my childish risibility, nor from the genuine admiration for his accomplishments in telling stories of "to the north where I'm raised." He came around every autumn to make up the supply of the family winter shoes and that meant a delightful time for us children for about two weeks while he was staying at our house. He was specially fond of the little, timid, puny boy who hung about him watching his wonderful work and listening to his wonderful stories—and I especially loved him when he insisted on making me a nice pair of Sunday shoes from the hide of a goat nicely tanned.

I think I never felt quite so well satisfied with myself as when I got to wear them to preaching the first time.

3 And Polly's sister, Rosa, married another old friend of my childhood, Ran Carter. While I do not recall ever seeing her or her said sister, their husbands play a large part in the pleasant recollections of my child and boy life. They were neighbors but I do not recall just where they lived. Ran Carter was the champion slow man. He was extremely careful and deliberate in his work and movements. He worked a great deal for my father on the farm. I never quite understood why father who was a mover in his work should employ so slow a man and pay him customary wages. I always thought it was because he was a neighbor and needed the wages. His work was plowing and perhaps the natural gait of a horse accelerated his movements somewhat; but I have often seen him “wo” to roll out a clod that turned back in the furrow. It seemed that old Dandy caught her inspiration from her driver and at a distance one could scarcely see that they were moving. But it must be said of him that there was no dishonesty nor conscious shirking. He stuck at it and his work was nicely done. Furthermore nobody ever got the impression from his noise that old Dandy was running away. He did not swear at his horse nor join in the chorus of “haws,” “gees,” “woos,” sung so vociferously in the neighboring fields and farms. He was an unlettered man—didn’t know a letter when he saw it. But he had a remarkable memory and had acquired the art of spelling a lot of words, mostly strange long words, and quoted much Scripture. At night he taught us boys spelling. Two of his standard words were “Ab-ra-ka-dab-ra” and “baugh-naugh-klaugh-bar—Bonnyclabber. And that was fun for us. In truth I remember none of his faults except that if he thought any one did him wrong—like other men, he was vindictive with his tongue.

3 Rosa Carter’s children were: 4 Joseph, m. ———, in Ga., after Civil War; Isaac, d. s.; Caleb, d. s.; and Mary, m. ———, in Catawba Co., N. C. I haven’t learned further of Rosa Carter’s descendants. Isaac was a Confederate soldier Co. M, 16th N. C. Regt., and gave his life to the Southern cause. He died of disease. Caleb Carter did likewise, dying a prisoner at Big Springs, Va.

4 Joseph Carter also worked on our farm when a young man some years before the war, when I was a small child. I recall him as a pleasant, kind fellow, often playing and pranking with us children. I have a vivid recollection of him on account of a bloody incident that made a deep impression on my mind when a child. One snowy afternoon he came by our house going home from a rabbit hunt. He playfully thrust out to me one of his rabbits to tease me and make me think it was going to bite me. Some of the blood got on my hand and I thinking I was hurt raised the usual disturbance. Joe was sorry and promised me a pup if I’d hush up. In course of time he brought me a little yellow fice pup which I raised and kept for many years—the one and only love of a dog I ever owned or wanted to own. But "Gin" was a faithful little dog and did his best. He couldn't often catch a rabbit but he was persevering in the effort and could keep him going. Cassabianca-like he'd stand to the tree, till we'd get the squirrel, "possum," or coon or give him orders to leave. He was a good doggie and I loved Joe. Later when the terrible Civil War opened Joe Carter and his two brothers enlisted in the first company from Gaston County, Co. M, 16th N. C. Regt., and after escaping in many a bloody battle he alone of the three returned home alive. At the battle of Gettysburg facing almost certain death he rushed back over the famous stonewall and rescued the flag from the hands of the dead standard-bearer. After the war he went to Ga. but after vain search I have found no trace of him or his descendants.

3 Susan Hovis, daughter of Andrew Hovis, had one son, Adolphus, still living near Stanley, a most excellent man, a true and tried Confederate soldier. He married Sarah Rhyne, a great granddaughter of Brick House Thos. Rhyne. For their descendants, see Sarah Rhyne, page 221.

3 Charity Hawkins' children: 4 Albert, m. Martha Capps; Willis, m. Mary Sanders; Joseph, m. Jane Groves; Polly, m. Stanhope Armstrong; Nancy, m. Joseph Armstrong; Margaret, m. John Bond (c); Harriet, m. Charles Rafter.

4 Albert Hawkins' children: 5 Sallie, m. ———; John, s.

4 Willis Hawkins' children: 5 Miles, m. ——— Abernethy; and Jos., m. ——— McAlister.

4 Joseph Hawkins had two children.

4 Polly Armstrong's children: 5 Ann, m. Sid Smith; Lizzie, m. ——— Ewing; Maggie, m. James Hooper; and Samuel.

4 Nancy Armstrong's children: 5 John and Thomas.

4 Children of Margt. Bond and Harriet Rafter not learned.

Chapter 7

HOYLE

SECTION I

I have been extremely fortunate in my investigation of the large and influential Hoyle family, by far the largest of the families whose descendants I have undertaken to chronicle. This, in part, may be accounted for by the fact that our founder of this family was of an earlier generation than the pioneers of many of the other families. My good fortune has consisted in the fact that this family was imbued with enough family pride to make some record of itself and even had a family historian in a small way who preserved the memory of the connection in the fatherland; and that in turn has enabled us to trace back the line of the Hoyle family in Germany to the great grandfather of Adam Hoyle, the remotest known ancestor of our pioneer, Peter Hoyle, so far as the previous history and traditions of the family in this country had revealed. So now we can trace the Hoyle line from Jürgen (George) Heyl, who lived before the year 1600, through four generations back of our pioneer, Peter Hoyle. Like nearly all our German names this too has been corrupted by its transformation into the foreign tongue. It seems our early English speaking and writing officials had a genius for misunderstanding and misspelling our old German names. For some mistakes and changes I can easily account, but I can't account for Heyl becoming Hoyle. In Germany even the name, as will later appear, was spelled several varying ways, but I think it always spelled Hile. In my childhood days my father called the name Heyl, but I remember some of our neighbors said "bile" when boil was meant, and I got the impression that it ought to be Hoyle. Sometimes an ignorant effort to be right gets us wrong. Until I began this investigation I never had a hint that I was related to the Höyles in any way, while in fact, two of the daughters of Peter Hoyle, the pioneer, were my great great grandmothers.

“A RECORD OF THE HOYLE FAMILY, 1837

“Adam Hoyle descended from a respectable family, that had, for several generations, resided in the vicinity of Weisbaden, in the District of Nassau, Germany. He was born Dec. 8, 1678; and married Sept. 4, 1704, Nancy Leister, who was born Aug. 7, 1681, and died Nov. 4, 1754, aged 73 years. Adam died April 8, 1762, aged 84 years, leaving five children: John, born 1706; Nancy, 1708; Peter, 1710; Catharine, 1713; and George, 1717. All of the above children except Peter died in Germany.

“Peter Hoyle, son of Adam and Nancy Hoyle, was born May 14, 1710, and married April 7, 1736, Catharine Dales, who was born on the Rhyne, Nassau, April 10, 1714. They came to America in 1741 and lived in Frederick County, Maryland, but finally settled upon the South Fork of Catawba River, then Lincoln County (Bladen at that time.—L. M. H.), North Carolina, in 1744; from whence a numerous family has descended. Peter died Nov. 1, 1781, aged 71 years, and his wife died April 7, 1787, aged 73 years, leaving eight children, who all lived to an advanced age—their names were Michael, born 1738, John 1740, Andrew, 1743, Elizabeth (Mrs. Hovis), 1745; Catharine (Mrs. Best), 1748; Jacob, 1750; Mary (Mrs. Wittenbaugh), 1752; and Sallie, 1756, who died single.

“John Hoyle, second son of Peter and Catharine Hoyle, was born in Nassau, Germany, June 1, 1740, and married November 17, 1763, Margaret Costner of Mecklenburg County, who was born May 9th, 1745; John died in Lincoln County (now Gaston), N. C., Sept. 4, 1809, and his wife, Catharine, died Nov. 19, 1821, leaving thirteen children, namely:

3 “Peter, born 1765; Mary (Mrs. Warlick), 1767; Margaret (Mrs. Shuford), born 1770; Andrew, 1772; Elizabeth (Mrs. Friday), 1774; John, 1776; Susan (Mrs. Wilfong), 1777; Jacob, 1779; Adam, 1780; David, 1782; Fanny (Mrs. Rinehart), 1783; Solomon, 1785; Sallie (Mrs. Pealer), 1787.

“The above children were all born and grew up at their father's place on the Catawba (Broad River) river in what is now Cleveland County, North Carolina.

“John Hoyle, son of John and Margaret Hoyle, was born May 6, 1776, and married Feb. 8, 1798, Rachael Latimore, eldest daughter of John and Jemima Latimore of Rutherford County, North Carolina, who was born August 19th, 1782. They emigrated to McMinn County, Tennessee, in November, 1822, his wife, Rachael, died Oct. 27, 1827, aged 45 years, leaving eleven children, named below. Mr. Hoyle married a second wife, Mrs. May Smith Love, Feb. 12, 1829, and died May 18, 1857, aged 81 years. He was for fifty years a zealous preacher in the Methodist Episcopal Church. The children of John and Rachel Hoyle are settled in the Southern States and are here named :

4 “Margaret (Mrs. Wells), b. July 23, 1799, m. Thomas Wells. Eight children.

4 “Thos. Lattimore, b. Feb. 20, 1802, m. Hannah Fagan. Nine children.

4 “Jemima, b. May 3, 1804, m. Thos. W. Martin. Nine children.

4 “Levi, b. Aug. 24, 1806, m. Martha Henry. Five children.

4 “John, b. May 8, 1809, m. Lucy Criswell. Eight children.

4 “Sarah, b. Oct. 22, 1811; died Oct. 4, 1809, aged 18 years, 11 mos. No children.

4 “David Lattimore, b. Jan. 2, 1814, m. Catharine Logan. Six children.

4 “Susan, b. May 28, 1816, m. Thos. Jones. Five children.

4 “Daniel Hilliard, b. April 30, 1819, m. Anna Ervine. No children.

4 “Adam Clark, b. Nov. 12, 1821, m. Susan Logan. Five children.

4 “Narcessa, b. Mar. 26, 1824, m. William Mayfield. Four children.”

(When Susan Hoyle married Thos. Jones he was a widower. His first wife was Margaret Hoyle, daughter of Adam Hoyle, the brother of Susan Hoyle Jones' father. Margaret had six sons and one daughter before she died.—L. M. Hoffman, see page 467).

The foregoing, “A Record of the Hoyle Family, 1837,” is a cardboard compilation or short historical sketch of the Hoyle family made by a Mr. Proctor who married into the family of John Hoyle, the son of John, the son of Peter, the pioneer, in East Tennessee, under the direction and supervision of Judge John B. Hoyle of Cleveland, Tenn. In this I have discovered a few inaccuracies which I may a little later point out. This was widely distributed among the scattered Hoyle descendants and it has been of great help as a basis of my inquiries. It has also helped to keep alive among the descendants of the family a disposition to keep in memory the facts in the history of the family.

But before I go further I will here register some history of the family in Germany which being prior in time should perhaps have preceded the American sketch aforesaid. For the valuable and greatly interesting data making up the following sketch of still earlier history of the family extending backward from our pioneer, Peter Hoyle, to his great, great grandfather, George Heyl, a period of over one hundred and twenty-five years, I give grateful credit to Mrs. Elizabeth Hoyle Rucker of Charlotte, N. C., who with her late lamented father, Rev. Maxwell Hoyle, has otherwise helped me much in this work. Mrs. Rucker has made investigation in Germany and for the accuracy of this account she refers to Vol. 13, Genealogical Handbook of Heyl Family, arranged by Dr. Bernhard Koerner of Berlin, and published by C. A. Starke of Görlitz, Germany. It fits into the beginning of the foregoing sketch so nicely that we are compelled to give it credence.

As to time of the coming of the Hoyle family, see conclusion of Best family.

HEYL (HOYLE) OF SPANDAU IN BRANDENBURG

Up till now the oldest authentically accounted for ancestor of the successive generations of the Heyl family is Jürgen (Georg) Heyl (Heil), who was married in 1597 in the church of St. Nicholas at Spandau. Apparently the venerable Peter Heil was his brother. Peter was married at Spandau second Sunday after Trinity in 1581, to Anna Leus. He is the ancestor of the present Heil family in lower Germany.

A plague raged at Spandau from 1611 to 1613. In consequence the records of the churches are at this time extremely incomplete—they often containing not even the given name of the deceased. Many families escaped and wandered away. After 1614 there is no longer any record of the Heyl family at Spandau.

Michael Heyl, a son of Jürgen Heyl, on leaving Spandau wandered to Seehausen on the coast and was married there June 25, 1623, to Catharine Winkler. By this marriage he had six children. After her death, 1633, he married Gertrude Krusemark in 1635. On Feb. 7, 1638, he married the third time Claus Runge, of Wilsnack, and in the latter part of this same year he died, and his widow took his six children by his 1st wife, Catharine Winkler, and went back to Wilsnack; for two years prior to this time, after the battle of Wiltstock, the Swedes had plundered Seehausen and destroyed everything combustible.

I. Jürgen I Heyl (Heil, Heill), was married in St. Nikolai Church, Spandau, Sept. 21, 1597, to Gertraut Buschler.

Children born at Spandau:

1 Michael I, 1600 (?); 2 Catrina, June 13, 1606; Dorithea, Feb. 19, 1609; Jürgen II, Aug. 13, 1611, and died Aug. 21, 1611.

II. Michael I Heil of Spandau, later of Seehausen, on June 25, 1623, at Seehausen, married Catharine Winkler, daughter of Martin Winkler of Seehausen. In 1635 he was married to Gertraud Krusemark, also of Seehausen. Again he married Feb. 7, 1638, Claus Runge of Wilsnack. By his first marriage with Catharine Winkler he had six children born at Seehausen: Gertraud, b. May 2, 1624; Maria, b. Feb. 3, 1626; Michael II, b. April 4, 1628; Hans I, b. Jan. 13, 1630; Petreus, b. Aug. 6, 1632; Jürgen III, b. Dec. 26, 1634.

III. Jürgen III Heyl was born at Seehausen. On Aug. 16, 1657, at Wilsnack he was married to Elsabe (Elschen) Grote, who was born Aug. 10, 1637, daughter of Heine Grote. He had four children born at Wilsnack; Sohn, 1662; Johnnes (Hans) II, March 1, 1670; Magdalene I, b. Feb. 25, 1672; Adam, b. May 1, 1678.

IVa. Johannes (Hans) II Heyl, son of Jürgen (George Heyl), died June 17, 1701. On Oct. 23, 1694, he married Maria Leibfeld, daughter of Nicholas Leibfeld. He is the parent stem of the Berlin line—from his grandfather down they spell the name Heyl.

IVb. Adam Heyl, son of Jürgen Heyl III, and younger brother of Johannes, married Sept. 4, 1704, Nancy Leister, of Weisbaden, Province of Hessen Nassau. Adam died April 8, 1762. His wife was born Aug. 7, 1681, and died Nov. 4, 1754. To them were born five children: Johannes III, b. 1706; Nancy, b.

May 14, 1708; Peter, b. 1710; Catharine, b. 1713; Jürgen IV, b. 1717. Our American sketch above begins with this Adam Heyl.

I have not learned the source of the authority for all the facts in the foregoing "Record of the Hoyle Family," and with further facts in my possession, I find it difficult to reconcile some of the details and dates with those facts. On the tombstone of Michael Hoyle, supposed by this "Record" to be the oldest child, according to the inscription he died March 12, 1792, aged 62 years. The records of Lincoln County, N. C., show the will to have been made March 2, 1793, and it was probated at April Sessions, 1793. So he must have died on March 12, 1793. The engraving is a botch job, the 62 might have been a mistake for 52 but that conflicts with the statement of the birth of his brother, John. I think it probable that Peter Hoyle and Catharine Dales were married earlier than 1736. If the printer should have made a not uncommon mistake and printed the figure 6 for 0 then Michael Hoyle might have been born in 1731 which would have made his age 62 years. But then I am still confronted with the fact conclusively clear to my mind that Michael Hoyle was not the oldest son but that Jacob was the first born instead of the youngest son, and born in 1750, as stated in this "Record." I haven't learned when and where Jacob Hoyle died nor where buried. I think it was somewhere in what is now Gaston County and about 1764, another reason why he could not have been born as late as 1750. After his death his widow married Jacob Costner and had three other children, besides three she bore to Jacob Hoyle. Her three Costner children were born in 1765, 1767 and 1769. Jacob Costner and his wife were drowned (according to Mr. A. Nixon in 1777) and I think there are records in his office dividing Mr. Costner's land tending to prove that. Their tombstones say they died in 1779. One of Jacob Hoyle's children, Hanna, married Geo. Pasour. They are buried in Philadelphia graveyard. The inscription on her tombstone is: "Hanna Pasour died Jan. 12, 1844, aged 80 years." If this is correct she was born in 1764. Once more Jacob Hoyle's son, Martin Hoyle, in 1779, 6th Oct. made three deeds—one to each of his uncles, Michael, John and Andrew by which for a consideration he conveyed to each of them a certain portion of land which deeds were accepted by his said uncles with the recitation of title under the old English law of primogeniture which recitation of title was in each case: "Part of a tract entered by Peter Hoyle, May 17, 1754, and said Peter dying intestate, said land fell to his oldest son, Jacob Hoyle, and he dying intestate likewise, said land fell to said Martin, his only son who transfers to John Hoyle," etc. See Record of Deeds, Book 2, page 525, of Lincoln Co., N. C. These deeds also show that Peter Hoyle died prior to 1781, and that Martin Hoyle was born as early as 1758. Pennsylvania Archives, 2nd series, Vol. 16, page 159, contains the name, Peter Heyl, under list of foreigners imported in the ship Robt. and Alice of Dublin, Walter Goodman, commander, from Rotterdam, qualified Sept. 11, 1738. He lived in Penn. two years, then near Frederick City, Md., 7 years, and came to N. C., 1747. I find no land entered by him till 1754. We do find, however, from the Historical Records, in Philadelphia that Peter Heyl qualified in America Sept. 11, 1738, and signed himself as above.

REV. ROBERT M. HOYLE

Son of John and Mary Hoyle, born February 26, 1850; married Rebecca Wilson of Cleveland County, N. C., January 23, 1873; entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church South in May, 1873. Has served missions and circuits eleven years, stations nine years and districts sixteen years.

I also find from the N. C. Colonial Records, Vol. 22, page 281, that in 1748 in a list of men in the Spanish Alarm under command of Capt. Sam'l Cobrin, were among others, the names of Philip Rudisill, Corporal; Fredk. Hambright, Peter Hoyle, Michael Rudisill, Boston Best and Peter Eaker; and in separate list of young men belonging to the organization was the name of Jacob Hoyle—and this makes me think more than ever that Peter Hoyle was married earlier than 1736. Maybe the six in that date should be o. If Jacob Hoyle was even 16 years old in 1748 he was born in 1732.

Peter Hoyle, then with the assistance of Boston Best, the young (and disinterested?) pioneer of that family (to be), who preceded Mr. Hoyle to this section (see Best, Chap. 5, page 1) made selection and located his home in the wilderness at what is still known as the Hoyle place on the west bank of the South Fork of the Catawba River, a little less than three miles from the present site of the town of Dallas. I do not think the old home nest of the Hoyles has ever been without an occupant of Hoyle descent. He entered large tracts of land and so did his sons and sons-in-law around him. Mr. T. A. Setzer, a great, great, great grandson of Peter Hoyle, now owns and occupies the home. I don't know where our old father and mother Hoyle are buried. There are later graves on the place but no indications perceptible at this time of the graves of these worthy pioneers.

SECTION 2—JACOB HOYLE

The numerous descendants of Peter Hoyle 1st are scattered all through the Southern States, Missouri, California and the Northwestern States, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. There is indeed a host of them and if I could gather the names of all of them we should think him a veritable Abraham. His children were:

- 2 Jacob, married Elizabeth Brooks, probably not German;
- 2 Michael, m. Margaret Dellinger, a sister of Henry Dellinger;
- 2 John, m. Margaret Costner, the daughter of Adam Costner, pioneer;

- 2 Andrew, m. ———; wife's name not learned;
- 2 Elizabeth, m. George Hovis, the pioneer Hovis;
- 2 Catharine, m. Sebastian (Boston) Best, the pioneer Best;
- 2 Mary, m. Jno. Henry Whittenburg;
- 2 Sallie died single, grown up to womanhood.

2 Jacob Hoyle died young, leaving his wife with three small children. His wife later married Jacob Costner and her first born Costner child, Jacob, Jr., was born Jan. 15, 1765. So that he must have died some years, probably before that time. His children were:

3 Martin, m. Margaret Shrum (Schramm), daughter of Nicholas Shrum, the pioneer here of that family.

3 Hannah Hoyle, daughter of Jacob Hoyle, married George Pasour, Jr., son of George Pasour (Bäshor), Sr., the pioneer of that family. These were prominent and leading citizens of that day in what is now Gaston County, N. C., and members of Philadelphia Lutheran Church. He was an officer in the church and he and his wife, Hanna, and wife's sister, Ann, are buried together in that graveyard. His tombstone is inscribed: "George Pasour. Died Nov. 20, 1851, aged 87 years." His wife's: "Hanna Pasour, died Jan. 12, 1844, aged 80 years"; and "Ann Hoyle died, 1775." George and Hannah Pasour lived on the eastern slope of the hills known as Pasour Mountain, and that neighborhood is still mainly owned and possessed by the worthy descendants of this old father and mother. George Pasour, Jr., was the only son of George Pasour, Sr., the Pasour pioneer here who remained in this country—the other brothers moving to Virginia and westward. So it happens that Hanna Hoyle and George Pasour 2nd became the founders of all the large Pasour family in and near this section of the country. The name on the church records was spelled “Bäshore,” but as it seems difficult to distinguish the German’s pronunciation of b and p, the name later was and is still spelled with a P. The elder George Pasour is buried on the left hand side of the Cherryville road as one goes from Dallas, a short distance from the road and from what we call the gap of Pasour Mountain on the first slight knoll after crossing the mountain. The grave is in the thicket of woods and is marked by only two small mountain stones set up and discoverable only by close search. An early church stood here and was burned down and never rebuilt.

The only other children (learned of) of George Pasour, Sr., were: Dan’l; and one son died of smallpox in the Revolutionary War, name not learned. Another son, John, moved to Virginia. A daughter, Joanna, m. ——— Watt, and moved to Virginia. One daughter was named Charlotte and another was Katie who married ——— Ingle and remained here. And his son, George, Jr., remained here. It was for years the custom of George, Jr., to visit annually the families of his brother, John, and sister, Joanna, on New River in Virginia. Katie Ingle is said to be the ancestor of the Ingle family living in this section. Some of her children were: David, m. ———; and has descendants about High Shoals; Elizabeth, m. Jno. Shell; Ephraim, m. in Davidson Co., N. C.; Levi, m. Adelaide Clemmer; Sarah, m. Dan’l Reep (c); Katie, d. s.; and probably others.

3 I have found no account of Ann Hoyle, daughter of Jacob Hoyle. She died single and is buried by the side of George and Hannah Pasour in graveyard of Philadelphia Church. The inscription on her tombstone is simply "Ann Hoile. Died Oct., 1775." The grave is that of a grown person in length.

SECTION 3—MICHAEL HOYLE

2 Michael Hoyle, son of Peter Hoyle, the pioneer of this family, according to the sketch of the family copied in the beginning of this Chapter was born in the year 1738. He married Margaret Dellinger, sister of Henry Dellinger, an account of whom is given in Chapter 4—Rudisill. He lived on Big Long Creek on a farm, part of which he purchased from Zachariah Routh, Nov. 25, 1769, but he had lived on other land adjoining this tract prior to this purchase. This homestead was situated about three-quarters of a mile northwest of what is now known as the White & Jenkins Mill, three miles west of Dallas. He died after rearing a large family, and after an honorable useful life, on the 12th day of March, 1793. He is buried on his old homestead and many years later his widow was buried by his side. A single large marble slab for both of them is bunglingly inscribed: "In memory of Michael Hoyle. Died March 12, 1792, aged 62 years." "Also Margaret Hoyle died May 25, 1827, aged 82 years. Children, dear, as you pass by, Pray on these lines do cast an eye. As you were young, so once were we; Prepare for death and eternity." If these figures are correct he was born in 1830, but I feel sure they are erroneous. See beginning of this Chapter. Margaret Hoyle, widow of Michael Hoyle, survived him thirty-four or thirty-five years, and was only 82 years old which seems to show that she was 14 or 15 years younger than he. I take this as a little indication that the reckoning of Mr. Hoyle's age should have been probably 52 years instead of 62. She, too, left a will which is interesting in several respects and especially as bearing on the mooted question as to whether or not Jacob Rhyne, her grandson, had two wives and two sets of children. The following is a copy of her will:

"I, Margaret Hoyle, of the State of North Carolina and County of Lincoln, being weak of body but of sound and perfect mind and memory (Blessed be God) and taking into consideration the certainty of death do this 13th day of June in the year of our Lord, 1823, make and publish this my last will and testament following (viz.): First I recommend my soul into the hands of the Almighty who gave it, and my body to be decently buried and all my just debts to be paid.

"2nd. I give and bequeath unto my beloved grandson, Michael Rhyne, fifty dollars, and also to the five children of my grandson, Jacob Rhyne, which were born in wedlock with his wife, Catharine, fifty dollars—that is ten dollars each to be paid to them by my executor of the first money collected after my just debts are paid.

"3rd. It is then my will that the remainder of my estate which I have not otherwise disposed of both real and personal shall be equally divided between my following nine children (viz.): Peter, Barbara, Mary, Susanna, Elizabeth, Catharine, John, Margaret, and Ann, to be either sold by my executor or laid off in nine lots whichever way a majority of my said nine children or a majority of the surviving ones may choose or direct. And I do hereby appoint my worthy friend and nephew, Andrew Hoyle, executor of this my last will and testament and I hereby revoke all former wills. In testimony whereof I, the said Margaret Hoyle, have hereunto set my hand and seal this 13th day of June, in the year of our Lord, 1823, in the presence of us who were present at the signing of the same.

MARGARET (her —X— mark) HOYLE

Andrew Hoyle

Margaret (her —X— mark) Huffstetler

Andrew Hoyle, Exr. (sworn)."

These nine children mentioned in the will, and Hanna, a daughter, who had married Philip Rhyne, who died in 1803, and who was the mother of Michael and Jacob Rhyne, spoken of in the will as grandsons of Margaret Hoyle, the testatrix, and who (Hanna) had married Jacob Stroup and herself had died in 1820, were all the children of Michael Hoyle with the possible exception of Alex Hoyle. Alex Hoyle moved from this section and purchased land from Geo. Wiggington and wife, Elizabeth, in 12th Geo. the Third, lying on both sides of little Broad River below Black's land. I think he was not son of Michael Hoyle but of Andrew, Michael's brother. Then these, I think, were all the children of Michael Hoyle:

3 Peter (politician), m. Elizabeth Carpenter;

3 Hannah, m. Philip Rhyne, son of Jacob Rhyne, pioneer, and Jacob Stroup;

3 Barbara, m. Michael Rhyne, Philip's brother;

3 Susanna, m. Jacob Rudisill, son of Michael Rudisill, pioneer;

3 Mary, m. John Beam, son of John T. Beam, pioneer;

3 Elizabeth, m. Christian Best, son of Boston Best, pioneer;

3 Catharine, m. George Huffstetler;

3 John, m. Anne Mendenhall and Dolly Wells;

3 Margaret, m. Jacob Reinhardt, 1804;

3 Ann, m. Robert Mendenhall, 1804.

3 Peter Hoyle moved from Gaston County to Lincoln Co., then both Lincoln, and settled about five miles northwest of Lincolnton, near Daniels Lutheran and Reformed Churches. He was a man of considerable ability and had much more self-assertion than was usual in the early days among the German population. He represented Lincoln County in the House of Commons continuously from 1802 to 1817, with the exception of the years 1809 and 1814, and he was State Senator in 1819. He was known as "Politician" Peter Hoyle. His children were: 4 Margaret, m. Daniel Reinhardt, and Michael, named for their grandparents; Jacob, m. ———, in Ga.; Anna, Elizabeth; John, m. Katie Reynolds; Fanny, m. Rev. Ambrose Henkel; Catharine, m. Rev. David Henkel; Mary, d. s. (insane); David, m. ——— Hoke and Elizabeth Carpenter; Sallie, m. ——— Hooper.

4 Margaret Reinhardt's children, not learned. Nor have I learned whether or not Michael Hoyle, Anna Hoyle, Elizabeth Hoyle, had families or not.

4 Jacob Hoyle had a family in Georgia but I have not learned his whereabouts nor his family names.

4 John Hoyle, son of Peter Hoyle 2nd, had some children but I have failed to collect names.

I have had much difficulty in trying to get the Peter Hoyle family arranged. Even the descendants I have found have not as a general rule been able to give me anything but fragmentary information.

4 Fanny Hoyle, daughter of Peter Hoyle, married Rev. Ambrose Henkel, a brother of Rev. David Henkel, who married Catharine Hoyle, sister of Fanny or Veronica Hoyle. The Henkel family was famous for its great number of Lutheran ministers. Their father was Rev. Paul Henkel and he in turn was the son of Jacob Henkel, the son of Justus Henkel, the son of Rev. Gerhardt Henkel who was German Court preacher. Rev. Gerhardt Henkel was a descendant of Count Henkel of Poeltzig, who was instrumental in sending the great Muhlenburg to America. Count Henkel was a descendant of Johann Henkel, D. D., LL. D., born in Leutschau, Hungary, and was Father Confessor of Queen Maria about 1530. Rev. Gerhardt Henkel came to America about 1718 and lived near Philadelphia, Pa. Rev. Paul Henkel was born in Rowan Co., N. C., Dec. 15, 1754. Rev. David Henkel was born May 4, 1795, and died a young man June 15, 1831. His brother, Rev. Ambrose Henkel was born in Shenandoah Co., Va., on the 11th day of July, 1786, and died Jan. 6, 1870. He was married three times, to Cath. Hoke, daughter of Fredk. Hoke of Lincoln Co., N. C.; to Mary Kite and to Fanny Heyle (Hoyle). He left six children, but I think he had none by Fanny Hoyle. The Henkels were men of much ability and influence and wrote and translated many religious books.

4 The children of Catharine Henkel, daughter of Peter Hoyle 2nd, and wife of David Henkel, were: 5 Susan, m. Philip Benick; Elizabeth, m. Henry Ingold; Polycarp C., m. Rebecca Fox; Socrates, m. Elenora Henkel of Newmarket, Va.; Cicero, m. Elenora Little; Flora, m. Laban Fox; and Elenora, m. Peter Little.

5 Susan Benick's children: 6 Augustus, m. Sarah Cansler; David, m. Polly Sigman; George, m. ——— Pintough; Henry, m. ——— Pintough; Ann, m. Andrew Holler; Socrates, m. Catharine Bowman; Flora, m. Albert Brady. These have numerous descendants, not learned.

5 Elizabeth Ingold's children: 6 Harriet, d. s.; Luther, m. Susan White; Belzora, m. Sylvanus Fry, Dan'l Eckard and Henry Reitzel; Alright, Polycarp, David, Annetie, Isabella and Rebecca; and perhaps others. I have not learned descendants of these except that Belzora had children named Fanny, Mary, Oma, David, Laura, Lula, Bessie, and four died single.

5 Polycarp C. Henkel was an eminent Lutheran minister of strong clear mind and will and of great influence. He lived and died in Catawba Co., N. C. His influence was especially felt in the councils of the Tennessee Synod of his church. His children were: 5 Leanna Catharine married Rev. Daniel E. Fox, another Lutheran minister. To them was born one son: 6 Solon Hezelius, who died young. Leanna C. Fox's husband having died, she married Marcus Young to whom was born another son, David Henkel, who also died young. Mr. Young also died and his widow married Polycarp C. Lail. Mrs. Lail and her husband are still living at Conover, N. C. They have no children. Rev. Polycarp C. Henkel had also two sons, the younger died in early boyhood. The other, David Socrates, married Rebecca Henkel of Newmarket, Va. Their children are: 6 Sallie, Alice, Beatrice, Tilden, Roscoe, Geo., Clinton, Laura and Charles.

5 Rev. Socrates Henkel, son of Catharine and David Henkel, was also a prominent Lutheran minister of the Tennessee Synod and by reason of his ability as a writer and his firm conservative position and tendency, he was an important factor in his church. His influence for good will long survive him. He was for long years the editor and publisher of "The Church Paper." He also translated and published in the English language the "Book of Concord," and issued much other valuable Lutheran literature.

He lived to a ripe age and died in the harness loved and respected by all. "His works do follow him." His children were: 5 Ambrose, Elon and Otto, and one daughter died young. The living sons are prominent useful citizens of Newmarket, Va. Only Otto, the youngest, is married, but I failed to get names of his wife and children.

5 Cicero Henkel's children: 6 David, m. Miss ——— Jones; Candace, s.; Lafayette, m. Annie Yount, daughter of Dr. Peter Yount; Solon, m. Emma Icenhour; two daughters died young; Thos., m. ——— Tigue; Laura, m. ——— Price; Vance, m. Lila Dunavan; Dora Belle, m. Ernest Hoey; Attula, m. Henkel had two sons: 7 One died young; the other, Glenn, living. 6 Laura Price died leaving five children: 7 Dezza, Glenn, Clyde and two others. 6 Vance Henkel's children: 7 Virginia, Lela and Vance (girl). 6 Dora Belle Hoey had some small children.

5 Flora Fox's children: 6 David P., m. Linnie Herman; Calvin, m. Cynthia Whitener; Valentine, m. Katie Bolinger; Geo., m. Miss Emily Hovis, in Mo.; three sons died young; Catharine R.; Margaret, m. Sarah Peterson may have been daughter of David's brother, John, especially does it so seem since David had another daughter, Sallie, which is usually a nic-name for Sarah.

3 Mary Hoyle, daughter of Michael Hoyle, married John Beam, son of the pioneer of that family, John T. Beam. They lived in the Beaver Dam section of Lincoln, now Gaston County. He was a prominent, forceful and worthy man and good citizen of that section. He died before reaching old age and is buried in (now woods) the graveyard where the first Beaver Dam Lutheran Church stood in Gaston Co., N. C., and his tombstone bears this inscription: "In memory of John Beam, who died Oct. 24th, 1822, aged 52 years."

"O yea whose cheeks the tears of pity stain,
Draw near with reverence and attend;
Here lies the husband's dear remains,
The tender father and the generous friend."

Twenty-five years later his wife was buried by his side. Her tombstone is inscribed: "In memory of Mary Beam, who died Jan. 17, 1847, in the 78th year of her age." This couple had ten children which have increased into a multitude of worthy people. Their children were:

SECTION 4—JOHN HOYLE

2 John Hoyle's wife was Margaret Costner, daughter of Adam Costner, the pioneer of that name in this section. See Margaret Costner, Chapter 3, Sections 1 and 6. According to the usual arrangement this section should have been expanded as said Section 6 and that of Mary Rudisill, the sister of Margt. Hoyle, belonged in the Costner record, Section 7, but I have without special design written them in the families of their husbands. I think he (John Hoyle) lived after his father's death at the old Hoyle homestead, but it is said he later lived and died in Rutherford County, N. C., on Broad River, near Brittain Church. I was informed that he and his wife are buried at said Church graveyard. A letter from the pastor of said church informs me that he can find no marked grave of this worthy couple nor does he find any one in that neighborhood who has memory or tradition of them there. He was a prominent citizen and in Colonial Record he is frequently mentioned as a juror and in Vol. 22, Colonial Record, page 429, in March, 1771, is a pay-roll of a small expedition against the Cherokee Indians, the officers of which were Fredk. Hambright, Captain; John Hoyle, Lieut.; James Cozart and Andrew Hoyle, Sergeants; others belonging to the company were Peter Cosner, Jacob Rodes, Conrad Kinder, James Wyatt, Jacob Vanzandt, Andrew Goforth, Richard Gullet, James French and Dan'l McCarty, all names familiar in the first settlement of what is now Gaston County. This pay roll was sworn to by Capt. Hambright before Jacob Costner, the brother of John Hoyle's wife and the husband of Jacob Hoyle's widow, nee Elizabeth Brooks.

He died on his way home, in Washington City, November 7, 1883. Amelia Reinhardt had three sons and one daughter living. I can get no response to letters to this family giving further information. While I was living in Arkansas I became acquainted with Mr. Reinhardt. I admired him as a fine old gentleman and citizen—but not dreaming of finding in him a relative. I didn't learn much of his family. I regret I can't give full list of all these Arkansas cousins.

Shuford was for many years Treas. of Jackson County. He has two daughters and one son living in Newport. One Mrs. Lafayette Robinson and one the wife of Mr. Hare, a Methodist minister. We practiced in the same courts. He was a good lawyer, and the soul of honor. His partner was Col. A. C. Pickett, but I didn't think of Col. Ramsaur being my cousin.) He had two children but I do not recall their names.

5 Susan Pugh died at Hamburg, Ark., in 1891. Her children were: 6 Robert, Minnie, Ella, Green, Thos. and Willie.

5 James Ramsaur was born Aug. 5, 1832. He belonged to the 17th Miss. Regiment, was wounded nine times in battle and died from his wounds at Augusta, Ark., in 1867. I have no account of children.

5 Julius H. Shuford, son of Jacob Shuford, and grandson of Margaret Hoyle Shuford, has never married. In youth he consecrated his life to the love and service of his church—the Reformed. To this service he has been devoted as an earnest minister of the gospel. He was educated at Catawba College and Ursinus College in Penn., where he graduated in 1874 and in that summer he was licensed to preach by the Classis of N. C. at Newton, N. C. He had in succession charges: Grace Church, Hickory, N. C.; Bethel and Daniels, till 1876; then Mt. Zion and Gillead in Rowan Co., N. C., till 1878; then back to Grace, etc., till 1880; then Attamont, Ill., till 1884; then Astoria, Ill., till 1887; Upper Davidson, N. C., one year; then Middlebrook, Va., till 1899. He has been President of his Classis, and has served in other positions of honor.

In the midst of his labors he has not forgotten his ancestors nor the numerous generations of his relatives. He has found time by tedious research (how tedious and difficult only one like him or myself having tried can appreciate) to uncover and arrange the relationship of the large Shuford family. He has compiled an interesting and valuable book entitled, "A Historical Sketch of the Shuford Family." And to me trying to trace down from the first ancestor in N. C. of the Hoyle family and other kindred families from which I also sprung, it has been a genuine relief and cause of thankfulness to him to find already collected so much of the Hoyle family from the Shuford side. Practically all this information of Margaret Hoyle's descendants has been taken from Mr. Shuford's book. For the sake of a compulsory brevity I have had to contract his text and leave out much interesting information. Also I have rearranged his article to make it conform to the form of statement I had begun in my work. Having mangled his text I could not use quotation marks for credit, but I cheerfully and gratefully acknowledge my obligation to him for the whole of this history of Margaret Hoyle and husband, Jacob Shuford. Rev. Mr. Shuford lives at Hickory, N. C. Long may his life be spared for the Master's work.

Eli Ramsaur was in the Confederate Army. He was wounded and captured at the battle of Winchester where he fought with Gen. Earley.

4 Elkanah Shuford, son of Margaret Hoyle Shuford, soon after his marriage moved to Lowndes Co., Ala. When only fifteen years old Julius, the son of Elkanah Shuford, volunteered in the Confederate Army under Gen. John B. Gordon. He was a brave soldier and was killed in the battle of Malvern Hill. Elkanah Shuford's wife also died in Ala. Many years after the death of his wife he married Harriet Emerson. They had no children. She also died and Elkanah Shuford again married; this time Kate McKay. He then moved to Ackworth, Ga. Two children were born to these, to-wit: 6 Magnolia, m. E. L. Shuford; and Elkanah R. Mr. Shuford also raised and educated at West Point, Eli D. Hoyle, a near relative.

4 Susan Shuford Reinhardt, youngest child of Margaret Hoyle Shuford, with her husband, Lawson Reinhardt, moved to Texas and lived and died at Quitman. She died Aug. 6, 1861. Her children were Alexander S., a Confederate soldier and killed at Gettysburg July 2, 1863, single; Romulus S., also a Confederate soldier, and died single in army, 1862; Michael, m. Nancy Ursinger; Mary E., d. s.; Susan M., d. s.; Amelia H., m. F. M. Dyer who died in 1888. Mrs. Dyer had seven children at Quitman.

3 Andrew Hoyle, fourth child of John Hoyle, and wife, Margaret Costner, lived on the old homestead of the parent Hoyle, about three miles from Dallas, N. C. He was a man of great force of character, shrewdness and business ability. The great man of the Hoyle family, the beacon light which they all knew and look up to. His prominence has been a great help to me as all the family who remained here seemed to know of him and his relation to themselves. In his day he had great influence and great wealth for that day. It would perhaps be no mistake if I should say that his was the largest individual estate ever administered on and settled in the Probate Court of Gaston County. As I recall the record showed an estate of over $200,000.00 not including negroes of whom he had quite a number nor his land of which he owned much. The distinguished Judge Wm. P. Bynum and his grandson, Thomas Grier, were his executors.

I think originally the Hoyles were German Reformed, though most of their German friends and neighbors in this vicinity were Lutheran. Andrew Hoyle became a Presbyterian and built the Presbyterian (the first) Church in Dallas. He was not an educated man as far as books and schools are concerned, but he had the practical kind of education that a strong, retentive and interested mind acquires from wide business experience and contact with his fellow men. He succeeded extremely well and it is not recorded that he was overreached in his dealings with his fellows, unless I record here a small incident, the story of which was current when I was a child and which was a source of merriment to the children. Among Mr. Hoyle's slaves, to whom he was kind, the leading man was Bias who rather prided himself in his own smartness (to acquire turkeys by night). For some breach of duty Mr. Hoyle undertook to punish Bias, and instead of lashing him, he hitched him to a sled and went driving. The story goes that the horse pranced along until he was passing a deep gulley going down the hill where he shied and ran away and turned his driver into the gully. It is also told of Mr. Hoyle that in reply to an inquisitive neighbor's question what per cent. he made on his goods which he hauled in wagons from Philadelphia, he answered: "I do not know much about per cent., but I do know that when I buy for one dollar and sell for two I am making one per cent. Mrs. Hoyle was reputed an industrious, frugal woman and a great manager of the house and home. They both lived to a good old age. He survived her several years and in his old age he married a second time, Matilda McCrum. He had no children by this wife. Mr. Hoyle and his first wife are buried in the private graveyard on the home place. Their tombstones are inscribed: "Catharine Hoyle died June 15, 1850, aged 76 years, 3 months and 20 days." "Andrew Hoyle, born Jan. 13, 1771, died Feb. 19, 1857. The memory of the just is blessed." The children of this worthy couple were:

4 Mary Magdalene, b. Sept. 20, 1795, m. Jacob Fullenwider March 18, 1813, and Wm. Roberts;

4 Jacob Fullenwider, husband of Mary M. Hoyle, was a merchant of Shelby, N. C., a prominent citizen, the son of John Fullenwider, who was one of the pioneer ironmakers and I think cotton spinner in this section. He established his forge and factory at High Shoals in Gaston, then Lincoln County, on the site on which now stands the High Shoals Cotton Factory. The large, massive granite tomb of the elder Fullenwider stands near the Methodist Church at that place. The children of said Mary M. Fullenwider are: 5 Elizabeth, b. 1815, m. Dr. W. J. T. 4 Eli Hoyle lived on a portion of the old Hoyle home very near his father's residence. 4 Margaret Maria Tomkies and her husband, John Francis Tomkies moved west and settled, lived and died at Kingston, De Soto Parish, La. She was born at the ancestral home of the Hoyles near Dallas, N. C., Jan. 1, 1806, and died March 24, 1865. Her husband of Gloucester Co., Va., was born in 1795 and died Jan. 18, 1871. Illustrating some of the clues and methods I have had to follow in this research: I had reported that this daughter of Andrew Hoyle had married Mr. Tomkies but I had no trace further of them. I was attracted by a picture of a "bunch" of good looking ladies in the "Woman's Nat'l Daily," the officers of the Woman's National Rivers and Harbors Congress, and its President's name was Mrs. Hoyle Tomkies, of Shreveport, La. I guessed from the Hoyle in the name she was connected with our Hoyles and notwithstanding the audacity of the proceeding, I wrote to her and so secured the information here given of the Tomkies family.

4 Mrs. Margaret M. Tomkies had children as follows: 5 Helen M., b. 1827, m. James A. Lusk, died Oct. 16, 1872; Laban L., b. Jan. 13, 1829, m. Ella V. 3 John Hoyle, son of John Hoyle and Margaret Costner, his wife, married Rachael Lattimore of Rutherford Co., N. C., and moved to East Tennessee where he raised a large family of children. Later in life he married May S. Love. He had no children by 2nd wife. For his partial history and the names of his children see introduction to this Chapter, page 397. I visited in East Tennessee in search of information concerning the large family of descendants of John Hoyle, thinking that going to the location of the family historian, I would find them better acquainted with one another than we were here. I found, however that they had lost each other as badly as we had done here. I got much information, however, but it makes a rather meagre history of the family and a great deal of this was obtained by after correspondence. I found them saying of each other, "they were no kin to us."

4 Margaret Wells' children in part were: 5 Levi, Hilliard; Thos., d. s., in Atlanta; Susan, m. Abram Dunn; Mary, m. Ewing W. Carlock, a grandson of 3 David Hoyle, brother to 3 John.

5 John B. Hoyle was a lawyer of fine ability, and was Circuit Judge in the District in which he lived, Cleveland, Tenn., and as judge was noted for his fairness and justness. He was an influential citizen and everybody's friend. He is dead but still the idol of his people. His last wife survives him. He had six children born—four by his first wife, all died in infancy, and two by his last wife, one died in infancy—and Jno. B., Jr., a young man, single, who lives with his mother in their nice home in Cleveland.

5 Levi Hoyle left descendants at Dawson, Ga., where he lived and died. His children were: 6 Jno., d. at 3 years of age; Lee C., m. Bessie Peddy; James B., m. Eloise Cocke; Thos. C., m. Ruby Dews; Walter H., m. Maude Livingston; and Mary Lou,

3 Adam Hoyle, son of John and Margaret Hoyle, was born in 1780. He lived, I think, in N. C. until after his second marriage. He was considered a wealthy man and owned slaves, land and other property. He then moved to Georgia and settled in or near Decatur. He died there and I was told by an old resident of that town that he was buried in the cemetery of that town. I had no guide but diligent search made by me failed to reveal his resting place. Adam Hoyle's children: 4 Geo., m. ——— Erwin; Mary, m. ——— Dobbs; Margaret, m. Thos. SECTION 5—ANDREW HOYLE

2 Of Andrew Hoyle, the son of our pioneer, Peter Hoyle, I regret that I have been unable to develop any connected and complete history. I have found the friends here utterly unable to give me any account of him and his family or any tradition satisfactory concerning him or his family. I have followed all the hints and clues coming to my notice during the past eight or ten years but without learning enough facts to make a connected history of him and his descendants. I have unraveled many cases—apparently more hopeless than his but I acknowledge failure in this instance. Our Tennessee historian says he was the third son of Peter Hoyle and third child born 1743, but as convincing evidence shows that Jacob Hoyle, his brother, was the oldest and not the youngest son, I think our historian has mistaken the date of his birth or of his father's marriage—1736. I think it probable that Andrew Hoyle was born not much later than 1743 but that he was the youngest son of his father. In 1769 land was patented to him from the State. I do not know the law governing the entry of public lands in that day but his brother-in-law, Bastian Best, and his father, Peter Hoyle, seem to have petitioned for land warrants in 1749 and 1750 and got their patent in 1754. If the delay in his case was as great and taking for granted a minor would not be a qualified petitioner, as I assume, he could not have been born later. Andrew Hoyle lived on the north side of Little Long Creek westward from his brother-in-law, George Hovis, adjoining his father's land, I think probably on the land known as the Pink Rhyne place, or possibly a little east from it. Afterward on Feb. 28, 1775, the records of grants in office of the Secretary of State, Book 26, page 218, shows another grant to said Andrew Hoyle of 80 acres in same vicinity and described as "80 acres in Tryon County, N. C., on S. side of S. fork of Catawba River including his own improvements. Beginning at a black oak on the top of a ridge, Peter Hoyle's corner, running thence with Conrad Kinder's line S 40 poles to a black oak, then with Glantz line So. 72 E. 40 poles to a white oak, thence with his other line 39 W. 130 poles to a stake, then N. 67 E. 112 poles to a white oak in Peter Hoyle's line, then with other line to the beginning." From the Colonial Records of N. C., Vol. 22, p. 429, it is shown that in 1771 John Hoyle as Lt. and Andrew Hoyle served under Frederick Hambright, Capt. leading an expedition against the Cherokee Indians.

In the first United States Census for 1790 Andrew Hoyle appears at that time as the head of a family in Co. or District 8 along with John Hoffman, Hovises, Bests, Rhynes, Costners, Hoyles, etc., located about the above described place. According to that census he represented one free white male over 16 years of age, 4 white males under 16 years and six free white females—no slaves—which I take to mean himself, and four sons under 16 years and his wife and 5 daughters. I do not know who his wife was or to what family she belonged. In 1808 Andrew "Hile," m. Juliet Campbell in Lincoln Co., N. C., at that time, and Solomon Hoyle was witness but that could not have been the older Andrew unless he married a second time in his old age. Nor do I know of any other Andrew who might have been the principal in this marriage. I am guessing by a principle of exclusion that this was Andrew, Jr., a son of Andrew, the elder. I do not know what became of this family. Some have supposed that they went back to Maryland and that Rev. Sam'l V. Hoyle of Central N. C. and his sons, T. C. Hoyle, of Greensboro, N. C., and Kenneth Hoyle, his brothers, were some of his offspring tending backward south. Rev. M. H. Hoyle knew Rev. Sam'l V. Hoyle (both being Methodist ministers) and wrote me that Rev. Sam'l V. and he were distantly related, both being descendants of our pioneer, Peter Hoyle. And Rev. M. H. Hoyle had made much research in his family history. But it may be that Andrew Hoyle, the elder, died and his children moved to other localities. I have run upon the names of a number of Hoyles for whom I can find no place in the other branches of Peter Hoyle's family. Among these were Alex Hoyle, on Oct. 10 in 12th, Geo. 3rd, purchased from Geo. Wigginton and his wife, Elizabeth "100 acres of land on both sides of Little Broad River below Black's land"; Samuel Smith Hoyle married Catharine Hovis, 1813; Christian Hoyle; Mattie Hoyle, married Geo. Weathers; Elizabeth Hoyle, m. David Hanks, 1793; Jacob Hoyle, m. Leah Robinson, 1811; Andrew Hile, m. Juliet Campbell, 1808, etc. These all and others may have been children of this Andrew Hoyle.

SECTION 6—THE DAUGHTERS OF PETER HOYLE

2 For the descendants of Elizabeth Hovis, daughter of Peter Hoyle, the pioneer, and his wife, Catharine Dales, I refer to Chapter 6—Hovis.

2 For the descendants of Catharine Best, daughter of Peter Hoyle, the pioneer, and his wife, Catharine Dales, I refer to Chapter 5—Best.

2 Mary Hoyle, the daughter of the pioneer, Peter Hoyle, and his wife Catharine Dales, married John Henry Whittenburg. I think the Whittenburgs lived in N. C. till at least one of their daughters was grown up. Christina Whittenburg, who I think was the oldest child of Mary Hoyle and Jno. H. Whittenburg, married Peter Best, her 1st cousin, the son of Catharine Best, her mother's sister. They were married in N. C. in 1779. The Whittenburg family then moved, I think, to East Tennessee and later to Illinois. In Tenn. they lived in Blount County. The children of Mary Hoyle Whittenburg were: 3 Christina, m. Peter Best (I am not absolutely sure she was the daughter of Mary Hoyle); Henry, m. ———; Matthew, m. Rachael Whittenburg; Mary, m. ——— Smith; Dan'l, m. Sallie Teal; Sallie, m. Jno. Philips; Nancy, m. Geo. Lowe; Elizabeth, m. Wm. Johnson; Wm., m. Nancy Hopkins and remained in Tenn.; Margt., m. Felix Faulkner; Joseph, m. Isabella White.

3 Christina Best died young, leaving an infant daughter; Elizabeth who married Geo. Spencer, 1798. I think probably Elizabeth Spencer has descendants in this (Gaston) County but I haven't had time since I learned about her to make investigation.

3 I have learned of the further offspring of only Wm. and Joseph Whittenburg.

3 Wm. Whittenburg's children were: 4 Elizabeth, m. Robt. Lemons; Sallie, m. ——— Lemons (c); John, m. Peggy Landrum; one daughter, name not learned, m. ——— Easterly; and Moses, m. ———, but wife's name not learned.

4 Elizabeth Lemons had only one son, Patton, who was killed in the Confederate Army.

4 John Whittenburg's children: 5 Wm., m. Jane Bowles; James, m. ———, and has about three children; and one daughter died single.

5 Wm. Whittenburg's children: 6 Houston, m. Texas Weaver and Nancy Rodgers; James, m. Tennie Henkle; Nettie, m. Jno. Ackerman; Laura, d. s.; Sarah, s.; Anne, m. Sam'l Lipps; Jennie, s.; Lily, m. Bunk Wade; Ellen, m. Wm. Lawson; and Thomas, s. 6 Houston Whittenburg's children: 7 Victoria, m. Tip Rodgers (4 children); Sylvan, m. Kitty Rodgers (1 child); Jas., m. Clara Rodgers (c); and Oscar, s. 6 James Whittenburg and wife live in Cleveland, Tenn., 1524 Brand street, where I visited them and they kindly gave me this information as to Wm. Whittenburg and descendants. Their own children are: 7 Ernest, died young; and Eula and Grace, two beautiful girls. 6 Nettie Ackerman's children: 7 Elizabeth, Wm., Chas., Pearl and Lee. 6 Anne Lipps' children: 7 Bonnie, Ben, Burt, Wm., Sam'l and Glenn. 6 Lily Wade's children: 7 Bonnie.

4 Mrs. Easterly's children: 5 Dr. Easterly; Tally, Co. Surveyor, Greenville, Tenn.; Jno. and Mabel.

3 Joseph Whittenburg, youngest child of Mary Hoyle Whittenburg, was raised in Tennessee. His parents and he with them moved from Blount Co., Tenn., to Illinois.

3 Joseph Whittenburg had only one child: 4 Jacob, m.———, and moved to Wayne County, Mo.

4 Jacob Whittenburg is quite an old man past 80 years when last heard of. He has only one child, a daughter, Nettie, a pleasant young matron who married J. F. Hughey, a teacher, living near Hiram, Wayne Co., Mo. This Whittenburg family has been very much like that of Andrew Hoyle, Sr., with fewer hints in this section. I could scarcely find a footprint they had left here, nor any tradition as to where they went, where they lived, or what had become of them. On one of my trips of exploration through Mo. I found myself at Greenville, Mo., and my route was to go from there to Gravelton in the same (Wayne) Co. There was a sort of new lumber R. R. to within about a mile of my destination—a shackling old engine and coach was run over this road once in a while to save the charter. It went about as fast as a buggy and kept a fellow wondering what would happen. I caught the train going on one of its uncertain trips. When it reached Hiram, about half way, they dumped me out and told me the train wouldn't go any further that day. I couldn't get conveyance in the town but I was directed to Mr. J. T. Sheets about three-quarters of a mile in the country as a possible carrier. I went to his house and under the circumstances Mr. Sheets consented to take me after dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Hughey were visiting the Sheets family that day. They gave me a splendid dinner and we proceeded on our way to Gravelton. After going some distance in passing a nice cottage Mr. Sheets told me that was Mr. Hughey's home. In the conversation I casually asked him what his wife's name was and he told me before marriage, she was Nettie Whittenburg. After I got home I wrote Mr. Hughey and the correspondence developed the fact that Mrs. Hughey was a great granddaughter of Mary Hoyle Whittenburg and that her father was still living and he gave me a general outline of the family as here given except as to the descendants of Mr. Wm. Whittenburg, and this I got from Mrs. James Whittenburg accidentally found in Cleveland, Tenn. I tried to get further details from Mr. Jacob Whittenburg but my last letter reached him during a severe illness and I never got any further information.

I recount this accidental find, because I was so deeply interested and pleased to succeed after almost giving up the search. This Hoyle family is the largest of all the families I have planned to trace, partly because Peter Hoyle, pioneer, was one generation further back than most of the other families. As a rule too they had large families and showed little tendency to "race suicide" as our ex-President would put it.

The name Heyl is said to mean health, prosperity, happiness, salvation; and in closing this Chapter I have an ardent wish that all the Heyl tribe of this and future generations may have and abundantly enjoy all that the name signifies.

Chapter 8

WILLS

The Wills family or rather that portion of it that settled in this section were also of German descent and came from Pennsylvania in the great migration from that province to North Carolina. I think the name was spelled Wiltz. I do not know the common ancestor of the family established here. So far as I have been able to discover, the name of the pioneer who brought and established the name in this section was Garrett Wills who probably came here with his sister and her husband, Jacob Rein, probably some time in the '50's of 1700. Of Elizabeth Wills Rhyne, I have sufficiently written and here refer to the whole of Chapter 2 preceding. These are all her descendants.

2 Garrett Wills I think also was married before coming here but I have been unable to find the name of his wife or her family, except that her Christian name was Barbara. He settled at or near the junction of Leeper's and Killian's Creeks which form Dutchman's Creek on the east side of Gaston County. He had much land and sold or gave a large portion of it to his son, John Wills. He died in that neighborhood. I do not know when he died nor where he is buried. All the descendants of this old pioneer bearing the Wills name have left the country and so far as I know the name of Wills is extinct in Gaston and surrounding counties. There are, however, very many worthy descendants of other names, through the daughters of the family. The children of Garrett Wills were:

3 Anne Magdalene, m. Peter Rhyne her 1st cousin;

3 Catharine, b. December 10, 1779, m. Alex Stroder, 1799;

3 Eve, m. Frederick Lineberger, son of Capt. Lewis Lineberger, pioneer;

3 John, b. April 18, 1784, m. Ann Best, daughter of Jacob Best, 1809;

- 3 Daniel, b. Oct. 16, 1786, m. ——— Walker;
- 3 Christina, b. 1788, m. Michael Dellinger;
- 3 Conrad (Coonrod), b. Mar. 7, 1789;
- 3 Barbara, b. Sept. 27, 1791, m. Jacob Henkel, 1808;
- 3 Fanny, m. Jacob Dellinger;
- 3 Isaac, m. Esther Walker.

3 Anne Magdalene Rhyne's children: 4 See Peter Rhyne, Chapter 2, Section 4.

3 I have no further definite information of Catharine, daughter of Garrett Wills. She married and probably had a family but I have not found them.

3 Eve Lineberger with her husband, Fredk. Lineberger, lived on the ancestral home of the family founded by Capt. Lewis Lineberger about a mile east of the South Fork of the Catawba River near the public road leading from Dallas to Stanley. They were prominent well-to-do citizens of blameless Christian character. They were leading members of Philadelphia E. L. Church. The old home after being occupied by four or five generations of Linebergers still stands but is vacant and fast falling into decay. The places that gave us birth and nourishment will soon know us no more and in turn a little later the places themselves will be forgotten. The children of Eve Lineberger were: 4 John, m. Elizabeth Best, daughter of Jacob Best; Mary (Polly), m. John Hoffman 2nd; Elizabeth, m. Jacob Froneberger; Susan, m. Dan'l Hoffman, son of John, Sr., and brother to Jno. 2nd; David, m. Elizabeth Jenkins, daughter of Joseph Jenkins and his wife Elizabeth Hambright, daughter of Col. Frederick Hambright, of Revolutionary fame, and Roxanna Stroup.

C.; Ella (teacher), Fuller, Mattie; and Jas. A., m. ———. H. A. Torrence was a brave Confederate soldier still living. He has the almost incredible record of having been twice shot, the second ball exactly retracing the wound of the first. He was shot in the eye and the bullet came out of the side of his head—the next time the bullet entered where first came out and it came out where first entered.

5 David Froneberger's children: 6 Cheaves, m. ——— (c), and Kate ———, a northern lady, by 1st wife; and by 2nd wife: Lewis, Brevard, Fanny, Augusta; and Maggie, d. s.

3 Daniel Wills in N. C. lived at what is now Lowesville, N. C. His house stood in what is now the barn lot of Col. D. A. Lowe. 3 Conrad Wills probably married and had a family. I have failed to secure information of him.

3 Barbara Wills and her husband, Jacob Hinkle, lived for a while in the Lowesville section. The Hinkles in that locality from whom I have heard are descended from a brother of Jacob. I think probably some of them are descendants of Jacob and Barbara Wills Hinkle. The name spelled as these Hinkle instead of Henkel is very common among the Wills about Daisy, Mo., and Barbara and husband may have moved there. I have not found them nor name of descendants.

3 Fanny Dellinger's children were: 4 Hanna, m. Robt. Smith; Barbara, m. Wm. Creitz; Rebecca, m. ———, and went west; Fredk., m. Polly Dellinger; John, Jacob and Henry all went west. I have heard nothing further from those who moved west.

children and Margt. D. Dellinger has five. There are many other descendants of Fanny Wills Dellinger but for want of time and unresponsive members of the family I have not secured names.

3 I have found no trace of the descendants or whereabouts of Isaac Wills since he and his family moved westward in 1833. I was told positively that he also settled in Capt Girardeau Co., Mo. Many of the descendants of Isaac's brother, John Wills, live there, among whom one son of John, 80 years old, whom I visited. He could tell me nothing of Isaac Wills or his family. There are those who think he settled in Southern Georgia and that his descendants are there and over the line in Florida. I have found the address of some Wills in Florida of names similar to those of Isaac Wills' children, but letters are not answered. When he left here he had children named: 4 Walter, John, David, Polly, Esther, Margt. (Peggy), Sarah, Elizabeth, Fanny and Solomon. I am very sorry I cannot trace them further.

Chapter 9

SHETLEY (SCHATTLE)

One of my great grandmothers was a Shetley. It has taken years of earnest inquiry for me to find out who my great grandmother, the wife of Jacob Hoffman 2nd was, and to what family she belonged, but late in my investigation I found that she belonged to the Shetley family. I haven't been able to do justice to this family in the way of writing a history of the family. I can only give a short and imperfect outline. When this is completed, I will close the sketches of the families, which settled in this section and known to have contributed blood to my veins—except the Brooks family and the Dales family—I have been unable to find who was head mother of the Hoffmans, of the Costners and of the Shetleys.

Then I'll have to please my good wife by gathering into shape a sketch of each of the principal families from which she sprung.

And still after that mainly from the contents of the previous sketches with some additions, I will put together in a combined and methodical way the information I have obtained of several families collaterally related. These will all be short but I trust will be of interest and profit of the members of the families so sketched.

1 Jacob Shetley, so far as I have learned, was the head of that family here. He settled about a mile east of the place heretofore described as the home of Jacob Hoffman 2nd, his son-in-law. Though the name as spelled does not specially indicate his German origin, yet I think it rather plainly prominent that he was German by the way the German scribe fixed it on the records of Philadelphia E. L. Church: "Schättle." I think he came along with the crowd probably not the very first but very soon after. As heretofore shown he was one of the trio of Jacobs Jacob Shetley, Jacob Rign and Jacob Zimmerman (Carpenter) who as witnesses signed the will of Philip Rudisill. The children of Jacob Shetley were:

2 Elizabeth, m. Jacob Hoffman 2nd;

2 Kitty, married Jacob Shrum, son of Nicholas Schrämm, pioneer;

2 Adam moved to Mo. and lived near Fredericktown—never married;

2 Andrew, moved and lived near Adam. I think he raised a family;

2 John, m. Anna ———, and lived on his father's home place;

2 Sophia, m. Christian Rhodes (Roth), son of Frederick, pioneer;

2 Barbara and Parmelia.

2 I am not absolutely sure beyond a doubt, but the preponderance of evidence shows that Elizabeth Hoffman was the daughter of Jacob Shetley. She possibly was his sister and if so my informants who are positive that Kitty Shrum was his daughter may be mistaken too. Two sons of Kitty Shrum, Andrew and Frederick, married two daughters of Elizabeth Hoffman, Margaret and Christine, first cousins to each other.

For descendants of Elizabeth Hoffman, see Jacob Hoffman, Chap. 1, Sec. 2.

2 I think Kitty Shetley Shrum lived and died in N. C., but I think all of her brothers and sisters except Elizabeth Hoffman, John Shetley and Sophia Rhodes moved to Mo. and most of the children of those left in N. C. followed later to Southeast Mo. It may be Kittie and Jacob also went late in life. Jacob Shrum was one of the fifteen sons and daughters of Nicholas Shrum, the founder of that family in N. C. He was the brother of Margaret Shrum who married Martin Hoyle and of John Shrum, who married Lizzie Totherow, heretofore mentioned in these sketches. The children of Kitty Shrum were: 3 Nicholas, m. ——— Deck; Fred, m. Christine Hoffman; Andrew, m. Margaret Hoffman; Jacob, m. ——— Myers; Joseph, m. ——— Myers; and one daughter died young.

3 Nicholas Shrum's children: 4 Kitty, m. Fred Myers; Bettie, m. Methreniel Myers; Allie, m. Joseph Slinkard; Fannie, m. Ransom James; Salia, m. Jacob Barbs; Ruth, m. David Barbs; Hannah, m. Leonard Welker; Isaac, m. Herat Wideman; John, m. Mary Best; Jacob, m. Melissa Smith; Ephraim, m. Mar-thand Burton; Joseph, m. Susie Baker; Mahala, m. Rev. Leonard Welker (Bapt.). To Mrs. Mahala Welker, still living at Shrum, Mo., I am indebted for much of this information.

4 Kittie Myers' children: 5 Alla, Polly, Sallie, Hannah, Josephine, John, Nicholas, Jessie, Joel, Wiley, Wm., Alenerime, Frinklan.

4 Bettie Myers' children: 5 Katie, Polly, Perline and Wm.

4 Allie Slinkard's children: 5 Nicholas, Fred, Mahala and Lurania.

4 Fannie James' children: 5 Jacob.

4 Salia Barbs' children: 5 Eli, Pinkney and Ephraim.

4 Ruth Barbs' children: 5 Sarah, Mary, Fanny, Mandia, Martha, Ruth, Wm. and Ransom.

4 Hannah Welker's children: 5 Ephraim and Clemma.

4 Isaac Shrum's children: 5 Polly.

4 John Shrum's children: 5 Fannie, Caroline, Elizabeth, Jacob Ephraim and Cane.

2 Sophia Rhodes lived in Gaston County, N. C., and raised a large family of children. She died here and is probably buried at the graveyard on their home place at the railroad crossing near Philadelphia Church. She died in 1840. She was a good Christian woman. After her death, her husband moved to Wayne Co., Missouri, with about all of his children except his son, Christian Rhodes, who remained on the home place. Sophia Rhodes' children were: 3 Christian, m. Mary Magdalene, daughter of Peter Rhyne; Henry, m. Barbara Rhyne; John, m. Elizabeth Lowrance (Madison Co., Mo.); David, m. 4 Franklin Rhodes lives at Greenville, Mo. He has a hone for his razor which his great grandfather, Frederick Rhodes, brought with him from Germany when he migrated to America. It is a petrified piece of wood in the shape of a large banana, cut lengthwise through the middle. His children are: 5 Datie, m. B. A. O'Bannon; Lily, m. Otto Larch; David, d. s.; Minnie, m. J. W. 3 Mary Burke, Sophia Pugh, Elizabeth Whitener and Rosa Finger all lived and had children in or near Wayne Co., Mo., but when there I overlooked taking notes of these.

2 The husband of Sophia Shetley Rhodes was the son of Frederick Rhodes, the pioneer of the large and influential Rhodes family. He (Frederick Rhodes) came from Germany to Pennsylvania and thence here in North Carolina about the time the early first settlers came. The name was then spelled Roth. I have been unable to ascertain the name of his wife. He lived on the west side of Hoyle's Creek near the present residence of W. D. Quinn, F. W. Thompson and adjoining the lands of Jacob Hoffman 2nd, in Gaston Co., N. C. He is buried on his home place and his grave is still known. I haven't been able to get a complete family history of this old and worthy first settler nor the names of all his children.

Among his children were: Christian or Christopher who married Sophia Shetley; Henry, m. Clara ———; Peter, m. Betsy Jack; Jacob, m. Sarah Weathers; Susan, m. Thomas Linkhorn (Lincoln), 1808; and Mary, m. Daniel Best.

2 Henry Rhodes lived up the South Fork of Catawba River in what is now northwestern Lincoln County and his descendants were prominent people. Some of his children were:

3 Henry, m. Catharine Carpenter and Nancy Hoke; Titus, David; Nancy, m. J. A. Robinson (Sheriff); Mary, m. David Warlick; and Barbara.

3 Henry Rhodes, son of Henry 1st, had children as follows: 4 Wm. C.; Ella, m. R. B. Killian; Franklin J., Geo. P., Robt. H.; and Cath., m. G. E. Crowell.

3 Titus and David Rhodes, I think, had families in Lincoln Co. as did Nancy Robinson and Mary Warlick.

2 Peter Rhodes' (son of Fredk. Rhodes) children were: 3 Elisha, married ——— Jenkins (cousin to Shadrack), and his descendants so far as learned were:

4 Daniel, m. Mattie Jenkins; Margt., d. s.; Vinie, m. ———; Crumpton; Sallie, m. ——— Harris; and Mattie, m. ——— Huett (last three moved to Texas).

4 Daniel Rhodes' children: 5 Margt., m. Absalom Gobel; Vinie, m. J. E. McArver; Sarah A., m. Frank Parish; Mattie, m. Harvey Dilling; Jane, m. Nathan Johnson (c); Elizabeth, s.; and Michael L., m. Adaline Rhyne.

5 Margt. Gobel's children were: 6 Martha R., m. W. H. Robinson and George McDaniel (10 children); Josephine, m. Amos Wyatt and Wm. Armstrong (7 children); Minnie, m. Wm. Jenkins (7 children); Jno. J., m. Malissa Robinson (6 children); Sarah A.; Cornelius, m. M. E. Jenkins (7 children); James, m. Margt. Forbis (2 children); Sam'l, m. Nancy Massey (c); Mary F., m. J. C. Pasour (7 children); Wm., m. Anne Alexander; Malissa, m. Jos. Alexander (4 children); Geo., m. Myrtle Forbis (4 children).

5 Vinie McArver's children: 6 Jno. H., m. Maggie Jenkins; Lou, m. Geo. Nance; Jane, s.; Ed, m. Sallie Beatty; Sallie, m. Ernest Smith; Laura, m. Wesley Bradley. 6 Jno. H. McArver was killed by railroad train. He left six children: 7 Ella, m. Bascom Ellington; Arthur, Jane, James, Sallie and Mary. 6 Lou Nance has one child: 7 Carrie.

5 Sarah A. Parish's children: 6 Clementine, m. ——— Alexander (4 children); James, m. ——— Ellyson (2 children); Robt., m. ——— (2 children).

5 Mattie Dilling's children: 6 Fanny, m. Jno. Cox (6 children); Frank, m. Alice Lay (5 children); Henry, m. Minnie Brown (5 children); Mack, d. s.; Thos., m. Lizzie Howe (3 children).

5 Michael L. Rhodes was a Confederate soldier, Co. C, 2nd Regt. N. C. Jr. Res., and later Co. C, 71st N. C. Regt., C. S. A. His children are: 6 Craig, m. Minnie Campbell (1 child, Sam'l L.); Mary, m. J. W. Bailey (1 child, Raymond); Walter, s.; and Maggie, d. s.

2 Jacob Rhodes was married, 1797. He had a family of children. Among them, Bennett, m. Esbel Smith and a daughter married Alfred Cloninger and moved to Ark. I think Joseph and Hosea Rhodes were probably his sons or grandsons.

2 Susan Lincoln had one son born in this country May 11, 1809, named Absalom. They disappeared. I think they went to Southeast Mo. with the many other Rhodes. The name Lincoln is a familiar one there.

2 Mary Best moved to Southeast Missouri and had a family. (See Chapter Best, Section 6.).

Chapter 10

JENKINS

SECTION I.

In recent years there have been so many sets of the Jenkins family in what is now Gaston County, N. C., and we can find so little evidence of their connection with each other that I find it very difficult to unite them in the same chapter. We have, so far as I have been able to learn, only an indistinct tradition that these various branches were distantly related, with no suggestion as to how the connection arose.

So far as learned the Jenkins people sprung from Welsh parentage, but I think all the founders of the family or families here came from Virginia.

The pioneer of that branch of the family to which my wife belongs was Hugh Jenkins, who came from Virginia, to Rowan County, N. C., I think probably about 1750. I (depending somewhat on the help of others) have not the information that would likely be found in the deed books of said county. The earliest record I have found of Hugh Jenkins 1st, is from the "Colonial Records," which shows that he audited the accounts of Sheriff High in the year 1766. He was a man of considerable wealth for that day and would almost surely buy a home soon after coming. His wife's name was Mary, but to what family she belonged, I haven't learned.

Hugh Jenkins, pioneer, died in the year 1800, leaving a will devising all his property for life to his wife and appointing her and his son, Joseph Jenkins, as his executors. Later it was found necessary for his widow and other devisees to make deeds to Moses and Joseph Jenkins, sons of said Hugh Jenkins, declaring the intention of the testator to have been to convey land to said Moses and Joseph in fee. These deeds bear date, Dec. 17, 1803. Then there came another Jenkins from Virginia and settled in Rowan County. His name was Jesse and was said to be Educated at Wake Forest College. In connection with John H. Craig and others, he established the first bank in Gaston County, styled Craig & Jenkins. This developed into the First National Bank of Gastonia, of which Mr. Jenkins is president. He is also president of the American National Bank of Asheville, and of First National Bank of Lenoir. He is a director of the Continental Trust Company of Washington, D. C., and interested in several other banks. He is also president of the Arlington Cotton Mills, Flint Manufacturing Company and the Gray Manufacturing Company, all of Gastonia, and largely interested in other cotton mills as officer or stockholder. His residence is Asheville, N. C.

brother to Hugh aforesaid. Whether they came together or at different times I cannot say. He also was a man of intelligence and well to do, owning several negroes. His wife was Martha but her family name was not learned. His will is dated Dec. 9, 1802, in which he mentions and provides for his wife and ten or eleven children.

Besides these there settled in what is now Gaston County on south side of Big Long Creek four men, thought to be brothers, to-wit: Reuben Jenkins, Capt. Jno. Jenkins, Edward (Ned) Jenkins and Elijah Jenkins. They lived in same neighborhood. And still further, there was on Long Creek and Beaver Dam Creek, an old settler with the peculiar name, Jenkins Jenkins, who married Anne Beam in 1800. He bought land from Jno. McKnitt Alexander as early as April 4, 1788. He had a brother, Jesse, who owned a pet rifle and was a great marksman and proud of his gun. He delighted in showing it but always before doing so said: "Let me get my 'flannikin' rag and clean it first."

There was also a David Jenkins in Revolutionary time, a Justice of the Peace, who kept close watch on the Tories and with Robt. Alexander was delegate to Newbern Convention, Aug. 25, 1774. In my first draft of this chapter from misinformation of the great grandchildren of Hugh Jenkins and from some business connection of Joseph Jenkins with this David and his son, David, I wrote the elder David as the founder of our branch of the family. There were still other Jenkinses in this section whose relationship, if any, I have not been able to get.

1 Whoever then was the common father of the Rowan County set of Jenkins, so far as we have learned with reasonable certainty, we know of no other children except:

2 Hugh Jenkins, m. Mary ———, and died in 1800.

2 Jesse Jenkins, m. Martha ———, and died about 1802.

2 Hugh Jenkins owned the Catawba Springs in Lincoln Co. and large tracts of land including the Wills tract adjoining it.

SECTION 2—HUGH JENKINS

2 The children of Hugh Jenkins, as mentioned in his own will, were:

3 Joseph, m. Elizabeth Hambright, daughter of Col. Fredk. Hambright;

- 3 Samuel, m. ———, wife's name not learned;
- 3 Moses, m. ———, wife not known;
- 3 Aaron, probably died unmarried in Tenn.;
- 3 Hugh, m. ———, name of wife not known;
- 3 James, m. ———, and died young. Name of wife not learned;
- 3 Ann, m. Wm. Cowan;
- 3 Mary, m. Matthew Stuart;
- 3 Margaret, m. David Kilpatrick (Kirkpatrick);
- 3 Susanna, m. Robert Johnston;
- 3 One daughter, m. Hugh Robinson.

For above list I am indebted to Mr. Eugene H. Bean of Salisbury, N. C., but I am not sure that we have it entirely correct. The will, as copied on record, speaks of two Marys, daughters of Hugh Jenkins (Mrs. Stuart and Mrs. Kilpatrick), and outside information is that the daughter who married Hugh Robinson was named Anne which would make two Ann's, daughters of said Hugh Jenkins. I think the will does not mention the daughter, Mrs. Robinson, but speaks of a granddaughter, Anne, wife of Hugh Robinson.

3 Joseph Jenkins, son of Hugh Jenkins, Sr., was executor with his mother, Mary Jenkins, of his father's estate. He was probably living in Lincoln County either at Catawba Springs or as, I think more likely, on Long Creek; near the White & Jenkins Mill, as his father on Jan. 2, 1778, conveyed 200 acres of land on Long Creek in Tryon County in that vicinity to him for "satisfactory considerations." Tradition has it that he was a lively musician and was fifer in a Company of American Revolutionary soldiers. I have not learned the command to which he belonged or what other service he performed.

He died in 1821 leaving a will of which his two sons, David and Hugh, were executors.

In the will he mentions his two sons and six married daughters and a daughter, Mary, who married Aaron Jenkins, her 1st cousin in 1821, after will was executed.

6 For Elmina B. Hoffman's descendants, see W. H. Hoffman, page 98. 6 Aaron D. Jenkins was my boy friend, schoolmate, army comrade, and nearly till death my business associate. Only a few months ago he fell dead on the streets of New York where he lived. My heart feels the lament of David over his beloved Jonathan. He was a sincere, lovable and loved friend without suspicion of guile. He was in early life teller in the State Treasurer's office and paymaster on Gov. Holden's staff with rank of Col. He left surviving him his wife and one son, Burke Pritchard, who married Hellen Hunt of New York. These have no children.

6 Wm. W. Jenkins is a farmer near Wake Forest College, N. C. He was for years Postmaster in Charlotte, N. C. He has only one child: 7 May, m. ——— Patterson and Geo. Kittrell. 6 May Patterson-Kittrell has only one child: 8 Rebecca Patterson, a small, fragile girl of most exquisite grace and beauty.

6 Laban L. Jenkins is a prominent and successful banker and cotton manufacturer of Asheville and Gastonia. His children are: 7 Archie, m. Mary Knight; Helen, m. Jack Harper; and Lola. 7 Helen Harper has one child: 8 Cath. J.

5 David A. Jenkins was born in Lincoln (now Gaston) County, N. C., April 5, 1822. Here he lived all his life and died Sept. 10, 1886, at his home in East Gastonia, now the home of his daughter, Mrs. Mary A. Craig. He is buried by the side of his wife in the private burial ground of the family near the home. He, too, had only a very limited education in the schools but by his indomitable will and purpose and his extraordinary natural endowments of mind and judgment he forced his way to greater success in life than falls to the lot of most men. He used to say that Andrew Hoyle, Jacob Rhyne 3rd and Jesse Holland, who later became his father-in-law, gave him his first chance at money-making by entrusting to him their very considerable collections at which he was so successful, that they paid him well. He held several minor places of honor and trust and was faithful and diligent in them all. After the war he took the view that it was best for the South to submit as gracefully as might be to the rules of reconstruction imposed on us. He became a Republican, having been opposed to secession before the war began. His position was that the natives should take an active part in the politics of that stormy period and as far as possible, by their influence, to temper and restrain the greed and passions of those exercising government over us. He was elected State Treasurer, 1868, and thus gained a great vantage ground to prevent much of the spoliation of the "carpetbaggers," who had great power in that day. He held the office for two terms till 1876. I am not sure but that he underestimated his task. Be that as it may, he had a man's work before him and they led him a most miserable existence, but he held his ground and won the soubriquet of "Honest Dave Jenkins," by even the Democrats, many of whom were his friends. The Hon. Kemp P. Battle was a fine lawyer and business man and as I recollect was the Democratic State Treas. and was their candidate against Mr. Jenkins for the office. Mr. Jenkins on assuming the responsibility of the office employed Mr. Battle as his advisor and he always retained reliable Donald Bain as chief clerk though a Democrat. Mr. Jenkins was naturally a quick tempered man and sometimes he would boil over when he saw any scheme of his foes or his friends to get the State's money as he thought without proper voucher. His rage was fierce but after the storm and the accomplishment of his purposes it was all over. Somehow the carpetbaggers circumvented him in the Legislature in passing the special tax bonds acts and entrusting the sale of them to outside agencies. He was in no wise responsible for that.

Mr. Jenkins accumulated quite a nice little estate. But it would be a great oversight to overlook an important factor in Mr. Jenkins' success in life, and that factor was his wife who was a most estimable woman, who besides rearing her children presided over his household with great good judgment and for the years, while he was absent most of the time about his business, conducted his home affairs and farm and slaves with about as much success as if he had been present, besides she added grace, gentle manner and poise to the combination. She died on the 20th day of May, 1880, in the same month, on same day of the month, same day of the week and same hour of the day as marked the time of her marriage 39 years before.

5 Joseph Jenkins, son of Mary and Aaron Jenkins, lived two miles west of Dallas. His children were: 6 David, m. Caroline Carpenter; Jno., d. s.; Henry, m. Emma Davis; Nancy, m. Robt. Holland; Letitia, m. Winfield Ratchford; Vinie, m. Mark Best and Jno. Dixon; Mattie, m. Eugene Ratchford; Mary, m. Calvin McAlister; Aaron, m. Rosa Bell; Chas., m. Etta Bell; Jasper, m. Lizzie Fennell.

6 David Jenkins moved to Miss. and had children: 7 Pinkney, s.; Lawson, Sarah, Maggie, Elmina and Minnie. Last five married, and Henry, d. s. 6 Henry Jenkins' children: 7 Mamie, m. Lonnie Ousley; Bright, Effie, Johnie, Lornie and Chas. This family lives in Texas.

James H. White, husband of Margaret Jenkins, was of Irish origin (Scotch Irish, I think). His father brought him when young to this country with the rest of his family. He (the father) settled on the south side of Big Long Creek on east side of the Bradley Branch between the branch and the macadam road near where said road rounds the point of the hill and near the road leading through the Craig and Wilson farm, across the branch to the old road on the west side of the farm. He is buried in the private graveyard on said western old road on top of the hill.

James H. White was an intelligent active boy, and after his marriage established himself further up the creek in the Jenkins neighborhood. He became a favorite with the Jenkins family and with the people of his section and was called to many places of public trust and confidence. He was a potent factor in the establishment and organization of Gaston County and was a member of the North Carolina, General Assembly. He served his County and State with fidelity and efficiency and died and is buried in the graveyard on his home place at the White & Jenkins Mill. His grave is known but is marked by no tombstone. This is due to no disrespect or negligence of his family but to an eccentric request of Mr. White himself.

3 Samuel Jenkins, at the time of his father's death, I think, lived in Rowan County and later moved to Lincoln (now Gaston) County.

3 Moses Jenkins lived on Dutchman's Creek in Lincoln, later Gaston County, N. C., and was a prosperous well to do citizen. He had a large quantity of land. The original tract on which he settled after coming from Rowan County was known as the Hampton tract purchased by Hugh Jenkins, Sr., from Andrew Hampton, Jan. 6, 1772.

I find no will made by Moses Jenkins nor any indication or information of any children except as following. The family say there were no other sons, there might have been daughters, but I have no trace of them.

2 Moses Jenkins' children were: 3 Stuart and Hugh, who married Susan Campbell

3 As to descendants of Stuart Jenkins, son of Moses, I have learned little. I have not learned the family or name of his wife. Book 26, page 550 of the Records of the Clerk of the Superior Court of Lincoln County, shows a division of land between Hugh Jenkins and the heirs of Stuart Jenkins of 307 acres of land. This division is dated April 11, 1815, and the heirs of Stuart Jenkins were as named in said decree of division which assigned to Hugh Jenkins 150 acres at the mouth of Stanley Creek, a short distance south of the Moses Jenkins home place, and 157 acres of same tract was assigned to the seven heirs of Stuart Jenkins as follows: Lot 1, 21½ acres to Hugh Jenkins, heir of Sam'l Stuart; Lot 2, 22½ acres to Susanna McCall, wife of James McCall; Lot 3, 22 acres to Leana, wife of Jos. B. Campbell; Lot 4, 21½ acres to Anne, wife of Powell Auten; Lot 5, 22½ acres to Elizabeth, wife of Ebenezer Rumfelt; Lot 6, 22½ acres to Jane Jenkins, and Lot 7 22½ acres to Mary Jenkins.

I haven't had opportunity to get further information of the location or names of Stuart Jenkins' descendants.

3 Hugh Jenkins' children were: 4 James C., m. Barbara Schenck, sister to Judge David Schenck; Selena K., m. Jno. D. Rankin; Mary, m. James Rankin; Blair, d. s., in Tenn.; Joseph, m. I haven't further descendants of these.

5 Wm. B. Rutledge's children: 6 Pearl, m. Mack Henderson; Coral, m. Arthur Rhyne, these by first wife; and by 2nd wife: Anne, s.; Christine, s.; and Sarah, s.

5 Robt. Rutledge has children in Charlotte. I failed to get them.

3 Aaron Jenkins, son of Hugh Jenkins, was absent from the State, living, it is said, with his niece, Sarah Trott, in Rutherford County, Tenn., when his father died.

In his will Hugh Jenkins, Sr., devised to this son, Aaron, his home place in Rowan County, 417 acres, subject to his mother's life estate if he returned during the life of his mother. He did return and conveyed later this land to Sarah Trott of Rutherford Co., Tenn. Aaron Jenkins was a patriot soldier of the Revolutionary War and drew a pension from the Government for his services. He was private in cavalry and infantry. See N. C. Colonial Records.

3 Hugh Jenkins, son of Hugh, Sr., I think lived in Rowan County and was provided for in will with a proviso if he should die without heirs land should go elsewhere. At that time he had a daughter, Polly, to whom a devise was made by the will of her grandfather. I have learned nothing further of his descendants.

3 James Jenkins, son of Hugh Jenkins, died prior to the death of his father in 1800. In the will of Hugh Jenkins, Sr., he gives to his granddaughter, Sarah Trott, wife of Benjamin Trott, all the lands which he had received for her as administrator of her father, his son, James Jenkins. She was the only child of James Jenkins and lived in Rutherford County, Tenn. I have not learned concerning her descendants.

3 Ann Cowan, daughter of Hugh Jenkins, Sr., lived and reared a family in Locke Township, Rowan Co., N. C. She had daughters: 4 Jane, Polly and other children.

3 Mary Stuart, daughter of Hugh Jenkins, Sr., probably had children but I have not learned of them.

3 Margaret Kilpatrick (this name I think should be Kirkpatrick) had the following children mentioned in the will of her father, to-wit: 4 Jenkins, Mary and Susanna and probably had other children.

3 Susanna Johnston had one son named Hugh Jenkins after his grandfather, to whom for this reason, his said grandfather gave the Cane Branch tract of land, 212 acres on Dutchman's Creek. She probably had other children.

3 As to the daughter of Hugh Jenkins, Sr., who is said to be named Anne (if so there were two Annes, sisters in the family) and the will makes devise to a granddaughter, Ann Robinson, wife of Hugh Robinson, and two brothers, Richard and David Robinson.

SECTION 3—JESSE JENKINS

2 Jesse Jenkins, reputed to be a brother of Hugh Jenkins, came also from Virginia to Rowan County. I do not know when he came. He had considerable property—land and slaves. He left a will, dated Dec. 9, 1802, in which he mentions the following children:

3 Polly, Thos., Betsy, Tacke, Suny, Jesse, Colinder, Joel, Mrs. Elizabeth Christmas, Nancy Fuller, and makes legacy to Jesse and David. He doesn't call Nancy Fuller his daughter nor Jesse and David, sons, though he gives to Jesse and David one negro girl, Fanny. He mentions in his will that half of the land and one-third of the negroes belonged already to his son, Joel.

3 I have no information as to further descendants of Jesse Jenkins except from the will of Joel Jenkins, made Nov. 25, 1859. Joel Jenkins' wife was Charlotte Cowan, daughter of Elizabeth Cowan.

Joel Jenkins had large property which he gave mainly to his own children: 4 Sally, Thos. L. C., Jno. H., Charlotte, Elizabeth and Ella.

These daughters married four distinguished men of Charlotte, N. C., to-wit: Dr. E. Nye Hutchinson, Dr. Jno. H. McAden, Judge Armistead Burwell and Mr. ——— Maffett.

SECTION 4—REUBEN, CAPT. JOHN, EDWARD AND ELIJAH JENKINS

4 Elmina Nolen's children: 5 C. Mack, m. Mary Jenkins, and a daughter, married ——— Lytle. For C. M. Nolen's children, see Mary Nolen, page 182.

2 Capt. Jno. Jenkins was a brother to Reuben Jenkins, Sr. He purchased part of Col. Frederick Hambright's land on Long Creek. His last home was on the north side of the creek near the present residence of R. G. Hoffman. He sold at least part of his land to Michael Rhyne. I have not learned who his wife was. He had several children but little is known of them. A strange fatality overtook this family and strong supicions of foul play existed. His son, James, a grown young man died suddenly and was quietly buried. And a little later Capt. Jenkins himself was suddenly seized with excruciating pains and died in torture with strong symptoms of poisoning. One son, Drewry, it is thought married a Costner and moved away to Georgia. A son, Jno., m. a Whitener and was lost in Civil War. Other children, d. s.

2 Edward (Ned) Jenkins' wife was ——— Smith, and had a large line of descendants, to-wit:

3 David, m. ——— Hawkins; Tilman, m. Peggy Clemmer; Smith, m. Margt. Huffstetler; Jno., killed by horse, s.; Berryman, m. Salena Clemmer; Mattie, m. Jonas Huffstetler and Dan'l Rhodes; Sarah, m. ———; and Benjamin, m. ———.

3 For Berryman Jenkins' children: 4 See Salena Clemmer Jenkins, page 570.

3 For Mattie Huffstetler-Rhodes' children: 4 See Jonas Huffstetler, page 424, and Dan'l Rhodes, page 494.

3 I haven't list of the descendants of Sarah, daughter of Ned Jenkins.

3 Benjamin Jenkins' children, so far as learned, were: 4 Sallie, m. George Huffstetler; and Adaline, m. ——— Weaver.

4 For Sallie Huffstetler's children: 4 See Geo. Huffstetler, page 424. Mrs. Adaline Weaver is still living at Crouse, N. C., aged 86 years. She has a family but she failed to send names to me.

2 Of Elijah Jenkins I have learned little. His wife's name was Polly, as shown by his will, made in 1805. In January, 1818, his land on Long Creek was divided under order of Lincoln County Court, Book 28, page 322, among his six children, to-wit: 3 John Jenkins, Nancy Jenkins, James Jenkins, Elijah Jenkins, Drury Jenkins and Ann Jenkins.

This James Jenkins may have been the husband of Susan Hoffman, sister to my grandmother, Eliz. Rhyne, whom I have not definitely located.

2 As to Jenkins Jenkins and his brother, Jesse, there are some indications that they were brothers to Reuben and the others, supposed to be his brothers, above. The general interchange of lands among them indicates acquaintance and common location. Edward and Jesse Jenkins make joint deed to John Beam, 1801. "Jinky," Jenkins Jenkins buys land from Jno. Beam, 1804, and had married Ann Beam in 1800. Jenkins Jenkins sold land to John Jenkins, 1799, etc., and other transactions of similar kind were made between them. Jesse Jenkins is said to have remained in N. C.

Jenkins Jenkins moved to Tenn. and raised a family. He had one son born in 1818—name not given, and he in turn had a son, J. D. Jenkins, who now lives in Dallas, Texas. His father died when he was young (10 years old), so he can give almost no information about his ancestors.

Chapter 11

HOLLAND

SECTION I

The pioneer or pioneers of the Holland family or families as established in what is now Gaston County, N. C., came to this section some time prior to the Revolutionary War. I can't say with certainty to what nationality they belonged, but they were English-speaking, and all came from Virginia. Isaac Holland and Julius Holland were, I think, of the same generation, but if ever of the same family, they drifted apart and established two separate Holland families which now know of no kinship between themselves.

Isaac Holland settled on Catawba Creek south of Gastonia and became the ancestor of an influential and prominent family.

Julius Holland settled on Big Long Creek, a short distance southeast of Dallas, near Long Creek Baptist Church, and he likewise established an influential family of descendants.

As to the time of their first settlement, I am of the opinion that they came to this section among the first settlers here.

Andrew Holland, the first of the name I have found, secured from the State of North Carolina a patent for 350 acres of land in Anson (now Gaston) County "on the south side of Long Creek of South Fork River about two miles from the mouth of the creek and a mile from the mountain," etc.

This patent bore date, Mar. 26, 1755. The land lies near the Weathers' home place and it is tradition that Julius Holland gave to Elisha Weathers (Withers), a tract of land in that neighborhood—because said Withers had no land and was brother-in-law to said Julius Holland. The wives of said Julius Holland and Elisha Withers were Mary Ann and Sarah Gaskins (Gaston); both married in 1784. These Gaston women were the daughters of Francis Gaston, the pioneer of that family here.

I rather think that the above Andrew Holland was the ancestor of the Long Creek branch of the family and possibly also the father of Isaac Holland, the ancestor of the Catawba Creek branch. A similarity of names to some extent and of dates would be consistent with this theory. Rather against it, however, is the fact that the Long Creek branch were staunch Baptists and the Catawba Creek branch just as strong Presbyterians. This might be accounted for by their locations. Added to this the understanding on both sides is that the two branches are not related so closely if at all—but I have found cases of similar claims that were erroneous. Along as early as 1846-7 Jesse Holland and Isaac Holland, Jr., were representative men of the northern and southern branches, both grandsons of Andrew Holland, the tentative founder of the Holland family and so first cousins on that supposition. Jesse Holland gave the land on which Dallas was built and lived in Dallas while Isaac Holland was chairman of the County Court which received and disposed of the land and these were intimate friends and constantly engaged together in the work of establishing Gaston County and building Dallas, the county seat, and I have found no one who knew of their claiming relationship.

In 1779, Anne Holland married Stephen Senter and in 1782 Jno. Holland married Elizabeth Huggins. These, too, might very well, as far as time is concerned, be classed as children of Andrew Holland, but I have no further information of them than above statement. I have no knowledge as to the name or family of the wife of above Andrew Holland or what became of them. As to all these conjectural relationships I will have to be content to leave the matter to the judgment or better information of my readers. It is a fact, however, that Julius Holland, generally considered the pioneer of the Long Creek branch of the family, is the only one of that branch whose descendants I have been able to trace and only lately have I learned of the existence of his brothers, James and Moses.

SECTION 2—JULIUS HOLLAND

I do not know the date of the birth of Julius Holland nor his age at death. He died in 1814 and is buried at Long Creek Church, with his wife, Mary Ann. There are those who can point out their graves, but though he was a most worthy man and minister and his descendants well to do in worldly goods, and lived in the neighborhood, like many other cases, their graves are marked only by small rough stones with no inscription in their memory. Another illustration of the neglect and carelessness of the living for their dead.

Julius Holland was a Baptist preacher and once or twice had charge of Long Creek Church. He was greatly respected for his ability and high Christian character and work.

He had at least two brothers, Moses and James Holland, who are said to have moved to Cleveland and Rutherford Counties and reared families. I have been unable to trace or find their descendants or to learn the names of their wives.

2 Julius Holland's children were:

3 Jesse, born April 10, 1786, married Martha J. Hanks, born Sept. 21, 1791; and Rufus, who died young. There was also a William Holland who married Louisa Best in 1811. One informant said he was a brother to Jesse Holland. This William Holland was a blacksmith as well as others of the Hollands, who were greatly skilled in that work. The family say that was a mistake in relationship. Wm. Holland moved to the Indian Territory.

Then so far as the developments of this sketch reaches, Jesse Holland becomes the head of the Long Creek Hollands, as Isaac Holland is the head of the Catawba Creek branch of the family.

The wife of Jesse Holland was the daughter of Richard, commonly called "Dickie" Hanks, whose wife was Phebe Hayes and whose sister, Nancy Hanks, has been claimed by many to be the wife of Thomas Lincoln and mother of President Lincoln. I am not entirely familiar with this discussion, but there are some traditions and circumstances that seemed to favor the claim. My impression is that the proof is not conclusive.

Jesse Holland succeeded his father in the father's home near Long Creek Church, later known as the Smith place, where he lived until after the town of Dallas was laid out in 1847. He was a wealthy man for his day and a leading citizen of the county. He owned much land and some slaves and was active and liberal in the movement to create Gaston County and to establish the town of Dallas as the county seat. All this was accomplished in the years 1846 and 1847. He donated the site. The first court was held at his private residence on his old home place. Here at Dallas the county seat remained for many years in peace until the up-growth of Gastonia, when after many more years of effort and contention and several hot campaigns and elections—four in all—until August 5, 1909, the election was carried for removal and the removal went into full effect on Jan. 1, 1911. It was my ill fortune to have to lead the fights for my home and home people. I recall no act of mine that brings me self-reproach.

Jesse Holland lived to a good age. His wife did not long survive him. They, too, are buried at Long Creek churchyard and their tombstones are inscribed: "Sacred to the memory of Jesse Holland, who departed this life April 29, 1856, aged 70 years and 19 days." "Farewell wife and children dear, I am not dead but sleeping here, I have paid the debt and now am free, Prepare for death and follow me." "Sacred to the memory of Martha, consort of Jesse Holland, who departed this life July 19, 1857, aged 65 years, 9 months and 28 days." "The last kind words and hope she gave Upon this marble we engrave, My love to children and friends be given, I hope to meet them all in heaven." (The same verse is on mother's tombstone).

The children of Jesse Holland and wife, Martha Jane Hanks, were:

3 Robert, b. Mar. 12, 1811, m. Eliza Rhyne, daughter of Constable Mike Rhyne;

3 Julius, b. Jan. 20, 1813, m. Mary (Polly) Rhyne, daughter of Peter Rhyne 2nd;

3 Ephraim Holland was an eminent physician. During the Civil War he was in the Confederate service as Surgeon in Charge of a hospital, No. 8, in Raleigh, N. C. He died April 12, 1896, in Bluefield, West Virginia. He is buried in the Presbyterian graveyard in Dallas, N. C. Mrs. Julia Courts Holland survived her husband fourteen years and died about a year ago in the love and esteem of all classes of the people. She is buried by the side of her husband.

SECTION 3—ISAAC HOLLAND

1 Isaac Holland, as heretofore stated, was of Virginia origin. I do not know date of his coming or birth but it was prior to the Revolutionary War. He was an American soldier in that war and fought at the battle of Kings Mountain, presumably as one of the "Fork Boys" under Lt. Col. Frederick Hambright and Maj. Wm. Chronicle where Chronicle was killed and Hambright was severely wounded. He died and is buried at the graveyard of Olney Presbyterian Church.

He lived on the north side of Catawba Creek about a mile south of Gastonia and had large tracts of land parts of which are still known as the Holland land and occupied by his descendants. It is a distinct tradition in the family that after fighting through the battle of Kings Mountain he walked home during the night following notwithstanding his strenuous exertions in the battle.

I have not learned the family name of his wife, but her christian name was Hannah. Nor do I know the exact date of his birth or death, but supposing him to be somewhat older than his wife we can approximate his birth and death date. His wife died June 2, 1818, aged 70 years, 7 mos. and three days—and so born Oct. 29, 1747. He died at the age of about 66 years. He and his wife are buried just inside the north old gate of old inclosure of Olney Cemetery. The inscription on his tombstone is: "In memory of Isaac Holland, Esq., who departed this life in the 66th year of his age."

"My friends weep not for me at all
For all must die both great and small,
And then before God's bar appear,
To give account for deeds done here.
Ye men of learning and of sense,
Remember that you must go hence;
Then my advice to all mankind
Is to God's will they be resigned."

His wife's stone is inscribed: "In memory of Hannah Holland, wife of Isaac Holland, Esq., who departed this life June 2, 1818, aged 70 years, 7 months and three days."

1 Isaac Holland, Sr., had the following children:

2 Jesse Holland (probably), who married Rhoda ———;

2 Isaac, m. ——— Duckworth and Mary Rankin, sister to Col. Richard Rankin;

2 Oliver W., twin to Isaac, m. Mary Moore;

2 James, m. Elizabeth Hoyle, daughter of Andrew Hoyle. And I haven't learned the daughters' names, if any.

2 Jesse Holland lived on Crowder's Creek on land now owned by Mr. Newton Wilson. He made a will in 1837 disposing of his lands and other property among his three children to-wit: Thomas, Stephen and Mrs. Elizabeth Witt. He mentions in this will Andrew Hoyle, guardian of the heirs of James Holland (supposedly his brother). Abram Stowe was appointed executor. Isaac Davis and Thos. Acock were witnesses. He lived, however, until about 1845. I haven't learned his resting place. His children all moved away to Tenn., his sons both being unmarried while here.

2 Isaac Holland 2nd was a prominent actor in the establishment and early management of the business of Gaston County and locating and building the Dallas county seat. He was a man of fine sense and character and a competent surveyor. He used a compass said to have been made by my great grandfather, John Hoffman. This compass recently was still used and was the property of Larkin Rhyne of Dallas.

Isaac Holland 2nd lived to a good old age. He was born July 26, 1781, and is buried also at Olney Churchyard. His tombstone bears this inscription: "In memory of Isaac Holland, Esq. Died Aug. 9, 1857, aged 78 years and 13 days." "Nor pain, nor grief, nor anxious fear, Can reach the peaceful sleeper here." I didn't find the grave of his first wife but the second is buried by his side. Her tombstone is inscribed: "In memory of Mary C., consort of Isaac Holland, Esq. Died June 9, 1865, born Feb. 14, 1794. Yea though I walk in death's dark vale, I will fear no ill, for thou art with me and thy rod and staff me comfort still."

2 Isaac Holland's children were:

4 For W. F. Holland's children by 2nd wife: 5 See Maggie Holland, page 31.

3 W. F. Holland, Sr., died young. He is also buried at Olney graveyard and the inscription on his tombstone is: "In memory of W. F. Holland, born 2nd April, 1817, departed this life the 18th of Nov., 1851. God my Redeemer lives And often from the skies, Looks down and watches all my dust Till he shall bid it rise."

He is buried by his first wife whose tombstone is marked thus: "In memory of Nancy C. Holland who died August 20, 1847, aged 18 years, 2 mos and 6 days." "My loving friends and husband dear, 'Twas in my youth I left you here On earth our time was spent in love In happiness again to meet above."

Mr. Holland's second wife survived him many years and married Jacob Froneberger by whom she had one daughter, Mary Eliz., m. Jno. C. Puett, for whose descendants, see Jacob Froneberger, page 482.

3 I. Harrison Holland, m. Sarah Rutledge, but died early without children. His widow married Banks Withers and reared a family of brilliant children, among whom is Prof. W. A. Withers, of Raleigh, N. C. I. Harrison Holland is also buried at Olney and has this inscription on his tombstone: "In memory of Col. I. Harrison Holland, died July 10, 1857, aged 35 years, 7 months and 1 day."

4 Emily Brison's children: 5 Pink, m. ——— Lewis.

3 Franklin Holland's children: 4 Wm., James O., Margt. and Leroy. Franklin Holland died in this country. After the war his widow was so much disappointed at the result, she took her children to Brazil and my information is that most of them died there. Wm. was a dear college friend of mine.

3 Jasper Holland moved to Arkansas about Dardanelle and died there. I think most of his descendants are in this section. His children were: 4 Catharine, m. W. E. Adams; Mary A., m. Newton Torrence; Elizabeth, m. Jacob Lineberger; and James, m. ——— Wilson.

2 James Holland also found his resting place at Olney Churchyard having died in the prime of life. His monument has this inscription: "In memory of Col. James Holland who departed this life March the 30th, 1826, aged 41 years, 5 months and 26 days.

"No sorrow, no complaint
My pleasures here destroy
I live with God and all his saints,
And endless in our joy."

His wife survived him many years—married Abram Stowe and raised another family. She, too, lies in the Stowe plot in same churchyard.

HAMBRIGHT

“Lieutenant Colonel Frederick Hambright was born in Germany in 1727, emigrated to Pennsylvania about 1740, and after remaining there a short time removed to Virginia about 1755 where he married Sarah Hardin with whom he lived happily until her death during the Revolution. A few years after his marriage he moved to Tryon County in N. C., being accompanied by his brothers-in-law Col. Joseph Hardin, John Hardin and Benj. Hardin; also by James Kuykendahl, Nathaniel Henderson, Robt. Leeper and others. He first settled at the fort erected near the mouth of the South Fork of the Catawba River as a protection against the attacks of the Indians. From that place he soon afterwards moved to Long Creek in the same County and was living there when the battle of Kings Mountain took place in which he so gallantly participated. A short time previous to that battle he had purchased a tract of land on Kings Creek, and had built a cabin upon it, preparatory to a future removal of his family. Colonel Hambright was twice married. By the first marriage to Sarah Hardin, previously noticed, he had twelve children of whom six were raised, viz.: 1 John H. Hambright who fought at Kings Mountain; 2 Elizabeth; 3 Frederick; 4 Sarah; 5 Benjamin; 6 James Hambright. Of these Elizabeth married Joseph Jenkins and Sarah, Peter Eaker, both of whom have worthy descendants. By the second wife, Mary Dover, whom he married in 1781, he had ten children of whom eight were raised. Mrs. Susanna Dickson, the tenth child by the second wife and the youngest of the twenty-two children, is still living and retains in her memory many interesting traditions of the Revolution.

“Colonel Hambright early displayed a fervent patriotic zeal for the independence of his adopted country. In 1777 he received the appointment of Lieutenant Colonel and was throughout the war an active and courageous officer. He was constantly watching the movements of the Tories whose malicious influence and plundering habits seriously disturbed the peace and welfare of society. His name soon became a terror to the Tories, who well knew the determination of his character and the vigilance and prowess of his arms in arresting disaffected persons, and defeating their designs.

“At the battle of Kings Mountain Col. William Graham, having charge of the Lincoln Regiment, not being present on account of sickness in his family, the command devolved on Col. Hambright and most nobly and courageously did he sustain the responsible position. No portion of the advancing Whig columns evinced more irresistible bravery and suffered more severely than the troops under his immediate command. Major William Chronicle, one of his most efficient and gallant officers, fell early in the action. There, too, Captain John Mattocks, Lieutenants Robb and Boyd, and others all from the same neighborhood lost their lives in that fiercely contested battle which resulted so gloriously for the cause of liberty.

“In this conflict Colonel Hambright was severely wounded, by a large rifle ball passing through the fleshy part of the thigh. It was soon discovered by the soldiers near him that he was wounded and bleeding profusely. Sam’l Moore, of York County, South Carolina, requested him to be taken from his horse; he refused saying, he knew he was wounded but was not sick or faint from the loss of blood—said he could still ride very well, and therefore deemed it his duty to fight on till the battle was over. And most nobly did he remain in his place, encouraging his men by his persistent bravery and heroic example until signal victory crowned the American Arms.

“At the close of the action, when Colonel Hambright alighted from his horse, the blood was running over the top of the boot on his wounded leg. He was then conveyed to the cabin erected on his own land as previously stated, before the war, where he was properly cared for until he was partially recovered. Although the wound in process of time, seemed to have healed, yet its deep-seated injury caused him to falter in his walk during the remainder of his life. The reason he assigned for refusing to be taken from his horse when severely wounded does honor to his exalted patriotism. He said if he complied his men would neglect to load and fire as often as they should; would gather around him to administer to his wants and thus fail to do their whole duty in opposing and conquering the enemy.

“Such true devotion to the cause of freedom is worthy our warmest admiration and forcibly illustrates the heroic spirit which animated the band of patriots who achieved on Kings Mountain one of the most important and decisive victories of the American Revolution.

“Colonel Hambright was long a worthy member and elder of the Presbyterian Church at Shiloh in the present limits of Cleveland County. On his tombstone we have this plain inscription: ‘In memory of Colonel Frederick Hambright who departed this life March (figures indistinct), 1817, in the ninetieth year of his age.’”

The foregoing account of Colonel Hambright is taken from Dr. C. L. Hunter’s “Sketches of Western N. C.,” pages 324 and following, published, 1877. A few slight errors are noted, to-wit: When Col. Hambright came to N. C. this territory was not yet Tryon, nor, even Mecklenburg, but Anson County, included it. Col. Hambright must have married (if married in Virginia), and moved to North Carolina some time before 1755. His patent for land where he first settled on the Catawba River is dated Aug. 30, 1753, and land was described “on the south side of the Catawba River joining Judith Coborne’s survey in Anson County,” 300 acres. Part of this land for a nominal consideration he conveyed to James Leeper in 1762. On Sept. 24th, 1754, he patented other lands, 202 acres on Doctors Creek which I am told is the little creek arising on the east side of and near the railroad near Stanley—but the land was further down nearer Mount Holly and the Catawba River. I do not know whether he ever lived on this land or not. In May, 1769, he patented still other land “in the fork of Long Creek and branch known as Still House Branch,” and this is the land he lived on at the time of the battle of Kings Mountain and is located a mile or a little more up the Big Long Creek from the crossing of the old Yorkville road in the neighborhood of Michael Rhyne, Jacob Rudisill and others. Soon after the battle of Kings Mountain in April, 1782, he sold part of this land to James Wells, and in Oct., 1782, he sold part of this tract to Edward Hunter and part to John Jenkins, and doubtless about this year he moved to his new home on Kings Creek. Col. Hambright's first wife was buried, it is said, on his Long Creek home place. I was directed to it and searched for it without a guide. I found traces of several burial grounds but mostly grown up into thickets. At one of these I found several rough stones and the outlines of the enclosure of a square. The earth and trash had accumulated around the stones. On scratching down I found one stone with a large H scratched on it and I think probably that marked the resting place of the first Mrs. Hambright. Colonel Hambright's home on Kings Creek was on the hills south of the creek with a considerable field of lowland on the creek. His farm, I think, crossed the creek and extended for a distance up and down the stream. Mr. Emanuel A. Patterson, a great grandson of Col. Hambright, who lives not far away on the north side of the creek took me to the old house, still tenanted, and showed me through it. It is a log house, weather-boarded on the outside, as I recall about thirty-five feet by twenty-five feet, two stories high. It is built of smaller logs than those of most of the primitive houses of our German ancestors. Both sides of the house were protected by full length porches and on alternate ends of the porches were two small bedrooms. The main body of the house was divided on first floor by a partition into two rooms (possibly the rear room was subdivided). The main or living room was entered without hallway or vestibule from either side. The chimneys and fireplaces were of immense size, as was the custom of our fathers. As I remember the huge chimney in the living room was built inward from the eastern end wall and the large niche between the chimney and the south wall was partitioned off and inside, the stairway led from the south wall to the upper floor. One door near the wall in this partition led to the foot of the stairway. Another small door near the fire place opened a closet under the stairway. There were no partitions or ceiling upstairs, one large apparently unfinished room occupied the full space of the house.

It was a strange feeling that came over me here as at other old Colonial rude homes, when entering the rooms and prying into the closets our old heroes and ancestors used. One has the impulse to expect the old man to enter and to hear his salutation. I wondered what kind of a man he was in personal appearance, what size, what kind of clothes he wore and what his manner. Searching for information of his history while living and the results of his life to the present, I longed for a chat with him and fancied that old house if it could speak would tell a wonderfully delightful story of his every day contented labor and the quiet restful evening joys with his large family after his day's labor was ended. At the spring we fancied the old man taking momentary refuge from the summer's sun and quenching his thirst as we did at that fountain, still flowing with the same delicious chrystal waters.

We gathered what information we could at this interesting place. Near here was the Colonel's first cabin—and in it or possibly in his old Long Creek home, he was won by the pretty Mary Dover, by her winsome personality and her gentle, tender ministration as nurse to him during his convalescence from his wound. But I've said that wrong. It would be more gallant and in better taste to say that he won her, by his bravery in battle, his patience in suffering and his rugged manly character and worth. The next day we went to Grover for further information. We stopped at the Shiloh graveyard a short distance out from Grover. We had no trouble to find Col. Hambright's grave. It is marked by a large marble slab as high as a man's head, and this is an exact copy of the inscription in full: "In memory of Col. Frederick Hambright, who departed this life the Mr. 9, 1817, in the 90th year of his age. Adieu to all both far and near, My loving wife and children dear, For my immortal soul is fled, I must be numbered with the dead." (This verse is repeated on the tombstone of John Hoffman, Sr.). Mr. Patterson showed me quite a number of mementos of the battle of Kings Mountain gathered from the battlefield. Among these is a long string of small beads taken by his grandfather, Major Frederick Hambright, then a boy of about twelve years of age, from the neck of "Virginia Sal," Major Ferguson's cook, who was among the first who were killed in the battle. She seems to have remained on the field over night and next day the boy found her and the beads. He gave me an elaborate buckle from the knee pants or shoe of some of the combatants, picked up years afterward. I have a walnut table in good state of preservation which belonged to Col. Hambright. At his death or before, it became the property of his daughter, Elizabeth Jenkins, and descended in course of time to David A. Jenkins who left it by will to his son, Col. A. D. Jenkins, and myself his executors. I have been unable to learn the names of Col. Hambright's six children who died before maturity. His other children were:

- 2 John Hambright, m. ———, and children not learned;
- 2 Elizabeth, m. Joseph Jenkins;

2 John Hambright had a family but I have failed to get any account of them.

2 For Elizabeth Jenkins' descendants, see Joseph Jenkins, page 500, et seq.

2 Sarah Eaker, according to Dr. Hunter, had descendants, but I have not been able to find them. I am under the impression she had no children. There is on record in Lincoln County a will of one Peter Eaker in which he gives to the children of his brother, Christy Eaker, his property among which was a number of slaves. I have mislaid my notes of that but it struck me as of the right date for this son-in-law of Col. Hambright. In this will he speaks of one family of negroes that had been especially kind to himself and wife in their old age and requires his devisees and legatees to apply to the Legislature for act setting these free and if they failed to do this they would forfeit all claim in his estate. Further he required them to sign these slaves bonds for their good behavior also in penalty of losing all interest in his estate. I think Major Frederick Hambright's wife, Mary Eaker, was sister to Peter and Christy Eaker. There are numerous Eakers in the Beaver Dam and Cherryville sections of Gaston County but I found none who claimed descent from Peter Eaker and Sarah Hambright.

2 Frederick Hambright, son of Colonel Frederick, was known as Major Frederick Hambright. He lived on Kings Creek near his father's home and was an influential citizen of that section. His children were: 3 James, m. Anne Eaker, sister to Christy Eaker 2nd, whose daughter, Lavina, m. Wm. Jenkins and his, James Hambright's, second wife was Rebecca Carroll; John, m. ——— James; Michael, m. Ellen ——— and Faithie Stewart, nee Reynolds; Madison, m. Elizabeth Mannon and Faithie Houser; Benj., m. and went west; Peter, m. in west; Sallie, m. Vach Dillingham; Christy, m. Anne Williams; Lotsie, m. Henry Carpenter; Jefferson, m. Sallie Mannon. Maj. Frederick Hambright is also buried at Shiloh. On the tombstone of himself and wife are these short inscriptions: "In memory of Major Frederick Hambright, died Aug. 1, 1844, aged 78." "In memory of Mary Hambright, died Nov. 15, 1832, aged 60 years."

2 Susan, daughter of Col. Frederick Hambright, married Wm. Dixon of Cleveland County, N. C. I knew one of her sons, Rev. Thos. Dixon, and went to see him once but he was away from his home. I wrote later to him and to others. I hoped to interest him in giving me a correct outline of his mother's family. Chapter 13

GASTON

SECTION I

I find that in an early day in the history of North Carolina numerous Gastons settled in the Atlantic Coast region in Eastern North Carolina. The family is said to be of Welsh origin coming to this section from Wales among the early settlers. The development of the name is about as follows: First, Gascoigne, then Gaskins, and later Gaston. Francis Gascoigne or Gaskins was the pioneer and founder of that branch of the family living in Gaston County, N. C. The county singularly enough was named after, not the pioneer of that name here, but after a famous Judge, Wm. Gaston, springing from the eastern branch of the family. I have not learned the relationship between the western and eastern families in N. C. Two of the daughters of the pioneer in 1784 married Julius Holland and Elisha Weathers (Withers) and the records show at that time the name was written Gaskins. I can remember that among the old people fifty or fifty-five years ago, the name was still sometimes called Gaskins. Before 1846, when Gaston County was established, the name had generally assumed its present form, Gaston. I have not been able to learn the name of the wife of our old father, Francis Gaston. He settled and lived and died near where Lowell is now situated, in this county. I think his family was not large. In the early day the family was long-lived, but at present it so happens that I can find few of the family much past middle life and so I am at a disadvantage in getting a full account of the family.

So far as learned the children of Francis Gaston were:

2 Mary Ann, m. Julius Holland;

2 Sarah, m. Elisha Withers;

2 John, m. ——— Littlejohn and ——— Stallings;

WITHERS (WEATHERS)

This family, as well as those following, according to the original plan of my investigation does not come within the scope of my work. Neither my wife nor myself has descended from these families of worthy people; but so many of them are related to us by collateral intermarriages as heretofore noted and hereafter to be referred to, that I have secured much information of great interest and I have thought it would be more interesting still to arrange the matter obtained into one sketch of the family as a whole so far as known, rather than limit my information to those related to us in the detached portions of the previous Chapters.

Among the first settlers of this immediate vicinity some time prior to the Revolutionary War was John Weathers (or Withers, as the name has come to be written in more recent times). He came from Dinwiddie County, Virginia, and settled a few hundred yards east of where Long Creek Baptist Church now stands. I do not think he was German, but do not know his nationality, nor his parents, nor where buried. I think he died at his home here. He was twice married; first to ——— Foreman and next to Rosa Stanberry. He had a large number of children. It is said one of them—name not learned—was an American soldier of the Revolutionary War and came home with the smallpox and when in sight of home called his people and made his condition known and asked to be isolated and cared for, but his father took him home and nursed him till he died. One sister at home also died from the disease.

1 John Withers, the pioneer, according to my information, had the following other children:

2 James, the oldest;

2 Henry, m. ———, a mixed Cherokee Indian;

2 George, m. Mattie Hoyle or Mattie Smith—probably both;

2 Elisha, m. Sarah Gaskins (Gaston);

- 2 Katie, m. David Rhyne, son of Michael 1st, 1807;
- 2 Hugh, m. Mary Williams, daughter of John Williams, and another;
- 2 Elizabeth, m. John Hanks;
- 2 Juda, m. Charles Vincent;
- 2 Sarah, m. Jacob Rhodes, son of Fredk. Rhodes, pioneer, 1782;
- 2 Aggie, m. Vincent Woods;
- 2 Valentine, m. Sarah Atkins, 1782;
- 2 Nancy, m. Jacob Totherow;
- 2 Simpson, m. ———;
- 2 Polly, m. Samuel Hawkins;

2 I think James Withers was married, and that he rendered some service in the American Revolutionary Army. His brother, Elisha, was at one time a substitute for him in one of the Revolutionary expeditions. In 1789 he wrote the will and was one of the executors of Zachariah Spencer, Sr., and later he moved to Georgia and probably further west. The last heard from him was on the Coosawatie River in Ga. I have learned of no descendants.

2 Henry Withers is said to have lived at or near Helena, Arkansas, and had descendants there and probably on the Mississippi River in Mississippi.

2 George Withers lived in Lincoln County, N. C., I think somewhere near Reepsville. He had children as follows:

3 James (Jimps), m. Margaret Shrum, daughter of John Shrum; Laban, m. Adaline Keener; Lawson, m. Brookes Nevitt; Wm., m. Polly Smith, sister to Levi Smith and Mrs. Jenkins, widow of Tilman Jenkins; Oliver, m. Sallie Shrum, daughter of Solomon Shrum; Jno., d. s., in Arkansas; Lecie, m. ——— Hagar and Moses Stroup, Sr.; Polly, m. ——— Loftin; Disy and Smith, m. ———. One married Dan'l Thornburg.

3 James Withers' children: 4 John, m. Lucinda Hoyle, daughter of David Hoyle; Pink, m. Amy Beal; Mark, m. ———; Polly, m. Joseph Beal; Ann, m. Wm. Lee who died in Confederate Army and then she married Giles Beal.

4 Pink Withers' children: 5 Not learned. 4 Further descendants of James Withers, not obtained.

3 Laban Withers' children: 4 Alfred, m. Susan Detter; Wm., m. Emeline Abernethy; Jno., m. ———; Luther, d. s. Laban Withers died in the Confederate Army.

4 Alfred Withers' children: 5 Manda, m. ——— Pierce; Mattie, m. ——— Campbell; Bird, m. Manda Keener; Alice, m. ———; and others.

3 Smith Withers lived in Gaston County on south of Big Long Creek on place now occupied by Peter S. Rhyne. In 1851 he moved to Arkansas with Peter Hoffman. He had a family but information concerning these is not at hand.

2 Elisha Withers was born Aug. 10, 1762. He married Sarah Gaston in 1784. He lived and reared a large family near his father's home in Lincoln (now Gaston) County, N. C. He died in 1840 and is buried at Long Creek Church near his home. The graves of himself and wife are marked by modest marble slabs with following inscriptions: "Elisha Weathers, born Au. 14, 1764. Died ———, 1840. Who was a Revolutionary soldier" and "Sarah Weathers died Nov. 1st, 1848, aged 85 years." Elisha Weathers' grave is further marked by two cedar trees about the size of a man's body, standing one over his head and other over his feet. As noted on his tombstone he served the American cause in the heroic struggle for independence. I quote from Hunter's Sketches of Western N. C., page 300: "Elisha Withers was born in Stafford County, Virginia, on the 10th of August, 1762. His first service in the Revolutionary War was in 1780 acting for twelve months as Commissary in furnishing provisions for the soldiers stationed at Capt. Robert Alexander's, near Tuckasege Ford on the Catawba River, their place of rendezvous. After this service he was drafted and served a tour of three months under Capt. Thos. Loftin and Lieut. Robert Shannon and marched from Lincoln County to Guilford Court House under Cols. Locke and Hunt. His time having expired shortly before the battle he returned home. He again served another tour commencing in August, 1781, as substitute for James Weathers, under Captain James Little, at Eutaw Springs where he was detailed with a few others to guard the baggage wagons during the battle. He again volunteered under Captain Thos. Loftin and Lt. Thomas McGee and was actively engaged in the 'horse service' in several scouting expeditions until the close of the war." Chapter 15

CANSLER (GENSELER, Etc.)

The Cansler family was and is a large and influential one in Gaston, Lincoln and other counties of North Carolina and in other sections of the South to which they moved from this locality in the past years. The name has been variously spelled as above in its gradual transition from the German to the English language. Some claim that the family origin is Norwegian, others Dutch and still others German. From the fact that the pioneer of the family came to the south with our other first settlers from Pennsylvania and that he used the German language and taught it to his children I take it to be a fact that he was of German origin from whatever country of Europe he may have come. Philip W. Cansler and his son, Philip, left wills signing their names in German.

1 Philip W. Cansler was the pioneer and common father and founder of the family here. In 1767 he had some land in the vicinity of High Shoals. He first settled, I am told, near where the town of Lincolnton was later established on what is still known as the Cansler place. About the time of the founding of the town of Lincolnton he, by sale or gift, transferred this home place to his son, Philip Cansler, and he himself with his family moved to Leeper's Creek in the Rudisill-Arndt neighborhood where he built his house and a mill on the west bank of the creek on the slope of the hill facing the creek and adjoining the lands of the Rev. Jno. Godfrey Arndt and in the neighborhood of the ancestral home of the Rudisills. His house was of the regulation style for those Indian days with a high basement wall of stone and the upper house built of very large hewed logs. This house stood till recently when it was torn down and a new and more modern one erected on the same site. The old logs of the house were moved a short distance from their old position and rebuilt as a barn or some sort of outhouse. The mill is still in use. In later years it has been known as the Hammerschold Mill.

From information obtained, purporting to come from records of the family Bible of Michael Rudisill I find that Barbara Rudisill, daughter of Michael, the pioneer Rudisill, married ——— Cansler. Then I found a distinct tradition that the wife of the pioneer Cansler was Barbara Rudisill. These, with other indications, led me to conclude that the whole Cansler family and myself had common kinship through the Rudisill blood (See Chapter 4—Rudisill, Barbara, page 330). And on this assumption I gathered facts and notes for a meagre sketch of the family as a whole. It seems to me that the ages of the parties concerned would better suit if Barbara Rudisill had been the wife of Philip W. Cansler than that of either his son, John, or Conrad (Coonie). But I think it established that Philip W. Cansler's wife who survived him was Uly Devepaugh, so that if Barbara was ever his wife she must have been a first wife. And just recently I have been informed by letter from an old helper in East Tennessee that Conrad Cansler's wife was Barbara Rudisill. I feel that is probably the real solution of the trouble

With this changed conclusion this Chapter also does not belong in these sketches according to the original plan of the work; but since I have collected some facts worth preserving and even a skeleton outline may be interesting to many worthy people and also so many of this family are collaterally related to me I will continue the sketch and arrange in order the notes I have made of this family.

Philip W. Cansler, the pioneer, died at his home on Leeper's Creek in 1804, and is buried at a private and neglected burial ground on his home farm about half a mile northwest from his home. A marble slab marks the grave of this worthy man. By his side is buried his wife whose grave is shown only by rough undressed and unlettered stones—no name nor date. Near by lies his son, George Cansler, and the wife of George.

The stone of our pioneer is inscribed as follows: "Hier ruht ein Vater vieler kinder, ein Menschen freund u Christ: der recht durch Kreuz nunmehr vollender ist: er ist uns wohl bekannt; er diente Leut u Land; er heist mit aller Ehr; der Vater Philip W. Genseler, who died Oct. 7, 1804, aged 63 years." Translated this means: "Here rests a father of many children, a friend of men and a Christian; who through the Cross is now perfect; he is well known to us; he served his people and (land) country; his name is with all honor the (our) father, Philip W. Cansler." The above inscription is rather illegible and indistinct. I could not decipher it correctly. I am indebted to my grandnephew, Orestes P. Rhyne, a brilliant student now taking his Ph. D. course at Johns Hopkins University for the above version. He suggests that it is meant for poetry and rhymes with words in italics.

Mr. Cansler left a will, the original being on file in the Clerk's office of Lincoln County, N. C. The following is a copy thereof:

"In the name of God, Amen. I, Philip Cancelor of the County of Lincoln and State of North Carolina, being sick and weak in body but of perfect memory and sound understanding, and calling to mind the mortality of my body, do make, constitute, appoint and ordain this to be my last will and testament, and as touching my worldly estate desire to dispose of it in manner and form following:

"1st. I desire that my debts should be paid and that I may be buried in a decent Christianlike manner at the discretion of my executors hereinafter named.

"2nd. I give and bequeath to my well beloved wife, Uly Cancelor, as much of the furniture belonging to the house as she may choose and likewise of my stock of horses and cattle as she shall choose during her widowhood and the remainder to be sold with all my movable property to me anyways belonging.

"3rd. I give and bequeath to my daughter, Catharine Cline, one hundred acres of land on the waters of Indian Creek and forty pounds of money arising from the Vandue.

"4th. I give and bequeath to my daughter, Margaret Devepaugh, one hundred and twenty acres of land out of a tract on waters of Leeper's and Hoyle's Creeks and forty pounds.

"5th. I give and bequeath to my daughter, Caty Finger, same as the above daughters.

"6th. I give and bequeath to my daughter, Mary Garden, the same as the above.

"7th. I give and bequeath to my daughter, Elizabeth, the same as above.

"8th. I give and bequeath to my daughter, Barbara, the same as above; and I also do give to my two last named daughters three cows apiece.

"9th. I give and bequeath unto my son, John Cancelor, five shillings.

"10th. I give and bequeath to my son, Philip Cancelor, five shillings.

"11th. I give and bequeath to my son, George Cancelor, three hundred and fifty acres of land more or less lying on Leeper's Creek, including the place whereon I now live.

"12th. I give and bequeath to my son, Conrade Cancellor, two hundred and seventy-five acres more or less lying on the waters of the South Fork, near Lincolnton, on the pine field branch and twenty pounds. And the remainder of my whole estate to my aforesaid wife during her widowhood and then to be equally divided between my aforesaid wife and all my children equally. And I do appoint my wife and Philip Cancelor, my son, executors of this my last will and testament and I do disannul and revoke all wills and testaments by me heretofore made and confirm this to be my last will and testament. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand this 25th day of May, 1801.

Witness:

PHILIP GANTZLER.

Jos. Abernethy

Philip Devepaugh."

Those children to whom nominal legacies were given had been previously provided for.

From this it will be seen that Philip W. Cansler, the pioneer, had ten children, as follows:

2 Catharine, m. ——— Cline;

2 Margaret, b. Oct. 31, 1759, d. May 2, 1833, m. Philip Devepaugh, b. 1751, and died June 29, 1825;

2 Katie, m. John Finger;

2 Mary, m. ——— Garden;

2 Elizabeth, I think, died single;

2 Barbara, m. Henry Troutman, 1802;

2 John, m. ———, and moved to Rutherford Co., N. C.;

2 Philip, m. Mary Quiggle (Quickle);

2 George, m. Margaret Finger, daughter of Peter Finger;

2 Conrad, m. Barbara Rudisill.

2 I have not had time and opportunity to find and trace the descendants of Catharine Cline, Mary Garden, Katie Finger, Elizabeth and Barbara Troutman, daughters of Philip W. Cansler, pioneer. I think it would not be difficult to get trace of the Cline, Garden and Finger and Troutman descendants, as the names are familiar in this section still Elizabeth, as already said, probably died without family and unmarried.

2 Margaret Devepaugh had children as follows:

3 Catharine, m. Henry Etters; Elizabeth, m. John Earney; John, m. Sarah Martin; Uly, m. Benjamin James; Lydia, m. Reuben Reynolds; Peggy, m. Wm. Douglas; Philip, m. ———; Mary Ann and Daniel.

2 Philip Cansler, son of Philip W. Cansler, the pioneer, lived on his father's homestead near Lincolnton. He was an influential citizen of considerable intelligence and wealth. His wife was a member of that other prominent family of Lincoln County—the Quickle family, the mother of which family was a Freytag—Friday—sister to the pioneers of that family, Nicholas and Martin Friday. Philip Cansler had only two children, one son: 3 Henry, who married Fanny Shuford, a granddaughter of John Hoyle, and his wife, Margaret Costner. The other child of Philip Cansler was a daughter: 3 Elizabeth, who married Philip Rudisill, a brother to "Gentleman" Jonas Rudisill, and son of Philip Rudisill 2nd.

3 Henry Cansler was for years Sheriff of Lincoln Co., N. C., and was a leading citizen and represented Lincoln County in the General Assembly. For his descendants, see Fanny Shuford Cansler, page 441.

3 For descendants of Elizabeth Cansler Rudisill, see page 291, et seq.

2 George Cansler, son of Philip W. Cansler, by will of his father succeeded his father in the ownership of the Cansler home on Leeper's Creek and lived there the rest of his life. He was born in 1770, died, 1830, and sleeps with his father and mother in the burying ground on the place. His tombstone bears this inscription: "George Cansler was born Jan. 31, 1770, died Oct. the 2nd, 1830, aged 59 years, 8 months and 2 days." His wife's tombstone by his side has this inscription: (Name broken off) "was born, 1776, departed this life Dec. 23, 1832, aged 56 years,

6 months and 30 days." The foot stone has on it, "M. C." George Cansler's children were: 3 Philip, m. Evaline Smith, sister to Madison Smith; Dan'l, m. Sallie Smith, sister to Philip's wife; Henry, m. Mary Arndt and Mary Hinson; Margaret, m. Aaron Goodson; Peter, m. Nancy Rozzell; John, m. Cynthia Brown; Barbara, m. John Heedick; Mary, m. Dan'l Haynes; Ann, m. Drewry Abernethy; and Jacob, m. Rebecca Green, Ga.; ten in all.

3 Philip Cansler moved to Villa Rica, Carroll Co., Ga. His children were: 4 James, Robert, Thos., "Sis," Mary and Roxanna.

4 Thomas Cansler, son of Philip Cansler, moved from Ga. to Miss. and thence to Texas in 1883. He was a Methodist minister and lived near Itasca. He died at Hillsboro, Tex., Mar. 17, 1913, aged 75 years. He was twice married: first to Cetinda J. Stone, in 1848, and next to Lizzie Lloyd, 1882. His children by 1st wife were: Dr. H. K. Cansler of Hillsboro, Texas; E. V. Cansler, Gary, Oklahoma; H. S. Cansler, Travis, Tex.; S. W. Cansler, Fort Worth; Mrs. M. D. Banister, Sentinel, Okla.; Kelly Cansler, Fort Worth; and Mrs. T. S. Wooten, Hillsboro, Tex.; and by his second wife: Mrs. Guy Hooker, Hillsboro, Tex.; Mrs. H. C. Pondram, Dallas, Tex.; and Thos. L. Cansler of Hillsboro, Texas.

3 Daniel Cansler moved to Smith Co., Texas, so named from Robert Smith, his wife's brother. I haven't learned of his descendants.

3 Henry Cansler's children: 4 Mary, by 1st wife, m. Caney Lorange (see Mary Arndt Cansler, page 330); and by 2nd wife: Sarah, m. Rev. Aug. Benick (Presb.); Pink, m. Beni Ramsaur; Margt. A., m. Logan Warlick; Frances, m. Jacob A. Seagle; Jno. J., m. Margt. Robinson; Emma, m. Abram Miller; Henry, m. Claudia Helderman.

4 Mary Lorange lived at Catawba Station and has children.

3 Margaret Cansler Goodson's children: 4 Geo. W., m. Catharine Lehman; Mary, m. John Michael; Margaret, m. Robert H. Ballard; and Frances died young. 3 Margaret Goodson died Sept. 19, 1897, aged 80 years, 9 months and 16 days. Her husband had died Mar. 24, 1877, aged 68 years, 5 months and 18 days.

2 John Cansler was probably the oldest son of our pioneer Cansler and may have been born as early as the last of the year, 1760. His sister, Mrs. Devepaugh, being born Oct. 31, 1759; but his birth has been thought to have been about 1765. He entered some land as early as 1792 indicating that he was of age before that date. He was provided for before his father's will was executed and when he sold his land to Frederick Hoke on Jan. 12, 1799, he was already a citizen of Rutherford County, N. C. I have been unable to ascertain the name of the wife of John Cansler. He may have died in Rutherford Co. or possibly went westward. This part of my investigation has come late and I have been unable to pursue it by a search of the Rutherford and Burke Co. records and have been able to enlist little interest in descendants or relatives in those counties. So far as learned the children of Jno. Cansler, son of Philip W., pioneer, were:

3 Philip, married Miriam Johnson in 1820, and died, 1838; Conrad; Ula, m. ——— Depriest; Betsy, m. ——— Johnson; James, m. ———; and Katy, m. ——— Carson. Hon. Mr. Carson, lawyer and legislator, is said to be from this couple.

3 Philip Cansler moved to Macon Co., N. C., in 1836 or 1837, and died very soon afterward. His children were:

4 John, James, Philip, Mary, Martha, Barbara, Amanda and Clarinda. I have not learned definitely of the further descendants of John Cansler, son of the pioneer, except that Mrs. J. B. Collins of Macon Co., is a descendant through his son, James, and that the Carsons in Rutherford Co., N. C., are probable descendants of his daughter, Katie Carson. It is altogether probable that John Cansler had other children than five above named.

2 Conrad Cansler, supposed to be youngest son of Philip W. Cansler, pioneer, I think married Barbara Rudisill, daughter of Michael Rudisill, the first. He sold his land in Lincoln County, N. C., in 1814, and moved to Rutherford or Burke County where he seems to have lived some time and then moved to Monroe Co., Tenn., about 1837. He purchased land in 1843 from John Carson, but I think several years prior to that time he was living near Hiawasse College where he died in 1848, and is buried there. He was noted as an extremely large man and could scarcely be understood in his use of English, and the report is that he employed an English-speaking woman to live in the family so that his children might learn English. He was an old man when he died. His daughter, Catharine, was born about 1800, and she was the 5th of six daughters, and Conrad himself seems to have been about contemporary with the Rudisill family, probably a little younger, and the report from Tennessee is that his wife was Barbara Cansler, all these and other circumstances make me conclude that this Tennessee Conrad was the son of Philip W. Cansler, pioneer, and not his grandson Conrad, son of John Cansler.

2 Conrad Cansler's children were all daughters, six in all to-wit: 3 Barbara, m. Adam Nichols; Clarissa, m. Willis Woody; Sallie, m. Cornelius Welch; Betsy, m. ——— Allen; Catharine; Ula, m. James Long. Conrad Cansler and his wife separated. I think the daughters above except Catharine who lived with her father, lived in Fannin Co., Ga., and Mrs. Cansler lived and died with Ula Long, her youngest daughter there. She survived her husband a few years. These children of Conrad Cansler raised families but I haven't obtained the names of them except as follows: L. C. Woody and W. R. Woody, of Swan, Ga., are sons of Mrs. Clarissa Woody and 3 Catharine Cansler had six children, all sons to-wit: 4 Robert, a soldier of the Mexican War; James, Van, Henry, H. Lawson and Jackson, all said to have had families—some of whom are still living in East Tenn. Henry's daughter, Margaret, married James Kiser and other children of his were Katharine, Cinda, Jackson, Sallie, Martha and Miniffee.

4 Hugh Lawson Cansler, son of Catharine Cansler, married Louisa A. Scott and still lives in Knoxville, Tenn., in his 78th year. His children are: 5 Wm. J., m. Agnes Reynolds; Nanny E., m. Floyd Broady; Chas. W., m. Lillian Webber; Lee R., m. Luella Cash; Hugh L., Jr., m. Mabel Gudger (c); Carl C., s.; Henry Conrad, m. Cynthia Greenway; Fritz P., m. Ruth Porter; Elmer H., m. Trula Coffin. These have children and are mostly teachers of note, lawyers, blacksmiths and other honorable occupations—living some in Knoxville, Tenn., Maryville, Tenn., Los Angeles, Cal., etc.

The evidence secured regarding this Conrad Cansler is so elusive, indefinite, fragmentary and contradictory, and positive dates are so lacking, that I cannot be entirely sure that he was the elder Conrad or the son of John Cansler and nephew of the elder Conrad. One grandson writes speaking of his grandmother as Barbara and an old resident of the neighborhood says she was Barbara Rudisill, while another grandson seems to say that his grandmother was Clarissa Dellinger, whose mother was a Holdsclaw.

It may be we haven't really heard of the elder Conrad Cansler and that he is the ancestor of a set of the Canslers who lived near Englewood, Tenn., and whom after diligent and long extensive search we have been unable to connect into their place in the family. This set consisted of Wm., m. Eliza ———, and both died childless at Mineral Wells, Tex., about 1900; Sarah, m. Louis Hale; Martha (Patsy), m. Lemuel Chapman; Nathaniel Henderson, b. Sept. 15, 1822, died at Rolla, Mo., April 24, 1879, married Hannah C. Reynolds; John married ———, died in Maries Co., Mo.; Ann, m. ——— Moon.

Sarah Hale's children were: Granville, Wm.; and Martha, m. W. R. Dickey, Independence, Va.

Patsy Chapman's children were: Mary A., b. 1840; Sarah J., b. 1843, and Nancy J., b. 1845. Mr. Chapman died and one report is that Patsy moved to Adams Co., Ill., and some think she moved to Maries Co., Mo., with her brother, Nathaniel Henderson Cansler, in 1852.

Nathaniel Henderson Cansler's children were: James Henderson, b. Feb. 8, 1840, died April 13, 1885, Rolla, Mo.; Mary S., b. Mar. 10, 1847, d. Jan., 1913, in St. Louis, Mo.; Martha E., b. Oct. 19, 1850, d. Nov. 29, 1912, Little Rock, Ark.; Mildred, b. Nov. 6, 1866, m. P. R. Van Frank, Little Rock, Ark. Mr. Van Frank has searched as hard as I have to establish the connection (which I think undoubted) with our Cansler family but we have had to give it up. We have found it impossible to ascertain the name of Mrs. Van Frank's grandfather Cansler.

John Cansler, brother to Nath. Henderson Cansler, had children, one of whom was named John.

Mrs. Ann Moon probably had a family but data is wanting.

There was also another set of Canslers near Englewood, said to have been cousins to the above and I think the above named Wm. Cansler, was grandson to some of them. Their names were in part: Nelson, Carroll and Thomas.

There was also another set of Canslers living in Christian County, Ky., and from the similarity of names, I infer they may have been a branch of the ancestor of the Englewood, Tenn., set. Mr. Jas. K. P. Cansler of Enid, Okla., furnishes the information concerning this set. He thinks that his great grandfather was John Cansler and his grandfather, James Cansler, who had children as follows: Plinny, m. Tempie Renshaw; John, born May 5, 1800, m. Matilda Renshaw and died July 4, 1854; Henderson, m. Polly Long; James, m. Marian Goodlow; Golden, m. Betsy McCord; and Betsy, m. Wiley Renshaw.

Plinny Cansler's children were: Mary, m. E. Adams; Nancy, m. A. J. Adams; Jno., m. Sylvia Adams; and Wm. H., m. Mollie Cranor.

John Cansler, brother to Plinny, had following children: Artemissa, m. ——— Cooksy and T. A. Key; Nancy M., m. W. V. Croft; Emily S., m. A. W. Brasher; Martin V. B., m. M. G. Hamby and M. J. McCord; Joab C. F., d. infant; Mary M., m. O. J. Hamby; J. K. Polk, m. E. A. Boales; Scelina L., s.; and Jno. W. O. B., s.

Henderson Cansler's (brother to Plinny) children: James Henderson, m. ———; Jane, m. Lill Dunning; Sarah, m. Bunah Dunning; and others. James Cansler, brother to Plinny, had children: Bristow, Carry, McKee, Lycurgus and others.

Golden Cansler, brother to Plinny, had children: Thos. Benton and others. The dates in this Ky. set would indicate that the first named ancestor, John, was probably a brother to our old Philip W., pioneer, especially as the tradition is that this John Cansler also moved from Lincoln Co., N. C. This is a very unsatisfactory conclusion of the Cansler sketch but I have thought it was worth writing to be of possible benefit to some one more favorably situated to take up the matter and make the proper connection.

Chapter 16

CLEMMER (KLEMMER)

The common ancestor of the Clemmer family established in what is now Gaston County, N. C., was Valentine Clemmer which Christian name has been almost universally nick-named "Felty," and so the Clemmer pioneer was known as Felty Klemmer, which later in English was spelled with a C. Tradition has it that a generation or two back of Felty Clemmer the family was established in Pennsylvania by two Germans of the aristocratic family who were disinherited in Germany because of their insisting upon marrying wives out of their set—good, honorable girls whom they loved. I am no sort of an aristocrat and do not vouch for the correctness of this tradition or demand implicit credence for this tradition except as tradition. It might be so and it might not. The Clemmers have abounded in beautiful women and fine looking gentle mannered men.

I again cannot tell the exact time of Felty Clemmer's coming to these parts but the hints I have received in this investigation give me the impression that he was not among the very earliest, but probably soon after the Revolutionary War. I am told he lived on Little Long Creek about a mile northeast of Dallas at the place later known as the Deck mill place. His wife was Elizabeth Dettero, a sister to John Dettero (Totherow), the father of the Totherow family here. I think before he died, he with a large portion of his descendants moved to East Tennessee where he married a second wife, a Miss Hancock. I can't learn certainly but I think his first wife died in N. C. The children of Felty Clemmer of whom I have learned were:

2 Lewis, m. Mollie Cloninger, a daughter of Adam Cloninger, one of the pioneer Cloningers, and a granddaughter of the first Rhyne here.

2 John, m. Hannah Hoffman, daughter of Jacob Hoffman 2nd;

2 George, m. Hannah Smith, daughter of Wm. Smith, and sister of Peter Smith, who married Hannah Best;

2 Lizzie, m. John Totherow, her 1st cousin, and son of John Totherow 1st;

2 Anne, m. Jesse Elmore and moved to Missouri;

2 Susanna, m. Adam Cloninger, son of Adam Cloninger 1st; these all by 1st wife; and by 2nd wife:

2 Elizabeth, m. Jacob Cloninger;

2 Mollie, d. s., at John Clemmer's, in East Tennessee. There were possibly other daughters of Valentine Clemmer. I think there were no other grown sons.

2 For descendants of Lewis Clemmer, see Mollie Clemmer, page 163, et seq.

2 For descendants of Jno. Clemmer, see Hannah Hoffman, page 35, et seq.

2 George Clemmer and family lived on the south side of Little Long Creek just north of Dallas. They had a large family of sons and daughters as follows:

3 Andrew, m. Mary Rhyne, daughter of Jacob Rhyne 3rd;

3 John, m. Susan Lineberger, sister to Felty's wife;

3 Elizabeth, m. Christy Rhyne, son of Michael Rhyne;

3 George, m. Polly Withers, daughter of Elisha Withers;

3 Lewis, m. Caroline Featherstone;

3 Margaret, m. Tilman Jenkins;

3 George Clemmer, son of George Clemmer, Sr., lived on his father's home place near Dallas. He and his wife were most excellent citizens. He died comparatively young. She survived him many years and died at a good old age respected and revered by all who knew her. They were steadfast Lutherans but are buried at Long Creek Baptist Church. Their tombstones bear these inscriptions: "Geo. Clemmer, died April 17, 1863, aged 53 years, 8 months and 6 days." "Mary, wife of Geo. Clemmer, died June 7, 1899, aged 85 years, 11 months and 18 days." Their children were: 4 Sarah, m. Moses Lineberger and Sam'l Johnston; Margaret, m. David Smith, son of John Smith; Cynthia, m. Henry Rhyne; Elmina, m. Miles A. Rhyne; J. Larkin, m. Ann Jenkins and Mollie Matthews, daughter of Uriah Matthews; Isabella, m. Miles A. Rhyne; Bettie, m. M. S. P. Costner; Dorcas, m. Lee Stowe.

Chapter 17

LINEBERGER (LEINBERGER)

The Lineberger family was established in this section of North Carolina by three brothers who came from Germany to England and reshipped to America, landing at Philadelphia and for a time like the other German immigrants remained in Pennsylvania near York and Lancaster. They then came south and settled, I think, all in what is now Gaston County. The names of these brothers were Peter, Lewis and John Lineberger. Their parents whose names I have not learned accompanied them from Germany to England and on the ship from England for America. They had a most tempestuous and distressing voyage—being tossed and driven about on the ocean for eighteen months—an almost incredible statement when we consider the fact almost as strange that the trip may now be made in less than a week. The parents of these adventurous young men both died and were buried at sea—never reaching the longed for shores of the new world. The tradition is that the family had a trunk with a considerable amount of gold in it but that this was all appropriated by the ship's authorities, so that when the young men landed they had only brave hearts and strong healthy bodies with which to begin their lives in the wilderness of the untried new world. I don't know the exact date of their coming but I think it was about the time the other Germans came. It was some time prior to 1768. In that year Peter Lineberger sold to Frederick Lineberger, who I suppose was the son of Lewis Lineberger, 200 acres of land on the east side of Kuykendahls Creek. This indicates not only that they had settled here long enough to have acquired homes before 1768 but that these brothers themselves had families—Lewis' son, Frederick, being old enough to buy land. Sept. 6, 1769, Jno. Lineberger bought from N. Crowder and wife, Calamia, 200 acres of land on Long Branch of Killian's Creek above the shoals and above Joseph Sailor's place. In 1770 Peter Lineberger bought 300 acres of land from Michael Master on the north branch of Clark's Creek adjoining the lands of Geo. Posey. So that soon after settling Peter and John Lineberger made their homes in Lincoln and Catawba Counties or rather in that section now included in those counties.

1 Lewis Lineberger settled permanently about four miles a little northeast of Dallas on a branch of Hoyle's Creek near the road leading from Dallas to Stanley where for several generations he was succeeded by his descendants. The house substantially built still stands but is in disuse. The descendants of these three brothers in course of time grew apart and the separation interrupted their intercourse and even acquaintanceship. Almost without exception the Linebergers of Gaston County are descended from Lewis Lineberger. Some of Peter Lineberger's descendants live in and near Iron Station. So far as I have learned the families of Peter and John Lineberger are not related to us and lack of time has prevented my gathering the descendants of these two worthy old fathers. Lewis Lineberger was Captain of his District or Company and was a man of strong personality and unblemished character. He was a prosperous citizen and is distinguished from the other Lewis Linebergers by his title of Capt. During the Revolutionary War he was engaged in farming and cattle raising and was murdered by the notorious murderous, plundering patriot, Pat Carr, of Georgia. Carr came to his house to buy cattle and asked Mr. Lineberger to show them to him. They went out to the pasture or woods to find them and in the walk Carr dropped behind him and shot him dead. This is said to have occurred where the road passes Frank Rhyne's house, leading from Hoyle's Bridge to Stanley. The wife of Capt. Lewis Lineberger was Barbara Anna Maria Spanheimer and their children were:

- 2 Frederick, m. Eve Wills, daughter of Garrett Wills, pioneer;
- 2 John, m. Elizabeth Costner, daughter of Peter Costner;
- 2 Lewis, m. Fanny Rhyne, daughter of Peter Rhyne;
- 2 Catharine, m. Fredk. Upperough and John Stull;
- 2 Mary, m. Jacob Kinder;
- 2 Barbara, m. Michael Dellinger;
- 2 Susan, m. Adam Kinder.

2 For descendants of Frederick Lineberger, see Eve Lineberger, page 480, et seq.

2 For descendants of John Lineberger, see Elizabeth Lineberger, page 236, et seq.

2 Catharine Lineberger first married Frederick Uppercoough. He died without issue. She then married John Stull and moved to Maryland. She had one son: 3 John Stull, Jr.

2 Mary Kinder and her husband, Jacob Kinder, and her sister, Susan Kinder, and husband, Adam Kinder and two brothers of the Kinders, John and Conrad, moved to Southeast Missouri. I found many people of that name there, descendants of the above. In Jackson, Mo., I found some nice people, descendants of John Kinder, and one gentleman, a grandson of Conrad Kinder, but I found no one who could give me the descendants of Susan Lineberger and husband, Adam Kinder.

2 Mary Kinder (see page 258). Her children were: 3 Henry, m. Nancy Costner, daughter of Andrew Costner; Israel, m. Fanny Costner, daughter of Andrew Costner; and Mary Ann, m. David Hanks.

3 Henry Kinder's children: 4 Mary, m. Alonzo Bowman, Bessville, Mo.; Sally, m. George Miller; and Mahala, m. George Zimmerman.

4 Mary Bowman's children: 5 Ellen, m. Hon. Marion Welker; Sophronia, m. Polie Lempo (c).

5 Ellen Welker's children: 6 Ira, m. Mary Arthur (c); and Webster, s.

4 Sallie Miller's children: 5 Sarah, m. Esto Arthur (c); Henry, m. Idora Hahn and has two children.

4 Mahala Zimmerman's children: 5 Sarah, m. Wm. Kitchens (c); Elmira, m. Adolphus Gibbs.

5 Elmira Gibbs' children: 6 Ervin, Russell, Etta, Myrtle, Nora, and Geo. d. s.

3 Israel Kinder's children: 4 Jacob, s. See Andrew Costner, page 258.

3 Mary Hanks, see page 258.

2 For descendants of Barbara Dellinger, see Michael Dellinger, page 335.

In conclusion, I am constantly reminded that it is time to close my work in this line. I am sorry that I have not been able in the time and with the opportunities I have had to make the later Chapters of these sketches as full and complete as I desired but with satisfaction that so much has been done and with gratitude to those who have assisted me with much information and willingness to help in the publication of the book, I dedicate these memorials of our first American sires and of their descendants, our worthy departed fathers and mothers, to the great and ever increasing hosts of their posterity with the wish and hope that we who live and those who shall come may ever emulate their virtues and honor and reverence their lives and memories; and if some may have been less worthy that our unselfish, helpful, worthy and righteous lives may reflect honor upon these and in some measure make amends and atonement for their faults and follies; and to this end, cousins, "I commend you to God and to the word of his grace which is able to build you up and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified."

In a book of this size and kind, with its many thousands of names, it is altogether impracticable to make a complete index. I have in this partial index endeavored as well as I could to select representative names in the several families so as to suggest to the reader who knows anything of his relatives to open the book somewhere near the record of himself.

It is hoped that each one will read the whole book, and when he finds anything he may desire to refer to again let him make a note for himself on the blank index pages we leave for that purpose.

I desire here to note the following errors:

On page 525, Wm. P. and Nelly Eddleman's child, read Wm. Roseman not Wm. P. Jr.

On page 523, 3 Wm. R. Holland's children omitted, read: 3 Wm. R. Holland's children: 4 Robert Isaac, b. 1849, d. s. June 26, 1867; and Mary Jane, m. Pinkney J. Lineberger. 4 for Mary J. Lineberger's children, see Pink Lineberger, page 176.
